Cleanliness in all our domestic arrangements, cleanliness in the care of all our domestic animals, cleanliness in everything is most desirable and commendable. But how many things are there about us which are not as clean as they should be.

And this not always because of the great amount of labor required to keep them so, but more from sheer carelessness and thoughtlessness. There are many people who are clean and tidy about their persons and all their domestic and household arrangements, but who may neglect, perhaps, one little thing they may have about them. There are
