City Hall Notes.

Work on the Sewerage System Will Soon Begin.

If There Is No Long Debate on the Merits of the Contract and Day Labor Systems—The School Board, Tonight.

The commencement of actual work on the sewerage system is in sight. The one remaining thing to be decided is whether the work will be done by contract or day labor. The Trades and Labor Council prefer the latter, and their communication to that effect has been sent to the Board of Works. A number of the aldermen think that so big an undertaking can better be done by the contract plan, under such conditions as will assure all the labor being done by London men. Others will vote that the work be done directly by the city, under the engineer's supervision, as municipal jobs are now being performed. Which ever system is chosen, it ought to be adopted quickly, as the season is getting late. Mr. Willis Chipman has been notified of his appointment as consulting engineer last night, and is expected in the city tomorrow. All the plans are ready. The Board of Works will likely deal with the matter on Thursday night.

The regular meeting of the School Board may be rendered extremely lively by a clause of No. 1 committee's report recommending that vertical writing be optional in the public schools. The trustees entertain decided opinions for and against the new system, and there may be a warm debate. This is the only controversial question likely to arise. The board will meet in the engineer's old office, the Cinematograph people occupying the council chamber. Mr. George Ewen, corner Hill and Adelaide streets, has taken out a permit for a story and a half brick residence to cost $850. Mr. Wm. Beaton will erect a brick cottage on Central avenue, between Maitland and William streets. Estimated cost, $900.

THE POLICE COURT.

Elizabeth Rice Fined $5 for Being Drunk—Other Cases.

There were four cases before the police magistrate this morning—three men and one woman. The latter was Elizabeth Rice, charged with being drunk. Her record went against her. She sat on a chair near the stove, and when the magistrate called her name she stood up and began to plead to be let go. "You can't let me go," said the magistrate. "You have been up before me so many times. I'll take a small fine, if you please, mister."

The P. M. was inclined to smile, but said slowly, as he wrote: "Five dollars or 20 days." She paid the fine. Lawrence Fortner was taxed $1 or three days for riding on the sidewalk. He had his dollar in his hand all ready and waiting for the P. M. to say the word. Patrick O'Mara, a drunk, was discharged.

Not a single Reply to Our Question—Not a Failure to Cure—A Half Million Users of Dodd's Kidney Pills Satisfied.

Toronto, Nov. 2.—Without a single verified question: "Does anyone, anywhere, know of any case wherein Dodd's Kidney Pills have failed to cure any kidney disease, at any stage?"

We estimate that half a million people must have joined in using two and a half million boxes already sold in Canada, and that not a single complaint—not one failure to cure. Now, reader, here's one for you: Do you know of any case of kidney disease, or of heart failure, the victim having used Dodd's Kidney Pills?

BURNED OUT.

Bellevue, Nov. 2.—W. H. Ketcheson's dwelling, on Charles street, took fire Sunday night shortly after 8 o'clock and was completely gutted. Most of the contents were destroyed. Loss about $2,500; insured for $2,000.

Chatham, Nov. 2.—Paul Demain's house, at Stony Point, caught fire from the chimney Saturday and was burned to the ground. The loss is estimated at about $1,000, covered by insurance. The Welsh elevator, well stocked with grain, also caught fire, but was saved by prompt action.

Impressions of England.

A Blind Preacher's Travels in the Old Land.

In Wesley Hall—which for the past couple of weeks has been the scene of many notable gatherings and the mark of early eloquence of many powerful speakers has been enjoyed—a gratified audience listened to a most interesting lecture by Dr. Milburn, chaplain to the American Congress, upon the subject, "What a Blind Man Saw in England."

It was 8:15 when Dr. Milburn, led by Dr. Eccles, mounted the platform. The lecturer is a fluent and lively manner told of his visit to England, the great hospitality that had been shown him there, and the modes by which he "saw." The lecturer first told of the great inconvenience to which he was put when they reached Liverpool—a party of ten persons, who, like all Americans when they went abroad, were called "Yankees." They had traveled in first-class style, upholding their national reputation for vanity and extravagance. It had been many years since he had visited England the first time, and the lecturer in a humorous way, presented the difficulty the party had in securing rooms. They had gone to three hotels before they could be accommodated, and the landlord of the house had almost fainted when they told him they were ten in number, and people stood and gazed at them as if they had been a traveling menagerie. They had had so many visitors during the night that they could not sleep, and the next day they delegated an experienced traveler to London to inform the people that "we" were coming, and requesting the landlord of the hotel, if he didn't have room, to enlarge his place. They had found it pretty much the same in London as in Liverpool. "We went to the large hotels," said the doctor, "but were unable to get rooms, as the next day was 'Derby day,' and we were recommended to one a little distance away. We went there, and when we asked for rooms—there are twelve of us, and we want a room for each—the poor man hardly seemed to know which end he was standing on, and, like a true Briton, he went to consult his wife. He returned with a grave countenance, but not so grave as some men I have seen come from the same quarter, and informed us that he could take us in in instalments—four today, four tomorrow, and four the next day. When it had come to my turn, I had no sooner crossed the threshold than my nose, which is not much of an ornament, but a very efficient member, told me it was a very desirable place to leave as soon as possible."

The lecturer told how he had gone into the dining room and heard one of the party say to an Englishman: "You don't know about hotels here. Why, you should see our hotels. Instead of 50 people in the dining room, you see 250 to 500." "Oh," said the Englishman, "you have not been to Birmingham. There is a dining room three miles long, and all the waiters are on horseback." Where the American reality fails, the Englishman's Shakespearean qualities make amends. The largest hotels at that time would only accommodate 150.

Referring to the question of titles, he said: "I think the English are almost as impressionable upon the subject of titles as are the people in our country, for there every fourth man you meet is a doctor of divinity, and the rest are lords, barons, knights, colonels or majors, while the women are also taking titles to themselves. The English are very particular in preserving his individuality intact, maintains his personality as a sacred thing, and you rarely ever hear of a party of more than two or three Englishmen formed for the purpose of making a laud of pleasure, and the few members of the party must be lifelong friends, or tied by bonds of love. We (Americans) like to go in droves and herds, like buffaloes and wild turkeys, to say nothing of wild geese, while John Bull does as I say, and of course, the hotels and the English are the result of this. But since that time a revolution has occurred. The migration of our blue-blooded aristocracy to Europe has aroused the English, and the men connected with the hotels have had their eyes opened."

He referred to the Englishman as the most hospitable man in the world, and how they told of how Englishmen received Americans. The way to gain an Englishman's hospitality was to go through his civility into his respect, through his respect into his confidence, and through his confidence into his hospitality and friendship. He said that John Bull was a friend for life.

The lecturer gave a glowing account of Westminster Hall and the House of Lords. He illustrated the Englishman speaking with the "hems and haws" and told how the "hears and haws" were on the mutual assistance plan. He spoke of the eloquence which was his, and then said: "You have had to listen to that. I who was nursed on the lap of Mrs. Columbia, sleep upon the wide and vast prairie, and quivered my thigh in the Mississippi and the Missouri—I that had from my earliest boyhood listened to the most immortal, imperishable, indescribable, unquenchable, indistinguishable, celebrated and oratorical men of the nation; who year after year had listened to the superb, sonorous, clamorous, clamorous speeches from orators, diplomats, and statesmen, whose voices had echoed, reverberated and culminated under the dome of the American Capitol, I who had listened to such transcendence such exaltations upon our broad and immeasurable continent, stretching from the Bostonian Atlantic to the great and glorious Pacific, with a gigantic chain of lakes upon the north and the gleaming of the tropical gulf upon the south, with the Alleghany and Rocky Mountains encircling the 'land of the free and the home of the brave,' and the American eagle soaring to the summit and screaming with outstretched wing over the land—Pluribus Unum. Just think how I felt!"

The speaker then dwelt upon his visit to Thomas Carlyle, and referred in a touching manner to England, which was ruled by a woman, in whom was found sweetness, tenderness and nobleness, and who was enshrined in the hearts of her people.

Concluding, he said: "I have come away from the motherland, for it is my motherland as well as yours, loving it the better than when I first landed upon her shore, and I can return to my native land, loving it a thousand times more than when I left. And may God multiply and strengthen the ties which bind these two countries together and suffer them not to be broken by the red hand of uncivilized war."

Local Brevities.

—The new room at the Collegiate Institute, rendered necessary by the overcrowding of the lower forms, was opened yesterday.

—Miss Dunbar, of the Talbot street school, and Miss Powell, of the Worsley road school, are both ill, and will probably not be able to resume duty before the New Year.

—Mr. Walter Brown, of Hyde Park, is visiting Rev. Wm. Penhall, of Court St. Mrs. Brown also intends to visit friends in various parts of Michigan before returning home.

—Subscriber asks: "Is the Detroit Free Press a Republican paper?" Answer—"The paper referred to has a long been, and now is, Democratic, but it does not support Bryan nor the free silver portion of the platform adopted at the recent Democratic convention in Chicago."

—There was a juvenile case before the magistrate this morning—that of a young East Ender, who has been in the habit of chasing and annoying a neighbor's little girl whenever she made her appearance on the street. The boy and his parents were cautioned, and the lad was allowed to go.

—The 55th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Delaney, of Windsor, was celebrated last week. The happy couple were residents of London for many years, and Mr. Delaney is still a G. T. R. conductor. A number of their friends assembled at their residence and presented Mr. and Mrs. Delaney with a nicely-worded address, expressive of their joy at the event.

—An Ottawa dispatch says: Mr. George Casey, M.P., has been in the capital since the close of the session, engaged in an insurance enterprise. He is securing the investment of stock in a new company, the Northern, of London, and the subscribed stock is now somewhere in the neighborhood of $60,000. It will very shortly enter the field in active competition with the companies already doing business.

—Mr. Joseph Sanders, school trustee and inspector for the Children's Aid Society, has made a tour of some of the schools, and was amazed to find indecent language and filthy pictures pencilled on the outhouses and fences. Mr. Sanders promises the boys who are inclined to spend their spare moments in such a detestable manner a reward of five cents. He has several cases in hand, and warns all school children against offenses of this kind.

—Following is the programme of the Woman's Morning Music Club piano recital for Wednesday morning, Nov. 4, at 11:30 o'clock: Mendelssohn, "Concerto in 2 Minor"; Miss McNab (orchestra accompaniment on second piano, Miss Morphy); Jules and Edith, "The Crucifixion"; Miss Eva Robyn and Mr. W. W. Knowles, Godard, (a) Etude, "Renouveau"; Schuman, (b) aria, (c) scherzo; Liszt, (d) Consolation, No. 3, (e) Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 11.

JAMES O'NEILL COMING.

Miss Margaret Anglin is Mr. James O'Neill's leading lady this season. This fact adds to the coming interest in Mr. James O'Neill's engagement in this city, as Miss Anglin is a daughter of the late Hon. Timothy Anglin, former Speaker of the House of Commons. During his career in the House, he has been on the stage as a successful actor, and has achieved a reputation as a leading lady to a star of Mr. O'Neill's brilliant luminosity. However, Mr. O'Neill's engagement in this city is not a new thing, as he has been in the city several times before, and his ability has not been misplaced. As her interpretations of Ophelia, Virginia, and other parts, she has shown a tritonic power. Besides she is a girl of great beauty, literary accomplishment and social graces. Mr. O'Neill will visit London this season.

THE PERENNIAL JOE MURPHY.

Joseph Murphy, who appears at the Grand on Saturday, has been playing "Sham Rhu" for more than a dozen years, and it is equal, as a money-maker, to the other one of Mr. Murphy's plays, "Sham Rhu," and yet when "Sham Rhu" was first produced (at New Orleans) the manager of the theatre took back on the stage, and shaking his hand at the famous Irish comedian, said, "No, no, Joe, it won't do; you don't know your business at Galveston the time you played again, and again the manager of the theatre declared that it would not do." Those verses, honestly given, and based upon long experience with plays and close observation as to audience, were incorrect. "Sham Rhu" is a success by virtue of its exquisite scenic effects, the charming presentation of the Irish characters, and the concise and effectively humorous story it relates. It is one of the winners' so earnestly sought after by local managers when making their season's booking.

BUSE VS. BUSE.

The trial of Henry Buse, charged by his wife Emily with the theft of five cattle, was concluded yesterday afternoon before Judge J. B. Smyth. Buse was committed for trial.

Constable Northgreaves, charged with aiding in the theft, was also tried, and the charge dismissed, as it was shown that in selling the cattle he was executing his bailiff's warrant.

Mrs. Buse, who was represented by Mr. Bessy, decided to bind herself over to indict Northgreaves before the grand jury. The section taken advantage of, and under which the indictment was made, is 595, of the criminal code, as follows: "If the justice discharges the accused and the person preferring the charge desires to prefer an indictment respecting the said charge, she may require the justice to bind her over to prefer and prosecute such an indictment, and thereupon the justice shall take her recognizance to prefer and prosecute an indictment against the accused before the court before which such accused would be tried, if such justice had committed him, and the justice shall deal with the recognizances, in the same manner as if he had committed the accused for trial."

Mr. B. was called up before the judge in a few days. Detective Northgreaves refuses to hand over the money for the cattle, $68, until authorized by the proper parties.

Mr. W. D. Cooper, of Virgil, who was thrown into a ditch by a runaway horse, and lay there all night, died at St. Catherine's Hospital.

Score Another Success . . . . .

We thought it would be so, and it is so. With all our extensive enlargements and improvements our spacious store is none too spacious to accommodate the crowds of buyers who day after day come to make selections from the largest and best stock of Drygoods in the city of London. We are not surprised at the success attending our efforts. Were the crowds to stay away we would be surprised, indeed, we would wonder greatly, as besides having a complete store and perfect appointments, we have a stock of such magnitude and elegance that it is not often seen gathered under one roof. This is not bombast, though a great deal of meaningless puffing is found in many advertisements. We always say what we mean and mean what we say, and as the proof of the pudding is in the eating come and see for yourselves. As we have looked after your interests in times past, so we will watch them in the future. Honest goods at low cash prices should keep our clerks always on the go, and when they are constantly busy we send out a lot of goods, and when we send out a lot of goods we require to buy big quantities to take their place, and by buying in such great quantities we effect a big saving, which you participate in. That's the way things are worked here. Always on the alert to buy; always on the alert to sell, and thus success after success crowns our efforts.

The War in Cuba.

Vessel Captured and Her Provisions Handed Over to the Insurgents.

Varying Accounts as to Maceo's Whereabouts—Havana to be Attacked.

Key West, Fla., Nov. 2.—Col. Guiseppe, formerly of the French army, and Col. Ortega, formerly of the Venezuelan army, with Lieut. Trias and Lieut. Carlos Garcia, arrived here today from Nassau. These men say they captured a Spanish vessel off the coast of Cuba and conveyed the crew and provisions to the insurgents, after which they embarked on board the captured vessel and sailed for Nassau. They also report having captured a Spanish vessel off the coast of Cuba and conveyed the crew and provisions to the insurgents, after which they embarked on board the captured vessel and sailed for Nassau. They also report having captured a Spanish vessel off the coast of Cuba and conveyed the crew and provisions to the insurgents, after which they embarked on board the captured vessel and sailed for Nassau.

Havana, Nov. 2.—The report that Antonio Maceo crossed the military line after attacking Artimosa and being repulsed with great loss, according to the official account, is again denied. It is stated that the insurgents upon that occasion made no attack upon the forts and were unable to capture the Spanish intrenchments. The Spanish troops are continuing their advance westward towards the insurgent strongholds without receiving any assistance from the troops stationed along the military line, which is being still further strengthened. Key West, Fla., Nov. 2.—A growl and well-informed Cuban here states that Maceo unquestionably crossed the military trocha, and with a small following has since marched through the entire province of Havana, and is now at Colon, in Matanzas. It is alleged that his mission there is to concentrate the forces of Ricardo, Trujillo, Rojas and other minor rebel leaders, numbering between 4,000 and 5,000 well-armed men. The ominous silence of Gomez is said to presage a series of important attacks on the principal cities within Havana and Matanzas provinces. It is said that Gomez will lay siege to Havana within 60 days.

There is a serious outbreak of diphtheria in Dorset, Muskoka, brought by men from a lumber camp near by. Epidemics of the same disease are also reported from Bruce and Simcoe counties.

Rossland, B. C., Nov. 3.—The Vornia, about two and a half miles south-east of here, and about twenty-eight hundred feet from Crown Point, has been sold to an eastern syndicate. Eighty-nine mineral claims were recorded in Nelson last week. Treasury and Shamrock claims in Cariboo Creek Camp, have been sold to Winnipeg capitalists. Silvermine looks well.

FOOT OF SNOW FELL

Pierre, S. D., Cut Off From the Outer World.

Huron, S. D., Nov. 3.—Five inches of snow fell here Sunday night, making a foot of snow on the ground. The storm north and west is reported very severe, and farmers are wholly unprepared for winter. Telegraph poles and wires are down between here and Pierre, and no communication with that city has been had by wire since Thursday evening. Trains are only slightly delayed.
