

The Rival clansmen

A Scottish Vendetta.

"Your wish shall be gratified," cried M'Leod, as he saw a number of the clansmen appear with four busts upon their shoulders.

Another cheer was the response, and the clan were off. In all the force numbered over forty, and several were left behind to guard the Castle in absence.

As they passed out of the gate, they observed several of the windows of the Castle lit up, at one of which the Chief-tain's sister, with her companions, could be distinctly seen gazing after them and waving their hands encouragingly.

Again did the wild cry of "MacLeod gu brath! Bas do ramhaid!" rend the air, and, confident of success, the M'Leods pursued swiftly forward.

Little was said during the journey to the loch—the old Chief preserving a strict silence. The Witch of Ben-Lair, too, seemed to be occupied with her own thoughts, and Gordon did not seek to interrupt either.

The Lowlander then fell into a deep reverie, his mind being filled with speculations as to how he was to discover the proofs of Jeannie's marriage with Ian M'Kenzie.

She had told him that the ceremony was performed in Edinburgh, in a house in the High Street or in the Canongate, she could not be sure which, and that the man who performed it appeared to be a minister whom she had heard Ian address as Mr. Blakie.

To Gordon, search for this house and its occupants seemed like searching for a needle among hay. But he had some hopes that he might be able to trace the minister, who he thought was almost certain to be known by a good many people in the city.

He had intended to start for the Lowlands with his sister at once, but he felt that he could not do it without leaving whatever aid he could in the recovery of Hector M'Leod.

The hope that he might be able to meet Ian M'Kenzie also filled his breast, and he eagerly pushed on with the others.

Now and then a muttered imprecation would burst from one or other of the clansmen against the M'Kenzies and the Caterans, showing how deeply they felt the insult which had been offered to the house of M'Leod, and that they were determined to exact retribution.

When the party had reached the margin of the Loch they at once descended the steep sides of the cliffs which bound it—no easy task—and, launching the boats in the water, embarked, and headed for the upper end of the Loch.

To the Electors of the Town of Guelph GENTLEMEN.—Having been solicited by a large number of the ratepayers to become a candidate for the office of Reeve for the year 1874, I now beg to offer myself for that position.

During the six years I have served you in the Council (half of which term has been as Deputy Reeve) I trust my conduct has been such as to merit your approval, and entitle me to a further expression of your confidence.

Should you honor me by electing me to the Reeveship, I shall, without fear or favor, serve you to the utmost extent of my ability.

I am, gentlemen, Your obedient servant, GEORGE HOWARD.

To the Municipal Electors of the Town of Guelph.

GENTLEMEN.—I am indeed, strictly by the solicitations of many friends among yourselves, to offer myself to serve you in the Town and County Councils during the coming year as one of your Deputy Reeves. In doing so I will only say that should you express your confidence by electing me I will honestly and faithfully endeavor to discharge the duties devolving on me, and use the position for no other purpose than that of forwarding, according to my most careful judgment, the property of the Town.

During the last twelve years I have noted with attention the various current matters affecting our welfare as a community, and feel therefore some that prepared to take a share in directing our public affairs. It is impossible for me to make a personal canvass. If there were no other reasons, my business engagements forbid it, and you will therefore, I trust, not impute its absence to neglect or discourtesy.

I am, Gentlemen, Respectfully yours, CHAS. RAYMOND.

The Recorder says that Brockville is badly in need of street indicators. People living there for years do not know the name of the street they live on.

BREAKFAST.—Epps's Cocoa.—GUELPH AND COMPAGNIES.—By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills.—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Each packet is labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists, London."
