The three-heat racing on the grand circuit seems doomed. Horsemen generally are much opposed to it, and spectators who usually want a run for their money, desire a return to the old style, three in five. Several races at Detroit last week were very unsatisfactory, and there has been considerable howl put up over them. The fault was found with the excessive scoring that formerly prevailed, and it was fondly imagined that the new scheme would avoid that. Then the death of Sadie Mac came just at the height of the agitation, with the result that sentiment largely prevailed and the new plan was adopted. That it has been a failure is universally admitted. Nothing will prevent excessive scoring except good starters, and they will stop it quickly enough. So it looks as if we would go back to the old way after all.

It is still possible for the Chicago Cubs to beat the record and win 1

New York, July 29.-No challenge has been received by the New York Yacht Club for a race for the American cup to be held next year.

The sale of Thoney was the result of spirited bidding on the part of Mc-Graw and Manager Murray, of the Philadelphia Nationals.

Thoney will remain with Toronto until the end of the Eastern League season, when he will join the New been sold to the Giants. For what price cannot be learned, however. McCafferty said he felt he would 1 York street. lose Thoney at the end of the season anyway, and, therefore, took the chance of selling him now for a profit

Thoney could have been drafted in the fall for $1,500, but McGraw evidently was afraid that some manager might beat him to the player Thoney batted .294 last year in the Eastern League, ranking fifth. He had a fielding average of .947 in 1906 and stole 41 bases, ranking third in this department of the game.

If New York really paid $8,000 for Thoney it is a record price for a minor league player.

Cleveland paid $5,000 for Berger, the star pitcher of the Columbus American Association team. Joe Nealon cost the Pittsburg club $10,000 two years ago, but he got the money himself in the shape of a bonus.

The sale of Thoney for $8,500 calls attention to the fact that the development of timber for the big league clubs has grown into a profitable industry for minor league clubs. 'The New York National Club is outbidding every club in the country for desirable talent

McGraw recently paid $4,500 for Larry Doyle, the third baseman of the Springfield, Ill., team. McGraw and Brush are determined to give New York a championship team next season if money can get the players.

The huge price paid for Thoney calls the fact that Chris Von der Ahe, when in the height of his glory as a baseball magnate, bought the entire Bay City, Mich., club in order to get one player. Chris wanted Dave Foultz, to stop. McGraw told the officer to Manager Watkins said he might as well sell his entire club if he parted players alone. The officer suddenly with Foutz.

"How much do you want for the club?" inquired Chris.

Watkins named his figures and Von der Ahe bought the club and franchise. He brought Foutz to St. Louis and operated the Bay City Club unti he could get his money out of it Y. M. C. Jack Thonev is a "come-back." Clark Griffith gave him a try-out three years base-runner, a clever fielder and has improved in batting every year. Not so much to Jack's credit is hi propensity for umpire-baiting. Eastern League critics have never rated him much better than Jack Kelly, the ex-
