UNDER NOSE OF POLICE

LIFT PAN OF DIAMONDS

Thieves Break Window Near Busy Corner—One Captured After Chase.

MONTREAL, Dec. 15.—(Special.)—A robbery even more daring than that perpetrated opposite the central police station last Friday night, when $1400 worth of diamonds were stolen, was pulled off to-night when, right under the nose of a policeman standing at the busy corner of Craig and Bloor streets, three young fellows smashed the window of Cohen & Co. and made off with a pair of diamond ear-rings valued at $300.

One of the men was captured after an exciting chase, and gave his name as Thomas Ledrich, recently arrived from England. The other two got away with the jewels.

The barkeeper of the saloon at the corner of Craig and Bloor streets was judged when it is stated that at the time the street was well-lighted, all the shops were open and the sidewalk thronged with pedestrians.

Pianos to Rent.

OLD REGIME WINS.

Mayor Beau Elected Mayor of St. Boniface by 58 Votes.

ST. BONIFACE, Man., Dec. 15.—(Special.)—The hottest municipal campaign for years ended with the return of Mayor Beau, representing the old regime, by 58 votes.

His opponent was Thos. Berry, and the fight was between the English and French elements of the city.

This is somewhat set off by the fact that in ward one, where Beau had a lead of 65, it is alleged that 23 voters were cast that were not voters on the list.

Electric lighting, gas and school by-laws were all defeated.

250,000 XMAS TREES.

New York uses more Christmas trees than any city in the world.

The city is so admirably located to the forests from which the trees are supplied, and the prices can be brought down to such a reasonable figure, that the number of trees sold is the record.

One quarter of a million Christmas trees go into the metropolis every year, and virtually all of them are sold.

At the variety of prices most anybody can have one. There are trees that cost as little as 25c. to $1.00, and there is no trouble about getting the little trees that sell at the little prices and go to the homes of those who have to weigh every penny.

WIDER STREETS

AIM OF CIVIC ART GUILD

Architects Favor Idea of 125-Foot Thoroughfare East and West, With Diagonal Highways to East and West.

"The widening of congested thoroughfares in the central portions of growing cities is a vital issue," said J. P. Hynes, the prominent architect and member of the executive of the Guild of Civic Art to The World last night.

"I read the article in this morning's World respecting the widening of West Queen-street and have given the matter considerable attention for some time past. Queen-street at present has merely the width of a standard country road. It should have wide pavements on each side and a roadway broad enough for three wagons to pass on each side of the double trolley tracks."

"The ideal plan of the civic guild calls for an artery for traffic 125 feet wide extending from Church-street to the east to Spadina-avenue on the west. This would allow for the projected diagonal road from the north-east to connect at Church and Queen-streets and one from the northwest at Queen's-avenue."

"College-street should have been widened through and Bloor-street should now be widened to 125 feet from Yonge-street to the east end."

"The widening of the city traffic which the growth of that industrial section will increasingly produce."

"The lower part of Yonge-street should be widened on the same plan."

The British Idea.

In discussing the feasibility of a gigantic widening of the city streets, the guild had in view the marvelous success of the British plan for financing such improvements. Not only have they all the advantages from the artistic and commercial standpoints that were obvious, but they lessened instead of increased the load upon the backs of the individual taxpayers. The British plan was for empowering legislation to be secured by the city council, for the expropriation of the whole frontage on the side to be widened and for the property afterwards to be handed over to the municipality as a civic asset. The greatest example of the success of this method was the King's Way, London. High Holborn to the Strand, three-quarters of a mile. This improvement nets a large surplus revenue every year in excess of the charges on the shilling fund. The guild has so far placed its plans before the city council with the hope that the park commissioners will in return accept the widening of the city streets as a condition of the park improvements. The guild would be ready to co-operate with the council in working out such details as necessary legislation. The experience of cities which have sought to meet street widening problems on their own has shown that the cost of widening a few feet in width has been disappointing. In the case of Philadelphia, the growth of population, has made it impossible to add to the ultimate cost.

W. A. Langton, architect, said to The World the widening of Queen-street was the central feature of the civic guild plan. The members of the guild and especially the architects were a unit in their opinion that the widening of the city streets was the only way to meet the problem of the widening of the city streets without delay as the increasing value of the frontages within a few years would be a much greater obstacle to this unavoidable work.

WIDENING QUEEN ST.

Editor World: As you are giving the subject of widening West Queen-street some prominence, I would like to point out the impracticability of widening it only where and when new buildings are erected.

1. In the first place it will probably be in the ordinary course of events at least ten years before half of the present buildings are torn down and new ones erected.

2. And it might take another ten years or even longer, before the other half are removed.

3. The prominence given to the buildings not rebuilt or moved back would be such that the owners would probably not move back until they had to. So that I think it would have to be done block by block.

Such being the case, would the improvement be worth the cost, and would the city as a whole be willing to bear the cost? As I am quite sure the property owners where the street would be widened would not, although in many cases they might give a G. G. Strath.

WHOLESALE GIFT GIVING.

An Appropriate and Acceptable Gift is a Box of Cigars.

Many wholesale merchants, manufacturers and others in a large way in both business and progressive life have adopted the plan of buying cigars at wholesale for Christmas and distributing boxes of 10, 25, 50 or 100 cigars to those with whom they had business association during the year.

G. W. Muller says that he always makes special preparations for the particular kind of gift, and that every year the line of goods shows a large increase. He imports many of the finest and rarest brands of Havana cigars, and because of the fact that he does the largest wholesale business in cigars in Canada his customers secure the best quality of cigars at a purchase of 500 or 1000 cigars.

A box of cigars is an appropriate and acceptable gift in every sense of the word.

INDUSTRY WANTS LAND ON ASHBURGH'S BAY

Terms to Be Submitted To-Day—Temperance Street Extension.

An offer by a large manufacturing company to purchase a large block of land in Ashburgh's Bay district will be submitted to the board of control this morning.

The property in question is immediately south of the outlet of the Don and, while it contains about 22 acres, only about five acres are arable ground, the remainder being under water. The purchasers will have to go to a good deal of expense in filling and leveling, and for this reason the city will have to accept comparatively low terms if the deal goes thru. The King's Radiator Co. had an option on the property some time ago, but decided to let it drop.

The manufacturing company has a Canadian branch at Hamilton, but will abandon this if the present transaction goes thru. A large factory will be established and several hundred workmen engaged.

Temperance St. Extension.

The court of revision yesterday heard the preliminary arguments on the assessment for the extension of Temperance-street thru a width of 30 feet from the street to the railway tracks.

K. J. Dunstan, manager of the Bell Telephone Co., appeared in support and Robert Bond, of Sheppard street, in opposition. Mr. Dunstan said that the property owners assessed were almost unanimous in agreeing to the extension of the street.

Mr. Bond declared the extension would work injustice to him in not giving him a proper flankage allowance. The statute, he said, provided that, when the depth of a property exceeded 120 feet, there should be a flankage allowance of 10 feet on each side.

The court will inspect the ground and will further consider the appeal next Tuesday.

Control Ward Proposed.

Control Ward proposed to the board of control yesterday that the city in opposition to the railway commission, whereby in consideration of the city giving up its right to the viaduct, the railway would be compelled to deposit their tracks from Bathurst-street to Summerville and pay 90 per cent. of the cost.

The board was not impressed, however. The mayor declared that as the city had applied for a viaduct, it would accept no half measure. Control Ward, Spence deprecated any swapping or saw-off process, and Controller Hocken declared that he had nothing to do with the viaduct.

Controller Ward wasn't convinced, however.

If we don't accept this, we may get nothing," he admonished, but his colleagues agreed to take chances.

Ward's motion was carried, and the railway plans, so say City Engineer Rust and Dr. Sheard regarding the district, were accepted.

"There is absolutely no truth whatever in the statement," said Mr. Rust, who added that Dr. Hazen had merely sent him a letter that he was coming. Dr. Hazen didn't visit the city hall yesterday.

Dr. Sheard says Deer Park residents must wait until next year for the city's scavenging service. Several applications have already been received.

GO BACK TO "WET."

Local Opinion Fought in Manitoba Blow to Temperance Men.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15.—(Special.)—So far as evident at midnight the local opinion in regard to the temperance people at setback relatively three to two. Kildonan reverted to the "wets," the severity of the provisions permitting search for liquor undoubtedly influencing the electors.

Louise, the late Hon. Thos. Greenway's county, which retained local opinion three years of hard campaigning, has also gone over to the enemy, and in Winchester the result is open to doubt, but favors the "drys."

In Emerson the opinion carried by one.

A LETTER WITH A GIFT.

"Dear— I am sending you a small remembrance for Christmas. Do not think that it is cheap, although you will notice by the price-mark that it only cost me, in cash, twenty-five cents. In addition to the cost of the material, I have spent $10 worth of worry, and approximately $4.67 in damaged and torn clothes. Merry Christmas, otherwise." Chicago Evening Post.

LONGBOAT WINS RACE

strong refreshment. Then, while going at a rapid pace he sucked a piece of lemon saturated in champagne. Thus he promptly ejected, swallowing none.

But he led at the finish.

Besides the last eight laps, Longboat took the lead only five times during the race. This happened in the third mile, when he sprinted into the lead for seven laps; in the fourth mile, when he sprinted into the lead for three laps; and in the fifth mile, when he sprinted into the lead for three laps.

In the twenty-fifth the Italian again showed in front for three laps, the Italian forcing the pace and resuming the lead in the sixth lap, which he held for four laps, the end of the last mile but one. Then came the crushing defeat of Dorando, whose plight when he toppled, was pitiful.

Flas for Sale.

Eleven thousand persons jammed the garden to see the race, and nearly five thousand more were unable to gain admission and jostled each other and spent their rage on the empty air. One hundred policemen were outside the building stood guard as if it had been a burning bank. For half a dozen squares around they established a cordon.

Scores of street vendors offered for sale small English Jacks and Italian flags, hoarsely adding their voices to the din. Inside the garden hundreds of Italians who had never been in the structure before the recent Dorando-Hayes Marathon, were seen in the throng and now completely at home.

Among these were many women no longer young, hatless and with heavy gold pendants hanging from their ears. Scores of these women came unattended by male companions, an innovation which amazed even the ticket takers, hardened to the peccadilloes of members of the weaker sex at French balls and circuses.

Dorando was the first to appear on the track, cloaked in a Pompeian red robe lined with fur. He stepped on the track at 8.50.

His entrance a party of Italian-Americans took seats in a box near the starting line, and with Dorando's appearance the band struck up the Italian National air. The box party seemed to catch sight of their favorite before the vast assembly of the spectators, and a woman-uttered shriek and frantically waving an Italian flag gave the cue which sent the audience into a fit of hysterical cheering.

Those Winning Legs.

Two minutes later Longboat appeared. Vaulting the press enclosure at an unexpected point he was hardly noticed until he sauntered into the group of officials gathered at the starting place, thirty yards behind the scratch.

He appeared covered
