The adjourned sessions were held at the court house this morning. Judge Elliot, who was present, stated that it would be unnecessary for him in future to attend these adjourned sessions, and the magistrates present could elect their own chairman. Mr. Murray Anderson was then appointed obsimms. The charges against trates present could elect their own chairman. Mr. Murray Anderson was then appointed chairman. The charges against Chief Schram and Detective Graham were taken up. The complaint was preferred by a man named Breen, one of the men concerned in the recent cocklight. It was alleged that the fine imposed had been put only Graham and not by a magistrate. The charges were dismissed in both cases. Two new constables were appointed.

HAVE THEY A CLUE?

A Hat Found Which Has Been Identified as Mr. B. Sifton's.

Yesterday afternoon some of the party carrying on the search for the missing Mr. Sifton, of St. Johns, came upon footprints leading through a field owned by Mr. Thos. Fraleigh, and after following them for some distance they found a hat which some recognized as belonging to the missing man, and the one which he had worn when last seen on Monday night. In the immediate seen on Monday night. In the immediate vicinity of the hat the ground bore marks of several feet or, if made by one, the person making them had been bewildered and wandered round in a circle. A short distance from the hat the sod was hard and no trace of footmarks could be seen. The hat was found about 50 rods from the Proof Line or about one mile from Mr. Sifton's residence.

The fire was given its quietus before any damage was done. obliberated all marks of any kind in their eageness to search for a clue. As the hat would show that Mr. Sifton had been coming towards the city instead of going home it serves to strengthen the opinion that he missed his road and perished. It is thought that if such is the case he could not have gone much further than where the hat lay, as the tramping might easily be accounted for by the man's exhaustion. The entire party are now searching the underbrush and are in hopes of recovering the body within the next 24 hours.

Mrs. Sifton, mother of Mrs. J. W. Morden, West avenue south, who has been visiting at her daughter's here, has been called to her home in London owing to the sickness of her husband. Mr. Sifton has been so much exposed to the weather in endeavoring to find some trace of his brother, B. E. Sitton, of St. Johns, a village near London, that he has contracted a severe cold, and if he consulted his own health he would be in bed instead of prosecuting the search for the missing man.—[Hamilton Times.

whom will hear with regret of his illness.

Wood thieves are enjoying quite a harvest from the vicinity of Garfield avenue and Queen street. One resident there got in several cords, and the first night missed a large quantity. The same thing happened the next night, when he determined to try and catch the thief. So he sat up nearly the whole night with a gun and a bulldog, but towards morning, thinking his woodpile would be all right, he went to bed to have a rest. What was his astonishment on going out at the break of day to find that while he had been having his little rest part of his wood had disappeared. Another resident complained of similar treatment and vows all sorts of vengeance if he catches the thief.
