SCHOOL CURRICULUM AROUSES INTEREST

At last night's meeting of the Home and School Council in the Central Y. M. C. A., presided over by Mrs. Ada Courtice, the president, a resolution was adopted which stated that the council was pleased to hear of Dr. Cody's appointment, and proffered its hearty aid in every strong and forward movement concerning the great problems in which the council was interested, more especially in character building, and conservation of the nation and the development of its resources, thru the purity and intelligence of its homes, its schools and its agencies of growth. The resolution also endorsed Dr. Cody's democratic ideals as expressed publicly.

ressed the meeting on "Modern icies of Education," in which she expressed the opinion that at the present time the various school boards suffered from faddists. "What is wanted," she declared, "is men who know life. Men who have an idea of what the masses of the people today want for their children. The nation depends on sound bodies and sound minds." She stated that 80 per cent. of the children had to turn out to work at the ages of from ten to four-teen, and teachers had no right to take five, six or seven years of a child's life and then send them out unequipped for life. She maintained that the school curriculum as it stood today did not deal correctly with the life of the masses of the children, and there were subjects that should be inated and other subjects put in, such as home making, parent craft and sex hygiene. She stated that girls should be taught to sew, cook, should also receive instruction in child rearing and housekeeping. There were many members of the board of education present, and Dr. Caroline Brown stated that she thought the curriculum was a hopeless thing, and thought they should start all over Mrs. James L. Hughes said what was wanted was an evolution, not a revolution. She said everything in the curriculum had a reasonable purpose behind it, and those who wanted to destroy it had nothing to offer in its place.

Frank Dobson, one of the funniest lankiest comedians on the circuit, was a tremendous success in modern eccentricities—dancing, singing and talking with equal success. The upto-the-minute calibre of his songs and tories won spontaneous approval.
Very cleverly arranged character songs written especially for the artiste's use by Blair Treynor were rendered by Ethel MacDonough, whose captivating personality made her act most attractive. Comfort and King provided a rich bit of comedy in their "Coontown Divorcons," while Bert and Broderick in a repertoire of dances gave a lightning-like exhibition. Eddy Duo, mid-air entertainers, and the British Gazette complete this week's mediately attracted to one another. She tells him her story and the reason of her hatred for men. On her wedding day, 17 years previous, her fiance did not appear and her father, mortified by the scandal, sent her from his home, and the IIIe she was leading was the result. Of course, the man turns out to be the missing lover, who, thru an accident, was prevented from appearing at his own wedding, and finally all ends as it was originally intended it should. Capt. John Graham, R.A.F., is home on leave from France, and is the edy provides the usual laugh, while guest of his sister, Mrs. J. Edgerly, the Screen Telegram shows some interesting pictures.

wagon, a grind organ and a haif crazy chap who helps to attract the crowd.

Tony comes to a sleepy little town one Sunday afternoon to find many hypocrites in the community. Chief of interest to the organ grinder being the mayor, whom a year ago he had found in a New York saloon, degenerated. The mayor is about to turn the little hired girl from his doors because she has gone to a cheap dance hall to forget her lonely drudgery and seek pleasure among "folks" her own age. Tony arrives just in time to disclose the uncomfortable fact that the mayor isn't flawless as regards character and that the chap who was dancing with the little hired girl her dispit before was the minister's son betrothed to the mayor's daughter. And then when Tony has shown them what cads they are he packs up his lunch box and is just about to depart on his care-free way when the little hired girl says she wants to go to and the sunny faced Italian is rewarded for one of the good deads in his life.

Booth Takkington wrote this simple, unassuming kitle story—a comedy in four acts. But only Otis Skinner could make "Mister Antonio" is certainly one of the good things of the senotional Italian role and his infectious good nature make a characterization which stands out like a flawlessly cut cameo in a perfect setting. "Mister Antonio" is certainly one of the good things of the season.

Bradley and Ardine head an excellent warm weather variety bill this week at Shea's in an exceedingly smart dancing act. Excellent execution, speed and novelty won this clear constant their well deserved applause, while Ardine's wardrobe was particularly dainty. The new story in which Mae Marsh is seen at the Regent this week is entirely different from any which, as a Goldwyn star, she has produced. "All Woman" shows her under different circumstances from most of her previous plays, and is welcomed as much for this difference as for any

As the heir to a half interest in suburban hotel, she leaves the fac-tory where she has been working, but is greatly disappointed when she finds that the place is little more than an ordinary saloon. Altho tempted toreturn to the city and leave the place alone, she finally decides to stay, and from that moment things happen. There is a political contest on at the time, and in order to help the candidate who subsequently becomes her sweetheart, she allows herself to be placed in a compromising position.

After a series of interesting adventures both win and the climax of the story is indeed interesting. Alan Turner is giving a request program this week which proved very enjoyable yesterday. The Regent orchestra and the Regent Graphic were quite up to the mark, proving popular and delightfully entertaining.

WESTERN MINING STORY

"M'hss." Bret Harte's story of a western mining camp with Mary Pickford in the title role, is the feature picture at the Allen this week. The play and the part are well suited to Mary. The wild, unconquerable tom-boyish sprite of the western hills with a natural fondness for the great outdoors seems the one kind of childish character Miss Pickford portrays the best. The story, in all its details, is too well known to be told, but the characters of the story are ones that lend themselves wonderfully well to screening. "Bummer" Smith, the drunken father of M'liss, with his source of money; Hilde-garde the hearth story. garde, the hen, the sheriff, the Mexi-can villain, Yuba Jim, the driver of the old stage coach, and the school teacher from the east, who brings better things into the life of the motherless child of nature—all these fit in the beautiful background that the verdure-clad hills make for them.
