

Heath's Modern Language Series: Freytag's Friedrichs des Grossen. (Boston: D. C. Heath & Co.) One of the best numbers of Messrs. Heath & Co.'s Modern Language Series is the present one, edited by Dr. Herman Hager, Lecturer in the German Language and Literature in Owens College, Manchester. In a brief, but interesting and useful introduction, the editor speaks of Dr. Freytag's Essay, and compares it with other writings on the same subject. The Notes are full and satisfactory.

Macmillan's Elementary Classics: Livy, Book XXI. Adapted from Mr. Cape's Edition. With Notes and Vocabulary by J. E. Melbush, M.A. (London: Macmillan & Co., and New York.) This excellent school edition of the Twenty-first Book of Livy is complete in itself, with full and judicious Notes, a brief Historical Introduction and a Vocabulary. The latter is a very satisfactory piece of work, the quantities are marked, the nouns and adjectives partly declined, and the verbs conjugated.

Fractions. By Helen F. Page, of the State and Normal Training School, New Britain, Conn. (Boston: Ginn & Co.) Miss Page has provided another aid for the teacher in the shape of a pamphlet filled with diagrams, figures, etc., brightly coloured and ingeniously arranged. The teachers of primary classes, especially in ungraded schools, will, we should judge, find it very useful.

The English Language. By Thomas Page. Seventeenth Edition. (London: Moffatt & Paige.) 1s. 6d. A historical account of the growth of the English language, with Notes on Derivations, etc., occupies the first part of this useful primer. The second, and by far the larger part, is devoted to short biographical sketches of the lives of English authors. Though these are brief they are certainly satisfactory and well adapted for use in junior classes.
