THE ENGLISH GIRL.

(FROM THE LITERARY GAZETTE.)

She laughs and runs a cherub thing;
And proud is the doting sire
To see her pluck the buds of spring,
Or play by the winter fire
Her golden hair falls thick and fair,
In many a wavy curl;
And freshly sleek is the ruddy cheek
Of the infant English girl.

The years steal on, and, day by day,
Her native charms expand;
Till her round face beams on the summer
ray,
Like the rose of her own blest land.
There's music in her laughing tone,
A darker shade on the curl,
And Beauty makes her chosen throne
On the brow of the English girl.

She is standing, now a happy bride,
At the holy altar rail,
White the sacred blush of maiden pride
Gives a tinge to the snowy veil.
Her eye of light is the diamond bright,
Her innocence the pearl;
And these are ever the bridal gems
That are worn by the English girl.

SONG OF THE WINE-FILLED GOBLET.

BY ELIZA COOK.

(From the New Monthly Magazine.)

I have kept my place at a rich man's board
For many a waning night,
Where streams of dazzling splendour
poured
A galaxy of light;
No gayer revelry hath rung
Than where my home has been;
All that the Bard of Teos sung
Has the wine-filled goblet seen;
And much I could tell full many might deem
A fable of fancy, or tale of a dream.

I have beheld a courteous band
Sit round, in bright array,
Their voices firm, their words all bland,
With brows like a cloudless day;
But soon the guests were led, by the host,
To dash out reason's lamp,
And then God's noble image had lost
The fineness of its stamp;
And their sober cheeks have blushed to hear
What they told o'er me, without shame
or fear.

Their loud and tuneless laugh would tell
Of a hot and reeling brat,
Their right arms trembled, and red wine
fell
Like blood on a battle plain.
Oh! sad is the work that I have done
In the hands of the sot and the fool,
Cursed and dark is the fame I have won,
As death's most powerful tool;
And I own that those who grate my rim
Too oft will find their bane on the brim.

But all the nectar-cup has wrought
Is not of the evil kind;
I have help'd the creature of mighty thought
And quicken'd the godlike mind;
As gems of first water may lie in the shade,
And no lustre be known to live;
Till the kisa of the noon-tide beam has betray'd
What a gloriou sheen they can give—
So the breast may hold fire that none can see
Till it meet the sun-ray shed by me.

I have burst the spirit's moody trance,
And woke it to mirth and wit,
Till the soul would dance in every glance
Of eyes that were rapture-lit.
I have heard the bosom, warm and rife
With friendship, offer up
Its faith in heaven, its hope in life,
With the name it breathed in the cup;
And I was proud to seal the bond
Of the truly great, and the firmly fond.

I have served to raise the shivering form
That sunk in the driving gale;
I have fann'd the flame that famine and storm
Had done their worst to pale;
The stagnant vein has been curdled and cold
As the marble's icy streak,
But I have come, and the tide has roll'd
Right on to the heart and the cheek;
And bursting words, from a grateful
breast,
Have told the precious draught was blest.

Oh! Heaven forbid that bar or ban
Should be thrown on the bliss I bear!
But woful it is that senseless man
Will brand me with sin and despair.

Use me wisely, and I will lend
A joy ye may cherish and praise;
But love me too well, and my portion shall send
A burning blight on thy days.
Remember the strain I sing, as ye fill,
"Beware, the goblet can cheer or kill!"

TO PRESERVE WALL-NAILS FROM RUSTING.—I beg to communicate a little valuable information to those who use many nails for fastening the wall-tress. I use cast nails, about one inch and a quarter long, and heat them pretty hot, in the fire-shovel, over the fire, but not red, and then drop them into a glazed flower-pot saucer, half filled with train oil. They absorb a good deal of oil, and, thus prepared, never become rusty, and will last many years. The effluvia of the oil also, for a long time, I fancy, keeps insects from the trees.

A man having built a house asked what he should do with the rubbish. A workman standing by, told him to cause a pit to be dug for it. And what shall I do with the dirt that comes out of the pit? To which the workman with great wisdom replied, make the pit so large as to hold all.

Nobody likes to be no body, but every body is pleased to think himself somebody, and every body is somebody: but the worst of the matter is, that when any body thinks himself to be somebody, he is too much inclined to think every body else to be nobody.

As an old woman was lately walking through the streets of Paris at midnight, a paricle called out, "Whose there?" "It is I, don't be afraid."

Who are the most disinterestedly good?
The good for nothing.
