Italy Taking Steps to Strengthen Her Army—Bismarck's Chances of Election.

Lord Randolph Churchill Will Write Up His African Travels for the London Graphic.

PARIS, April 17.—The Figaro, in an evidently inspired account of the scenes at the opening of Prince Napoleon's will, states that, during the reading of that document, when a clause was reached in which Prince Louis was ordered to read the correspondence between the Prince and the Princess Clothilde, in order to be able to higher the merits of the separation of his parents, Prince Louis sprang to his feet with an indignant and tearful protest crying: "Never, never, my mother, you who always showed such adorable abnegation, I will never consent to sit in judgment upon you. It is my duty to return to your hands all correspondence without reading a single word." The Princess fell weeping in her son's arms, and all present embraced one another in a spirit of family reunion. PARIS, April 17.—The Figaro, in ROME, April 17.—The Italian chamber of deputies has approved a bill extending the age of military liability three years. Henceforth every citizen is liable to military service up to his forty-second year. This is only one out of a number of steps which are being taken to strengthen the military resources of that country. The measures are not very popular and, together with the increasing burdens of taxation, are adding to the general feeling of discontent among the poorer classes.

VIENNA, April 17.—Queen Natalie of ervia has had her rebellious spirit stirred by a report that the efforts to proscribe her by a report that the efforts to prescribe her from Servia were about to be renewed. She has issued a declaration, calculated to strike terror to the souls of her enemies, that on the day when the decree excluding her from Servia is promulgated, her memoirs will be published in Paris. The partisans of ex-King Milan are not likely to underrate the significance of this declaration. The revelations which Natalie has it in her power to make would complete the ruin of that least admirable of kings in sxile.

Bismarck's Chances of Election.
Berlin, April 17.—Final election returns show a remote chance that Bismarck may show a remote chance that Bismarca may be defeated on the re-ballot. The prince, however, gives no sign of retiring from the field. The element of possible danger, will, it is expected, attimulate the national liberals to poll a heavier vote and secure Bismarck's election. The Kaiser is said to be anxious.

(Special to THE COLONIST.)

New Westminster, B. C., April 18.—

J. Hill, president of the Great Northern; R. H. Beckler, chief engineer, and J. J. Donovan, chief engineer of the Fairhaven and Southern, reached Liverpool, this morning, by special train and crossed by the steamer to Westminster. They were met by the promoters of the Westminster-Southern railway, with whom a conference was held, and then the party returned to Liverpool and dined in Mr. Hill's private laws. After lunch, the terminal faculties at Liverpool were discussed and arranged. They are to be complete and in accord with the importance of the northern terminus of the road. The immediate commencement is of regular passenger service between Liverpool, Fairhaven and Seattle was decided on, and trains will be running before the end of the month. Mr. Hill's visit completes the formslities in connection with the official taking over of the Fairhaven and Southern and Westminster-Southern roads. After concluding all arrangements, the party returned by rail to Fairhaven.

LONDON, April 18, 1891.—A Rome dispatch says that the Italian Govern-ment is taking steps to ascertain the whereabouts of the two murderers, Bevivinected with the robbery and killing of a railway paymaster in the United States. The charge that the Italian authorities have not done their duty in aiding to bring these men to justice has made a deep impression in Rome, although it cannot be used by Signor Criapi against the Rudini administration; the murderers having fled to Italy during Signor Crispi's premierably. Some of the Italian newspapers, notably, a semi-official organ, claim that the American alleged grievances against Italy are foreign to the Italian newspapers, notably, a semiofficial organ, claim that the American alleged grievances against Italy are foreign to the subject, and should not be considered at this time. Such is not, however, the general view among the foreign residents in Italy, so far as it has received public utterance. The American controversy has led to a discussion of Italy's financial condition. The Rudini ministry finds it impossible to keep its promise to make ends meet by economies, without further taxation. There is a normal deficit of thirty-six millions of francs and this is increasing rapidly. The only choice is between additional taxes or a reduction of the army to a standard that would remove Italy from efficient membership in the Triple Alliance. The probability is that taxes will be increased, as the country will bear new exactions with more equanimity,
for the reason that its material condition shows great improvement. Italy is growing

CROFTERS' AFFAIRS IN PARLIAMENT.

The renewal of the Crofter's agitation is likely to give the British Government a deal of trouble. The Crofters have many active sympathizers in the House of Commons who have been waiting for an opportunity to raise a debate in regard to the working of the Crofter's Act, and the general condition of the class affected.

Dr. Clark has obtained first place on Friday, the list of May, for a general resolution on the subject. A protracted debate is certain. Even if there were a lack of interest in the matter the Opposition bench can hardly help moving in the case. The Crofter's have some friends on the Conservative benches and the impression prevails among them that of recent years the high handed legal view has been allowed to prevail too much in this, as in other branches of the land question in Scotland, much more than it was allowed to prevail during the first place of the land question in Scotland, much more than it was allowed to prevail during the first place of the subject. Bullying Rangers of the Ponds That Were the Scavengers of the Seas.

"Prof. Brown Goode compares the taste of catfish meat to pate de fois gras," Prof. Bashford Dean of the College of the City of New York says in a paper in the Fish Commissioners' coming report, The catfish is a quarrelsome, hardy and mudloving dish. Fish culturists affect to despise it because it is ugly and a fighter. It grows sometimes to three pounds in weight, but or dinarily it ranges from half a pound to a pound. Nearly all fish die when confined a short time in muddy, stagnant water, but when the vivifying oxygen is exhausted from the water the catfish rises to three pounds in weight, but or dinarily it ranges from half a pound to a pound. Prof. Dean finds evidences that the catfish has a rudimentary eye in the middle of its forehead. There is a medium skull opening which appears to connect the surface of the head with the hamin. There are evidences that a lense connect the surface of the head with the brain. There are evidences that a lens once existed, and it is believed from microscopic examination of the brain that the opening affords a sensation of light to the fish. Prof. Dean argues that the catifish is a descendant of monster placederms that once existed in the waters of the earth in a remote in the waters of the earth in a remote geological epoch; that from the known habits of the catfish in burying itself in the mud, with only its nose sticking out of the coze, it must have been in its original size a terrible scourger of the sea, able te sea before, behind, and

THE DEADLY PIE. It Is the Great American Depor It Is the Great American Depopulator, Says This Authority.

"The risks which New York men take with their digestion," said the proprietor of a group of well-known restaurants to a New York Sun man, "is a constant source of surprise to me. Heavy pie and pulpy pudding are bolted at the very time when careful enting should be rigorously attended to. I sit and look on at times in my different restaurants with absolute amazeent restaurants with absolute amaze-ment at the judgment, or rather lack of judgment, which men exhibit at the table. We have two throngs of customers. The first rush comes about 9:30 in the morning. It is composed of brokers, business men, clerks and office em-ployes, who have grown into the habit of rising late and rushing down to the office work of the day on time. They could easily get their breakfast at their board-ing-houses or at home if they would ng-houses or at home if they would rise a half hourearlier, but most of them rise a half hour earlier, but most of them are up late at night, and the temptation of a longer nap in the morning is too alluring to resist. So they hurry down-town, open the mail, start things a going and then rush to the nearest restaurant for breakfast. It does not hurt any man to take a little exercise before he eats in the morning, and undowntiedly a delay in the first meal of hurt any man to take a little exercise before he eats in the morning, and undoubtedly a delay in the first meal of the day would not do them any particular harm if they would be careful about the character of their food. But after working two hours on an empty stomach they come in in violent haste, order a cocktail and then eat pastry and sweets enough to ruin the digestion of an ostrich. They usually start in with roast beef or some other dish that is ready, and wind up with minee pie or a boiled apple dumpling. I know many a business man who comes in and consumes three or four dishes and is out of the place again in less than fifteen minutes. At lunch time they come in again and load up with an cyster patty or beefsteak pie, or some other dish in which rich pastry is an important factor. This second rush of trade is even more interesting than the first, because it shows how the habit of eating pastry grows. It is no unusual thing to see a man forty years of age take wheat cakes, sausages and mince pie for his luncheon. He bolts the sausage, covers his cakes with rich sirup and has his pie served hot and sprinkled an inch deep with powdered sugar. He is invariably an advanced dyspeptic in appearance, and for some unaccountable reason he seems to succeed in business. It does not do any good to sneer at the pie-caters of New York because half the railroad presidents, telegraph superintendents and influential men of affairs of this town eat things which cause a man of gastronomical intelligence to shudder. Most of the absorbed and nervous financiers and business men die at fifty, and everybody says it is due to overwork. All a mistake. Pie is the fell destroyer."
