

estimated to be sold in pails or without peroxide-processing. This also contributed to decreasing the quantity of salted herring roe products at the end of year.

(4) The decreased price of Alaskan raw roe enabled processors to sell to smaller local markets in October before the season started in major wholesale centres.

(5) Other fish roe prices were very high and many fish roe products traders wished to deal with salted herring roe products.