Morning Cotton Letter.—No change

Morning Cotton Letter.—No change occurred in the general situation so far as reflected by the local market and market news of yesterday. The unfavorable trade conditions abroad have been accentuated by the failure of a large commercial enterprise following the bank failure of July 25th and people with German connections and people with German connections say that conditions in that country have yet to exhibit the most severe depression. Commercial conditions appear to be worse in that country at any rate, the turning point has been passed, while domestic mills are very poorly supplied with raw cotton and proved ability of the south to market slowly with this season's improved facilities for so doing goes someway toward modifying the old fashioned effect of the early new crop movement and an indifferent trade demand. The people who have been waiting for a break of another cent a pound that is to the basis of about 7 cents for cotton in the south would probably enter the market at the present level. Should there any less favorable turn in the absence of crop news and it only recount in Cape Town, of which he is

The jury was given the case for consideration, and a disagreement was anticipated two hours later, when heated arguments were heard. Then a water gollet was sent hiffing through the glass door of the jury room and Judge Beitler ordered Balliff Hart to quell the disturbance. He found a dozen jurors in a clinch, chairs were broken and the room was in general confusuion. Two of the men were exchanging blows and the others were striving to separarte them. Hart was told that the jury stood 3 for acquital and 4 for conviction and that the battle started when one of the men tried to "convince" another.

Charles, might have been relied upon to call him instantly to account for so grave an indignity placed upon the de facto head of the navy at the vry foot of the Throne.

Quite as intolerable was the conduct of Rear Admiral Sir Percy Scott in hoisting last fall a signal indicating to the vessels under his command his contempt for the orders which he had just received from his superior officer Lord Charles Beresford; while there there is equally no valid explanation to be offered for Sir John Fisher in insisting upon the maintentance of Sir Percy in command of one of the divisions of Lord Charles's fleet after this grave exhibition of insubordination. The fact of the matter is that if the old time standards of ciscipline of the British navy were to be enforced, all three admirals, Sir John Fisher, Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Percy Scott, should be placed on the retired list by way of punishment.
