In a few remarks Professor Keirstead of University of New Brunswick stated that he was very much interested in the different speakers. He stated that he had traveled across Canada soon after Mr. Belding, and remarked that every where he went had created a very favorable impression. The province, he stated, was blessed with good schools, and cited examples of men who went froi a rural school direct to Universities and later to places of high importance in the nation. He stated that he believed the elementary rudiments of education were being imparted to the children of the province very efficiently.
