ALLIES RECOVER MONEY STOLEN FROM FRANCE

Huge Chests of Securities, Carried Away by Germans, Found in Brussels Banks.

London, Dec. 10.—(British Wireless Service)—French and British pickets under the direction of the paymaster-general of the French army and in the presence of German officers in civilian clothes have been sent to the various banks of Brussels, notably the Comptoir National D'Escompte De Paris and the Credit Lyonnais, in the last two days, and have recovered large numbers of chests which were placed there by the Germans about the middle of October. These chests, says the Reuters correspondent at Brussels, contain strong boxes and securities taken from towns in Northern France, including Lille, Roubaix, Tourcoing, Valenciennes, St. Quentin and Cambrai. Other cases placed by the enemy in the banks at Liege are said to contain securities to the value of thousands of millions of francs.

These valuables will be returned to the financial establishment from which they were abstracted, except in the case of towns where the banks have been destroyed, as, for example, St. Quentin and Cambrai. In such cases the securities will be deposited in Paris.

HOPE NEW SYSTEM WILL EXPEDITE HANDLING MEN

Returned Soldiers to Carry Their Own Discharge From England in Sealed Envelope

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—A new system of returning soldiers to their homes in Canada, which will, it is hoped, eliminate the delays and difficulties met with heretofore, has been adopted by the militia department and will be in operation early in the new year.

The new system, which will be set in operation as soon as the necessary machinery can be established in England, provides for the issuing of all papers before the men set sail for Canada. Before leaving the old country, all soldiers will have to go before the medical board for examination after which their discharge will be made out. This discharge, along with pay checks and other necessary documents, will be placed in an envelope, which the soldier will carry with him. On arriving in Canada, the men will be given no furlough. They will be disembarked from the vessel upon which they crossed and transferred without delay to troop trains in batches of five hundred.

Twenty-one dispersal areas, covering the dominion have been created by the militia department, and in each of these areas an important centre has been chosen for a dispersal station. The soldier may proceed to the station which is nearest his home, and he will be given no furlough until he arrives at the dispersal station. On arriving there, the envelope containing his discharge, and other documents will be opened by the dispersal officer in charge and he will be discharged if everything is in order. This system will simplify the work of handling the men on this side of the water, and enable the railways and militia department to take care of them in a more satisfactory manner, from the time they arrive in Canada until they reach their homes.

The problem of sending notifications of the arrival of soldiers is engaging the attention of the militia authorities and it may be solved in the near future. It has thus far proven extremely difficult to make sure of getting the notification of arrival of trains, etc., through in a satisfactory manner. The new system of sending them through to their dispersal stations in lots of five hundred and allowing none of them leave before their discharge, may help in the solution of this problem.

KILLED WHILE AIDING COMRADE

Word has been received in the city of the death in action of Bombardier James A. Bowes, son of Edwin M. Bowes, formerly of this city but now of Chelsea (Mass.) Bombardier Bowes was a well known St. John boy, having been employed here with Vase & Co. Ltd. He is a grandson of Robert Bowes, Golden Grove, and a relative of Mrs. Fred Galt, Fairville. He was formerly a member of the 140th battalion, New Brunswick, but secured his discharge to join the 101st American battalion with which he went overseas. The Boston Post of recent date gives in detail the particulars under which the men of the 101st met their death among the hills about Verdun, before they passed on to "report" to their commander, and it has the following to say of the death of Bombardier Bowes. The article was written by a former staff reporter of that paper:

"Bombardier James A. Bowes, of Chelsea, was the only man in 'A' company who knew what we were facing on that day when we pulled out of the Hohen docks. He knew while we were writing childish threats of what we would do to the Kaiser on the sides of our trains. He knew when we speculated on how soon we would see the statue of Liberty again. He knew when we were experiencing our first thrill in the Chemin des Dames sector.

"For 'Bowie' had experience before; had been a member of a Canadian battalion that did gallant work and he had been discharged from that battalion to join his own army when America entered the war.

All through our long period in the trenches his experience had been a great help to us; he was at everybody's service and was one of the bravest men in our company. On the third day of the Verdun drive he had been doing wonderful work when the order came to take cover and rest. Everybody fell into the nearest shell hole; gasping for breath, the ascent of the hills in the face of artillery fire and machine gun had been gruelling work and the word "rest" was a heaven-born. And there came a groan from a shell hole in advance; another and another. Without a word the tired Bowes dashed to the shell hole; bandaged the wounds of a comrade and staggered back with the wounded man in his arms. Just as he reached the little haven of safety the shell hole afforded, the machine gunner got him and another had reported to Captain McConnell.

Bowes was nineteen years of age and had lived here most of his life. His friends in St. John will hear with keen regret of his death, but will not forget that he died for others.

EXTREMISTS POLL SMALL VOTE IN GERMAN ELECTION

Majority of Socialists Carry Chemnitz by 78,500 to 6,000—Only Laborers Voting

Berlin, Dec. 10.—(By the Associated Press)—"A fortnight ago Dresden; today Chemnitz. The people speak plainly," says Vorwaerts, commenting on the result of the elections in Chemnitz, the majority Socialists having polled 78,500 votes as against 6,000 by the independent Socialists. In Dresden, the old party polled 117,566 votes as compared with 8,440 for the independents.

Vorwaerts points out that not a single vote by a capitalist was polled; the only votes being those of laborers.

The Vossische Zeitung declares that the result in Chemnitz "shows that the Spartacists have no footing among the people."

An article in Vorwaerts attacks Adolph Hoffmann, one of its former editors and an Independent Socialist, for voicing a threat to disperse the national assembly when it is called. The newspaper believes it will be impossible for the Bourgeois to secure a majority in the election. If such a wonder happens, it says, "then it will be an expression of the will of the people, to combat which we would not choose the Russian method of dispersing the assembly, but would employ the social democratic method of enlightenment so that the next election would have a better result."
