

CHAPTER XXV.

"Little Catherine."—Generosity of the Foundress.—The Lord Bishop of Downmore.—Chief events of his life.—His connection with the Foundress.—His love for the Institute..... 248

CHAPTER XXVI.

Virtues of the Foundress.—Faith.—Hope.—Charity.—Prudence.—Justice.—Fortitude.—Temperance.—Humility.—Obedience.—Chastity.—Poverty.—Devotion to the Blessed Sacrament.—Anecdotes..... 254

CHAPTER XXVII.

The First Branch.—The wreck off Dunleary harbor.—The excommunication, and its consequences.—Sussex-place House.—Trials.—Mother McAuley hiding from the sheriff.—Her letters.—A beautiful specimen.—Kingstown convent relinquished.—Reopened.—Glasthule..... 278

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Tullamore Foundation.—Sermon of Very Rev. Dr. Curtis, S. J.—Mother Mary Anne Doyle.—Father Mathew.—Generosity of the Foundress.—Tullamore will neither lend nor give.—"A bitter scolding for Tullamore, and three cheers for Carlow."..... 287

CHAPTER XXIX.

Mother McAuley and her absent children.—Rhymes.—Her mode of preparing Sisters for Superiority.—Her advice to a young Superior.—The Charleville Foundation.—Very Rev. Mr. Croke.—Sister M. Angela Dunne.—Mother McAuley refuses to give a colony to her friend, the Bishop of Ossory.—Other applicants..... 294

CHAPTER XXX.

Very Rev. Andrew Fitzgerald, D. D.—The McAuley boys.—The Doctor and the Monk.—Young men's sermons.—Right Rev. Dr. Nolan.—Dr. Doyle's error.—Mother McAuley's temptation, and its remedy.—She loses two of her Sisters.—Sets out for Carlow.—The Sisters' entrée.—Schools for the middle classes.—The silver breakfast service.—Death of Bishop Nolan.—Letter of the Foundress.—Letter from Dr. Fitzgerald..... 305

CHAPTER XXXI.

The Cork Foundation.—Miss Barbara Goold.—"Saint Marie's of the Isle."—The Foundress incurs the displeasure of the Bishop.—"Catherine the Less."—An eligible postulante.—The Meeting of the Waters.—Largo, Lento, e Grave.—Death of Little Catherine.—Her Aunt's letter.—Dr. Murphy.—Severe retort.—A heavy purse and a fair escutcheon.—The English Sisters.—A compliment..... 322