

CONTENTS.

xvii

CHAPTER XIII.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF MATERIAL PROGRESS.

	PAGE
Increase of the Population of British America.—Immigration and Settlement.—Character of the Colonists.—Expansion in Agricultural Production.—Effects of the American War, the Crimean War, and the Reciprocity Treaty.—Trade and Tariff Development.—Inter-Provincial Exchange of Products.—The Railway Movement.—An Era of Construction and Wild Speculation.—Sir Francis Hincks.—The Grand Trunk and the Intercolonial Lines.—Canal Construction and Enlargement.—Revenues and Expenditures of the Provinces.—Banks and Banking.—British as against American Methods and Principles.—The Bank of Upper Canada, Merchants' and Bank of Montreal.—Ship-building and Ocean Steamers.—Development of Fisheries.—Manufactures Grow very Slowly.—General Progress.....	324

CHAPTER XIV.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF POPULAR PROGRESS.

Political Experiments and Legislation.—Education and its Progress.—Dr. Egerton Ryerson.—Continued Use of American Text-books in Upper Canada.—Separate School Legislation.—Dr. Ryerson's System and Ideals.—Bishop Strachan and University Education.—New Colleges in Every Direction.—Lower Canada and Jean Baptiste Meilleur.—Character and Career of M. Chauveau.—McGill University Founded.—Sir William Dawson.—Bishop's College, Lennoxville.—Schools in Nova Scotia.—Legislation of Dr. (Sir Charles) Tupper.—Steady Progress There and in New Brunswick.—Education in Prince Edward Island, in Manitoba, and in British Columbia.—Religious Development.—Decadence of Sectarian Bitterness and Gradual Elimination of the Churches from Politics.—Progress of the Denominations in Numbers.—Methodist Unity Evolving Out of Many Divisions.—The Church of England and Politics.—Splendid Work Done by its Missionaries and
