BUTTONS For Ulsters.

Ivory—5c. per dozen.

What do you pay for the commonest composition buttons for ulsters? about 12 cents. And for solid ivory? say 30 cents.

We start from that.

Supposing you could buy the twelve cent kind for eight—that would be cheap, but supposing you can buy the thirty cent kind for the same price—that would be cheaper. That is what you can do. Perhaps you think it strange we should give so much space to such a small matter as buttons, but the amount you can save on that item alone might be inducement enough in itself for you to purchase your ulster cloth at our store, while the figures at the top represent the amount to be saved on this lot of buttons.

BUTTONS—For Dresses. For Jackets. Black. Oxidized.

Jet buttons that won't break—a fact—guarantee, for every button that breaks we will give you as many as you have on your dress.

No idle warrant this, as back of our guarantee is the word of the maker to us. "For every button that breaks I will give you a box." You can understand why we are anxious to discover every broken button as we would be gainers with you in such an event.

What is the actual worth of such buttons? Taking into account the fact that it relieves you of the necessity of getting a half dozen extra every time you buy buttons "for fear one might come off." They are worth much more than the prices, which are twenty-five and thirty cents per dozen, for dress use.

These buttons are to be had only at our store.

The Pettingill Pier Improvements.

The following is an abstract of the specification for the Pettingill wharf improvements, tenders for which have been asked for up to next Saturday at noon:

The extensions proposed are two in number, one being across the face of the southerly slip and the other across the northerly slip and extending to a point 80 feet northwardly of the central wharf as shown on the plan.

The southerly extension is to have a width of 30 feet on top and 40 feet at bottom, as shown in the drawings.

The northerly extension is to have a length of 80 feet, a width of 65 feet on the face of the wharf at present on the northerly side of the northerly slip.

Both extensions are to be built so that their faces will be on a uniform line with the face of the said central wharf. The southerly extension is to be built up from the present timber foundation (after properly securing the upper timbers), and the northerly extension is to be built up same height.

Two ballast floors are to be placed in each wharf where and as directed. These floors to be of spruce poles or spars not less than 22 feet long and 6 inches in diameter at small end. Each floor is to be a square in area, to the area of the wharf in which it is placed. Stone ballast to the extent of 300 tons is to be placed in the southerly extension where and as directed, and to the extent of 1500 tons in the northerly extension.

The plans for this work with specifications may be seen in the office of the City engineer. This contract has not been advertised in the newspapers, nor otherwise than by a few small handbills posted in obscure places, but in the public interest we give this notice free.

THE VESSEL FORFEITED

For Smuggling Six Bales of Wool—Decision in the Edna May Case in Portland.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 23.—The case of the United States vs. schooner Edna May and cargo of twenty-three bales of wool has been on trial for three days in the United States district court. The captain was charged with smuggling the wool and the vessel was seized by the customs officers near Eastport. The defence claimed that the wool was domestic and was taken on at Pembroke. The government contended that it came from the Provinces. Today Judge Webb gave a decision in favor of the government, declaring the vessel forfeited and six bales of wool. The other seventeen bales were found to be domestic wool. District Attorney Bird represented the government and G. A. Curran of Calais and H. B. Cleaves of Portland, the defence.

A FINE OLD TIME IN WHEAT.

Bears Send December Option Down in Chicago and New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—There was a fine old time in wheat to-day, both on the produce exchange and on the Chicago Board of Trade. The December option broke under the assaults of the bear pounders. The break in New York was sharper and more extensive than in Chicago. The option here closed on Saturday noon at 85¼ cents; opened yesterday at 85 cents, and then, under heavy unloading, broke to 85⅛ cents, recovering and closing at 84 cents. The decline in Chicago was from 81¼ cents to 80¼ cents, closing at 80¼ cents. The transactions on the produce exchange in all the options, were nearly 16,000,000 bushels, the greater proportion being December. It was the general opinion here that the New York bears, aided by the Chicago contingent, had laid out young Jessie Hoyt, the bull crusader, on the option. Starting with 1,000,000 bushels nearly a month ago, young Mr. Hoyt is credited with accumulating about 3,000,000 bushels of December here and at Chicago at an average price of 87½ cents here and 83½ cents in Chicago. It is stated on 'change that Mr. Hoyt was powerful enough to advance the price here to 89 cents. He had a very handsome profit on his operations; but he declined to take it. Then it was that Edwin Cottrell, Henry Allen and G. K. Clarke, both as principals and for their bear patrons, went gunning for the venturesome young man. The bears were particularly active on Saturday, and they redoubled their efforts today. Many hundreds of thousands of bushels came out under their hammering, most of it being know as "young Jesse's wheat." It was the opinion at dusk tonight that they had smashed Mr. Hoyt's wheat boom. But there was another side to the business, and this was to the effect that young Mr. Hoyt's bull campaign was a good deal of a myth, and that instead of fighting on the long side of the fence he had been actually short all the time, and that he has scooped in wondrous shekels. Only a corporal's guard, however, accepted this version of the fracas.

A LIVELY ENCOUNTER

With Burglars in a Post Office—They Make a Small Haul.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

FARGO, Dakota, Oct. 23.—Two men gained entrance to the Fargo post office last night, bound and gagged the night clerk, Harry Milton, placed a red hot poker on the soles of his feet, and compelled him to give up the combination of the vault door. In the vestibule of the vault were forty or fifty registered packages. While the burglars were opening these, Milton released himself, secured a revolver and shot at the men, not however until they had had time to blow out the light. They then knocked him down with a blow on the head and escaped, securing not over $125 in currency.

AWAITING THE CRASH.

ADVENTISTS PREPARING FOR THE COMING CRACK OF DOOM.

The Archangel Gabriel Confidently Expected to Blow His Trumpet Before the End of the Year.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—It is positively announced beyond the shadow of a doubt by the Adventists that the world will come to an end within the next eleven weeks. They are convinced that the 1st of January, 1890, will never dawn, and the manufacture of calendars and diaries for next year they regard as a gross improvidence. Some of the sturdier believers scorn the thought of laying in a winter supply of coal, removing their heavy flannels from the canphor chest, or taking their overcoats from their uncle's strong boxes. There will be no occasion for racking their brains about their wife's Chistmas present nor laying by the shekels for the Thanksgiving turkey. Some of them launched into lives of openhanded extravagance, so fearful are they that their money will avail not in the world to come.

A select coterie of Adventists, who boast that they have direct telephonic communication with Trumpeter Gabriel even go so far as to assert that the Great Collapse will occur sometime before Oct 26. This belief causes its adherents to be constantly on the alert for earthquakes, thunderbolts and the like, and Adventists may any day be recognized by the air of half-concealed terror with which they pace the streets. The rumbling of a coal cart causes them to start nervously and their eyes to gleam with a heavenly lustre, while at the sound of a German band they give a heavenly bound of ecstasy. Of course they have suffered many severe disappointments during the past few weeks, such as that due to mistaking a howling baseball mob for a heavenly choir, and the like, but they bear it all bravely and have not lost confidence in their ability to read the signs of the times.

Philadelphia's quota of Adventists number about 200 all told, but, sad to relate, they are by no means of one mind in regard to the time or the nature of the coming kingdom. "Annihilationists," "Crisis folks," "Age-to-come believers" and "Millerites" represent the four principal branches of the sect. Of these the crisis people assert with the greatest positiveness that the end is coming immediately; the rest are content to possess their souls in patience, though they too are all assured that man is living in the last days. The Millerites had their setback in 1843 which year they calculated with mathematical precision as the date of Gabriel's overture. During the 365 days of that year they waited anxiously for the final winding up, and when the new year dawned on this same old world their hearts sank and they bade good-by to prophecy, agreeing among themselves never to let the universe collapse annihilationists, however, strenuously object to this theory, and are determined to be in at the finish. They have from time to time arranged dates, and clung to them with unfailing tenacity until they found they were left.

This latter faction deny the immortality of the soul. Rev. J. H. Stetler is their leading exponent, though he has dipped into each branch of belief in order. He believes that the trumpet will blow very soon, and that the good folks will be shut up into an impalpable somewhere where they will spend a thousand years, and every day will be Sunday.

Brother I. R. Gates, who is a Millerite of the bluest stripe, has some quite different views. He thinks that immediately upon the world being ended the saints will go winging heavenward. "They will probably spend about a week or ten days at the marriage supper of the Lamb," he says, "and then will come back to subdue the world and punish the wicked."

The "age-to-comers" assert that in the good time coming men and brethern of all degrees of virtue and vice will dwell together on the earth throughout the millenial period. For 1000 years they will traverse the earth together until each inhabitant has out-stripped Methuselah in the nnmber of his years. Jerusalem will be the capital of the earth, and the Lord's temporal kingdom will there be set up. All Adventist unite in the belief that a replenished earth, restored to the beauty of Eden, will be the future Heaven.

BEGGS HAS TOLD HIS STORY

Of How Cronin was Condemned to Death by Clan-na-Gael Camp 20.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—About three weeks ago Lawyer Foster went to Judge Longenecker and told him that John F. Beggs, senior guardian of Camp 20, was willing to tell all he knew about the trial and removal of Dr. Cronin, without any condition as to the State's charge against him. Beggs admitted that he was senior guardian of Camp 20, and in that capacity appointed a committee to try Cronin. Beggs says he was not present at any of the meetings of the trial committee and knows nothing of the evidence introduced against the murdered man. Beggs was also the chief centre of the inner circle of Camp 20, and in that capacity presided at the meeting at which the trial committee reported, finding Cronin guilty of being a traitor and a spy. Five men were to decide on the manner and extent of the punishment, and execute the punishment at a time, place and in a manner to be arranged by themselves.

Thirteen members were present, including Beggs, and all were sworn enemies of the murdered man. Thirteen square strips of white paper were cut up and on five pieces were written numbers one to five. The remaining eight were left blank. The ballots were passed around and the members who received the numbered slips were elected to name and inflict the punishment.

No one except the five men knew who the executioners were. Beggs picked a blank ballot and all he did was to announce that the five men chosen would meet together at a certain place and time. Beggs admits the Clan-na-Gael unwritten law regarding the punishment to be inflicted on traitors was generally the death penalty, but the nature of the punishment was not specified in the constitution, nor was it obligatory on any member to inflict the death penalty.

Jomes Flannigan, formerly a member of Camp No. 20, corroborates Captain Thomas F. O'Connor's story about the trial committee. Early in February, shortly after Le Caron had testified before the Parnell Commission, was the time of the meeting of Camp No. 20. Junior Guardian Andrew Duggan charged that Dr. Cronin was an intimiate friend of Le Caron, and, like him, was a spy. In fact he charged that all doctors were spies and traitors. Captain O'Connor defended Cronin, and said the only reason he was denounced was because he had accused a leading member of embezzlement. Beggs took a hand in the row and said Cronin was a traitor, where upon Dan Conghlin moved that an investigation committee be appointed the motion being seconded by saloon keeper Tom Murphy. It was the night of May 3rd that Andrew Foy, who was an enemy of Dr. Cronin, asked if the secret committee has reported, and was told that it had. The next night Cronin was murdered. It is believed a written report was made on the subject, but nothing is known as to this.

Beggs had nothing more to do with the removal of Cronin after the meeting. He has furnished the State's attorney with a list of the thirteen members present, and says that Coughlin, Sullivan and Burke were among the number. He cannot give the names of the five executioners, because he does not know who were chosen to do the work.

Just before the case against the Cronin conspirators is given to the jury, the State's attorney will ask that the case against Senior Guardian John F. Beggs be nolle prosequied and the defendant allowed to go free. This will be done in return for valuable information by Beggs to the state. The senior guardian has told all he knows about the conspiracy, and though his information has been of great benefit to the state, it shows that he is guiltless of the crime with which he is now charged. Beggs will not take the witness stand for the state.

TEN MILLIONS BUYS A PRINCE.

That is what a Son-in-Law Will Cost Mr. C. P. Huntington.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Collis P. Huntington left for Brussels today and does not expect to return until a few days before his daughter's wedding to Prince Hatzfeldt, which, as now arranged, will take place on Oct. 28. What price Mr. Hunting will have to pay for his princely prize no one knows yet, but it is a good round sum, estimated, with the dowry and settlement of debts taken into consideration, at nearly ten million dollars. The Prince has never been so devoted to his fance as he has been this week, driving with her, shopping with her and spending most of his time when not thus engaged in Mr. Huntington's apartments at Brown's Hotel.

Prince Hatzfeldt is a Catholic, and he insisted on a marriage by the rites of the Catholic Church.

Brompton Oratory, where the wedding is arranged to take place, is the scene of all fashionable Catholic merriages in London, and, so far as can be learned, it is intended to make this wedding one of great splendor. At first this question of religious belief threatened to be almost as big an obstacle to the marriage as the settlement with the Prince's creditors, but this, like many another difficulty, others that have arisen since The World first made public the engagement, and by her own desire she became a communicant of the Catholic Church. The marriage could have been arranged without it, but not without much delay, and this delay she opposed. Certain requirements of British law were met by means of a special license. The couple intend to go to Italy on their honeymoon, and then go to the Prince's mother's castle at Schonestein, Germany. It is reported that the Prince's father and mother do not intend to come here to witness the ceremony, but will stay at Schonestein until he brings his bride to them.

But the trouble is over at last. His creditors are appeased, and the Prince is out of debt for the first time since he began to grow whiskers. Miss Huntington, with her mother's assistance, has won a valiant fight against her rich father.

FORGOT THE LICENSE.

How an Auburn Young Man Spoiled an Elopement.

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 23.—A marriage license was issued in Auburn last week to a young couple who for something like a year past have been "keeping company." When the mother of the young lady concerned heard that her daughter's intentions of marriage had been published she came down to the city clerk's office and forbade the issuing of any certificate. But she came too late. The certificate was already issued, and if it had not been there was no help for the situation, for the parties were old enough to marry if mamma wasn't willing.

But it was one thing to get a certificate and another thing to elude the vigilance of an angry watchful mother and two brothers. The date of the marriage had been set for Saturday night, but that appointment was cancelled. Sunday the young lady received word from her lover from a small boy on the sly, and arrangements were made for flight. Sunday evening, about 8 o'clock, the young lady was among the missing. Her family were wild over her disappearance. The police were notified, and told that it was feared that the young lady had committed suicide.

All night long the whole Auburn and part of the Lewiston police force, accompanied by a posse of relatives, friends and neighbors, sought for traces of the lost ones. But they found nothing until about 10 o'clock Monday morning, the father of the intended bridegroom came into town and reported that the runaways were at his house. But they hadn't got married. In the hurry of leaving the intended bridegroom had neglected to don his best coat and the marriage license snugly reposed in the breast pocket of the coat. Next time the certificate won't be left behind.

OUR COASTING TRADE.

THE EFFECT OF THE RECENT CUSTOMS ORDER.

Goods Transported in Bond Over U. S. Railways From one Canadian Port to Another Shall be Carried Only in Canadian Vessels.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—The recent customs order, relative to coasting, has created a great stir in British Columbia. It appears until a short time ago American vessels enjoyed full coasting privileges in British Columbia waters but the same have been rigidly refused to Canadian vessels in United States waters; thus while the United States vessels have been allowed to take bonded freight from Vancouver, which has gone over the Canadian Pacific railway, and deliver it at Canadian ports, Canadian vessels have not been allowed to gather freight at Portland and deliver it at Seattle, Tacoma or Port Townsend. Now all this is changed. Acting upon the representations of Canadian shipping owners there, an order has been issued by the department, that when goods are transported in bond over the United States railways in transit from a Canadian port, destined for a port in British Columbia, the carrying from the port of transhipment to the point of destination shall only be done by British vessels, or foreign vessels which have acquired the right to the coasting trade of Canada.
