Break in the Communication.

"The War Office closed at midnight without reporting the restoration of communication with General Roberts. This break has been suspected since Wednesday, owing to the absence of official information respecting the release of the prisoners at Waterval, which Lord Roberts would naturally have reported. That day the wires were cut at Roodeval station, north of Kronstadt, by Free State raiders, estimated to be 2000 strong with six guiss.

This force must have run in between Gen.
Methuen, at Lindley, and Gen. Coivile, at Heilbron, and reached the railway near the Rhenoster River. This stroke smust the Rhenoster River. This stroke must be set down to the credit of Dewet, who has shown himself to be a daring commander during the campaign. He contrived to capture the Yeomany, in spite of Gen. Rundle's advance from Senekal and Gen. Methuen's forced marches for the relief of the garrison, and immediately disposed of his prisoners and struck across the country for the rallway, whence the relief country for the following to normal tribute to the wise forethought of former administrators of the municipal affairs.

Inha Macdanald & Co.

Now in stock as the south African war, so far as the average Britisher is concerned, is over. With the exception of the possible capture of President Kruker and the home-coming of Lord Roberts, his calendar of probabilities contains nothing of vital interest. Already China is becoming a keen rival of South Africa as the burning question of the day. The capture of 500 members of the day. The capture of 500 members of the day. The capture of 500 members of the large in England, including The Times, believed into a fit of despondency, has passed como a fit of despondency, has passed com-ratively unnoticed. The work of stamp-c out the rebellion, for such, according the British point of view, is the nature the opposition now encountered, is too

Many Will Settle There.

All the letters from the front indicate an increasting desire on the part of a large proportion of the irregular and colonial forces; to settle down in this fertile land. The British High Commissioner, SIr Alfred Milner, it is learned, is devoring his whole affect that was the South African accounts. One version credits the Boer commander with offering to sur-dent as brilliant, but few details are added to the official accounts. One version credits the Boer commander with offering to surrender on Thursday upon certain conditions, and states that General Buller declines, and states that General Buller declined to treat with him. As Buller himself neglected to report this detail, the information is probably untrustworthy.
