Fables On Health

DO you enjoy kitchen odors? Neither do most other people. Mrs. Mann of Anytown, had found several ways of overcoming such smells which, in addition to being unsanitary, are offensive even when harmless.

Leaving unwashed pots and pans over a period of some hours is one lively source of such trouble. The staid smell of burned or scorched foods is another. Placing unwashed pans to dry or to simmer on the range is still another. It is a good idea to have handy a solution of two pounds of washing soda dissolved in a gallon of boiling water and kept in a bottle. When up sood papius are spessa suppoos about an inch of the soda water, shake it around and leave until washing time.

A range hood is an aid to removal of cooking smells, or a trumpet ventilator will help.

A scattering volley of sneezes told that a number of people were already getting him.

TICK TOCK TELLS SOME HISTORY.

The clock that Tick Tock pointed to, was made of white alabaster with ornaments of gold. On top was a letter "N" in gold encircled by a wreath of golden leaves.

On top of white columns at the side were golden eagles, and besides other ornaments of flowers and leaves, also in gold, were four golden dwarf feet, on which the clock rested.

"It only needs a good cleaning and oiling and winding to be as good as new," said Tick Tock. It has had good care so it doesn't look as old as it is. Did you ever hear of Napoleon?"

"How did the clock get here?" asked Nancy. "Did he send it to these people?"

"Well, I'll tell you who he was," said Tick Tock. "He was the Emperor of France and a great soldier. That 'N' on top of the clock stands for Napoleon. The clock was a present to a friend, and instead of putting in his card the emperor put on his initial in gold."

"How did the clock get here?" asked Nancy. "Did he send it to these people?"

"Well, when the war was over, La Fayette went back to his own country, France, only to find war there, too. Only worse. It was like jumping out of the frying pan into the fire, I think, and the first thing they did to La Fayette was to throw him into prison. That was because the country was divided and one-half hated the other half. Indeed, the war was between the two halves of the country."

"So La Fayette sent his young son to America to the Hamiltons, so he would be safe. He was just a little fellow when he came."

"What happened then?" asked Nick. "Well, the boy grew up with the Hamilton children and didn't go back to France for years. By that time Napoleon was Emperor and his father was out of prison."

"One Christmas after Mister Hamilton was dead, a ship brought Mr. Hamilton a present. It was this clock sent by La Fayette. Indeed, he never forgot her for her kindness to his son. And she lived to be an old, old lady, Betty Hamilton did."

"But why did he give it away?"

TWEED in a delightful shade of soft grey-blue makes the simple coat shown above. The model is made on straight lines, with a notched collar, also of the tweed. The attached cape drops from beneath the collar and almost hides the sleeves.

With this is worn a tiny felt hat of dark blue, with a gray red feather stuck in the grosgrain ribbon band.

AIRSHIP RELICS SEIZED IN RAIDS

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 21.—In a series of raids on private homes and business establishments in Northern West Virginia and Eastern Ohio Government agents recovered four truck-loads of wreckage of the destroyed naval dirigible Shenandoah that had been carried away by residents as souvenirs following the wreck of the ship near Ave.

The raids were made by 90 Department of Justice agents, assisted by Federal and State prohibition agents. Among the recovered articles, which were placed in the Federal Building here, were personal grips of several members of the ship's crew and a cap said to have been worn by Commander Zachary Lansdowne.

Napoleon had given it to him?" asked Nick.

"I wonder, too," said Tick Tock. "Maybe he did not like Napoleon. Nobody knows. But it is a fine old clock just the same."

ATTACK IS MADE ON UNIVERSITY LIFE

Labor Leader in Illinois Challenges Officials in Scoring Alleged Orgies.

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 21.—A challenge to University of Illinois officials to show that they are not harboring what he styled "subsidized vice" was thrown down in the State Federation of Labor convention here by Edwin E. Wright of Chicago, former state president.

Mr. Wright painted a lurid picture of "fraternity house morality."

"Better burn universities to the ground," he said, "than pay them money if our sons and daughters attend them to learn immorality."

On this motion, the convention unanimously extended an invitation to the university to send spokesmen to defend the charges against it.

"My attention to university morality," Mr. Wright said, "was provoked by recent magazine and book literature, some of it by college officials. And I have found evidence to support the reports in some places. I have been told of a fraternity house which was completely covered with a canvas shield, while inside a drunken orgy took place, which even savages would not have tolerated."
