Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

TURN A FAVOR UPSIDE DOWN AND FIND—

You never get something for nothing. Everyone wants to, everyone fancies now and then that he is accomplishing it, and no one ever does it—at least, not for long. Some friends of mine were telling jubilantly this Spring of having been given circus passes for the whole family by a newspaper man they knew.

They evidently felt that here, for once, they were really getting something for nothing and even the pleasure of going to the circus was greatly enhanced by that feeling. That's gratitude. A week or two ago I met these same friends again and invited them for a week-end in the country. "We'd love to come," said the wife, "but we have an engagement we simply can't break. You know that newspaper man we told you of who gave us nose tickets to the circus. Well, his fiancée is going to be in town and we felt we ought to invite them to dinner. She isn't at all the sort of person I care about, not half so nice as he is, but of course we simply had to do it. I wish we'd never gone to that old circus. I haven't been out of the city a week-end this summer and I'm crazy to get away."

That's gratitude. It is also human nature. When we accept favors we think of them as so much velvet. Then the time comes what we perceive that we must either be thought bores or make some return. And it is so apt to be an inconvenient time, either for our engagements or our purses.

A Businesslike Arrangement. I once knew a young couple who, when they were first married, did light housekeeping, getting their own breakfasts and luncheons and taking their dinners at restaurants. They allowed so much a week for their dinners, and at first when they were invited out to dinner (as they were a good deal) they spent the extra money on grander meals for the rest of the week or on some other luxury. But they soon began to face the necessity of returning these invitations in one way or another, and that hit their budget so hard that they reorganized. Instead of spending the money released by being entertained at dinner, they put it into an entertainment fund.

Maybe this will strike you as sensible and maybe it will strike you as cold-blooded. Anyhow, it is a manifestation of the fact that one does not get something for nothing, and that in the long run it is folly to wish or expect it.

Don't Be Too Careful. I have known people who were afraid of accepting favors of any sort lest they be called upon to pay at an inconvenient time or in some coin that they did not like to part with. I do not believe that is the right way to look at things. That is altogether too cold-blooded. But I do think one ought to realize the fact that favors have another face to them, and that the name of that face is obligations.

Fashions and Fads.

A summer dress of pale yellow swiss is embroidered in Chinese blue. Standing collars are frequently used on afternoon and street frocks. A chic costume of midnight blue taffeta has revers lined with white silk.

With dance-frocks, long scraps of black tulle are worn around the neck. For dressy wear is the coat of taffeta, elaborately embroidered in color.

Chic little hats in plain solid colors are worn with the Scotch plaid capes.

EVERGREEN.

You'd say I'm in the yellow leaf, if you should count my years; but I don't travel much with grief, or aloof around in tears, and so I work a gorgeous bluff that's based on seemingly mirth, and people say I'm young enough for anything on earth. I have all kinds of pea-green pains along my legs and back; but when a lot of Jakes and Janes are calling at my shack, on maladies I waste no words. I don't discourse of woes; I talk of hams and hummingbirds and cheerful things like those. A man is old when he begins to talk of ailments dire, to sigh all day and toast his shins before a fire. A man grows old when he is prone to boost the vanished time, to view the present with a groan, and swear it is a crime. If I should live eight hundred years, composing helpful rhymes, as Noah and such profiteers hung on in ancient times, I'd still be young as I am now, though outwardly defaced, with heavy furrows on my brow, and whiskers to my waist. For when I see what old men do, I do the other thing; their repinings I eschew, and whoop around and sing.

This Week's Wisdom.

Air castles are perfectly ventilated. Most men who pay as they go are slow travellers. Charity and bookbinders cover a multitude of sins. Always speak well of yourself. Your friends will attend to the other side of it. Be good and you will be happy—as happy as you can be under the circumstances. There are times when words fail a man—but if he has a wife it doesn't matter much. If all donkeys had long ears it would be necessary to change the style of masculine headgear. It's surprising how quickly a woman puts on weight when she sits on her husband's knees. You can make almost any man nervous by telling him that a policeman was asking about him.

SONG OF THE BUILDER.
I sink my piers to the solid rock
And I send my steel to the sky,
And I pile up the granite, block to block.
Full twenty stories high;
Nor wind nor weather shall wash away
The thing that I've builded, day by day.

Here's something of mine that shall ever stand
Till another shall tear it down;
Here is the work of my brain and hand,
Towering above the town.
And the idlers gay in their snug content,
Have nothing to leave for a monument.

Here from my girders I look below
At the throngs which travel by,
For little that's real will they leave to show.
When it comes their time to die,
But I, when my time of life is through,
Will leave this building for men to view.

Oh, the work is hard and the days are long,
But hammers are tools for men,
And granite endures and the steel is strong.
Outliving both brush and pen,
And ages after my voice is stilled,
Men shall know I lived by the things I build.

Imperial Wireless.

Wireless telegraphy played a great part in the War; it is destined to play an ever increasingly important part in Peace. To none is it likely to prove so vital as to the far-flung dominions of King George. It would be matter for serious regret if any differences, personal or otherwise, were allowed to affect consideration of the report of the Committee appointed to consider the question of establishing an Imperial wireless chain. The Marconi Company was prepared to create such a chain at its own cost and to hand over 25 per cent. of the profits to the State. The report of the Committee which had not the advantage of examining a representative of the Company is opposed to leaving an Imperial project of this sort in private control. The essential thing, however, is that both the Company and the Committee are agreed as to the necessity and practicability of an Imperial wireless system. A scheme is proposed for communications, arranged in stages of 2,000 miles, linking up Great Britain with Egypt, South Africa, East Africa, India, Malaya, Hong Kong and Australia. Canada's participation being left for the moment to settlement in conference between the Imperial and Dominion authorities. As to the question of finance, where the Marconi Company's scheme fore-shadowed profits without financial responsibility to the State, the Committee anticipate a loss of £100,000 a year at first, but is of opinion that a surplus would accrue after ten years. The sum is negligible for so great an enterprise.—United Empire.

Nfld. Minister of Education

OUTLINES HIS POLICY.
North Sydney.—Dr. A. Barnes, Minister of Education for Newfoundland, was a passenger by the Kyle recently en route to the Ancient Colony.

Some important steps are being taken in connection with educational matters there which are destined to produce marked improvements. The same difficulties which exist in Nova Scotia, scores of teachers and inadequate remuneration and various other conditions exist also to a somewhat accentuated extent. Among the steps being taken to improve the status of schools and the teaching profession generally, are the establishment of a Normal College at St. John's where the best available talent will be secured to impart instruction in the theory and practice of teaching and school management. Conducted under the best conditions, the effect will be felt in a marked way after the first year of operation. For the purpose of raising the status of teaching, particularly in the small and scattered sections, Supervisors will visit at stated intervals, and it is proposed to send a number of teachers showing special aptitude to some of the best Normal Colleges in Canada and in the United States to become thoroughly versed in the best ways of imparting instruction so as to secure the most satisfactory results. When these teachers attain a special degree of efficiency they will become supervisors on return to Newfoundland, and will visit schools with a much greater frequency than has been possible through inspectors, possibly about once a month. Faulty methods in instructions and management will be indicated to inexperienced teachers who will thus get the benefit of expert assistance with no cost to themselves. Practical adjustment in actual working conditions is better than tons of theory only. Time prevented reference to a number of other important considerations involved. Dr. Barnes strikes one casually as a man of keen insight and good administration ability, alive to existing conditions and prepared to actively apply remedies for the improvement of these.

Evening schools will be further extended in their operations, holding sessions from November till April, and the question of libraries for the smaller schools is receiving considerable attention. Of course, their establishment in the larger centres was made long ago, but in the rural schools there is still opportunity for much advancement in this regard. The best selections will be made of books to combine entertainment and instruction with literary stimulus.

Kearney's NEW FALL HATS ARE IN.

As stocratic Stetson Velours; dignified Stetson Soft Felts; Christy's, Borsalinos from 'way across the water. America, England, Italy contributed their finest products, from the hands of master hatters, making this a wonderful showing of the World's Best Hats.

And every Kearney Hat sold must suit.

We would not tamper with the finely blocked lines of such famous hats, would not impair their fit, by selling you an ill-looking, ill-fitting hat. There is little need of this, such a marvelous range of styles and sizes are here that the "right hat" comes easy.

With us, always, "the customer must be satisfied."
