oral rose designs with gr best selection possible had been made to all the office. Hon, Dr. Clark's position at the bar, his prominence as a lawyer and his business capabilities and reputa-tion were such that all would concur with him in feeling that the duties of the position would be carried out in all re-spects in a perfectly satisfactory manner. When he was called upon in 1911 to form a government, he invited Hon. Mr. Murray to become a member of the exe-cutive without office. In the intervening period be had learned to appreciate Mr. Murray to become a member of the exe-cutive without office. In the intervening period be had learned to appreciate Mr. Murray's sound qualities and good judg-ment and that he was a man upon whom dependence could be placed and when the time had arrived it was with great pleasure that he was able to offer him promotion. The agricultural department was second in importance to none with the new work which is being under-taken, the new duties being performed and new plans proposed, the department was one of great activity and it needed a man of large views and varied experi-ence could be placed to be in control, and if in years to come this province at-tains the position which it ought to, then it would require a man who is atong and persistent in his efforts, such as he felt Hon. Mr. Murray would be. A large increase in the staff of the department was a very grafifying feature and its work would be probably before the house during the coming session. The Vocational School

The Vocational School. He would like to say a few words re-garding the new vocational school at Woodsteck, which had been erected at a cost of $40,000, through the minifi-cence of the late L. P. Fisher, and which had now been conveyed to and was the property of the province. At present it was only used by the town of Wood-stock as an industrial and technical school, but a course of agricultural in-struction would open next month and last for a period of three weeks. This would be the first time that the provin-cial government had a chance to give young men instruction in farming meth-ods without inving to go out of the province. He hoped to have two or three other similar schools opened in the near fu-ture and he felt that the way in which the Woodstock school was patronized would be a test for future guidance, and vould be a test for future guidance, and was, therefore, of the greatest import-nce that the classes which were soon be held should be well filled. Last year the province produced over
