

The Plain Truth Sells My Lath

EVERY word my men or I say about Pedlar Perfect Expanded Metal Lath is said sincerely and has the facts behind it to make it good. You have my personal word for it, that every claim made in this advertisement is absolutely true. My lath needs no exaggeration to make it sell. Send for a sample of it and you will soon see why.

MADE BY A BETTER PROCESS

The Pedlar process makes a metal lath that is easily 100 per cent. more serviceable than the ordinary kind. Special machinery produces it in standard meshes with all the temper of the sheet metal retained after expanding. As it is galvanized or painted after making, it is the one kind that will never rust, nor rot, and the one kind that will show by actual tests the maximum of tensile strength. Get a sample of it and test it for yourself. That's real proof.

MAKES MOST POSITIVE KEY

Pedlar Perfect is the one lath that does best for two-coat work—work which usually calls for grounds 14-in. Pedlar Perfect is the lath that clinches plaster ribs—tight because it is so made that the dip of the strands is inward and downward when the metal faces the wall. That throws the key on the far side of the metal instead of toward the work man—as often happens when the metal is wrongly meshed. You will never hear a "kick" about any plastering done on Pedlar Perfect; and the workman can get through quicker besides.

FAR AHEAD OF OTHER KINDS

Superior to all other metal lath in tightness of key, ease of handling, rigidity, economy in nailing or stapling, resistance to fire and rust. Baseboards, window and door trim, moulding, can be fastened to it without weakening the wall or causing cracks from strain. The very fact that it has been preferred for such buildings as this advert. names ought to tell you the superiority of Pedlar Perfect Expanded Metal Lath. Get a sample of it.

Canadian Novelty Supply House

He went to the bureau, where he seemed unable to express all he felt, and he said to the doctor there: "Here is the woman I look after now." The doctors at the bureau, just as he did, recognized the cure. He then went away to the foot of the grotto, and the following morning he was at Mass and received Holy Communion, which he had not done for many years and which he did not intend to do when he came to Lourdes.—Philadelphia Standard and Times.

Notre Dame d'Auvergne, Sask

This parish is a new one. It was opened the latter part of April, 1908, not yet two years, by Rev. Father Royer, who had just returned from a few colonies. The country at that time was a desert, but since then all the lands have been taken for twenty miles around.

Unhappily to build the chapel he was unable to procure a fund. The new colonists need all their funds for their installation and living, and for this reason the chapel of the Mother of God is possibly poor. Just the strict necessities for saying the Mass; but nothing for change or to distinguish the feast, no cloths, ornaments, holy water basin, procession cross, or ciborium for keeping the Holy Species. We would accept with gratitude any of these things which older parishes may put aside.

If, then, a few pious souls devoted to Mary, in reading these lines have the kind thought to help this new sanctuary, they may be sure they will do a good action and will be largely rewarded by our almighty Queen of Notre Dame d'Auvergne.

REV. A. ROYER, Notre Dame d'Auvergne, Sask.

A Terrible Indictment

Wherever in the course of my spiritual ministrations I have been brought face to face with tragedies of the soul, wherever I stood by the deathbed powerless to give any aid to the soul being fast borne to the other verge of eternity, wherever I stood beside the corpse and could offer no word of prayer or consolation, wherever I was forced to see the poor remains hacked by the dissecting knife and consigned to unconsented clay without a solitary word of blessing or appeal for mercy, wherever I saw the home dreary, fireless, foodless, rocking with filth, wherever I beheld the daughter who gave the name of shame to her shameless face and heard that rasping voice and laugh which are the most terrible sounds this side of hell, wherever I gazed on the looting, worthless son, the besotted mother, the mother who was a pretension to apply that sacred name, I could almost invariably say: "This is the work of the bar-room."—Rev. L. Minehan, Toronto, Canada.

A Debate

We are glad to see that the Catholic young men in Belleville have organized a debating club. This will mean much for their future. Our opinion of the 20th century is that it is not an exalted one. They are simply gambling away the most precious hours of their youth. The question debated in Belleville was whether the mother should be exalted or extended to women. The negative side won. For the negative Mr. E. Lalley was leader, assisted by Messrs. Francis Barrett and Edward Meagher. The leader of the affirmative side was Mr. Wm. Wims, assisted by Mr. Francis Buckley. The debate was held under the auspices of the St. Michael's Total Abstinence Society, of which Father Cummings is the founder and president. The debate was a decided success.

Good Maxims

Having an enemy need not make you one.
Fidelity is to the soul what oxygen is to the lungs.
Doubt is injured is he that refuses to forgive an injury.
It is easier to overcome a temptation than a vice.
He that finds no time to serve God is indeed the devil's slave.
He that does not fear to commit sin is a brave soldier of the devil.
A wise man is he who does not do a thing for which he knows he must afterwards repent.
A soul is no sooner lost than it is found by the thief of thieves—the devil.

CONVERSION OF A DOCTOR AT LOURDES

Dr. Boissac, writing in the Almanac de Notre Dame de Lourdes, for 1910, says:
"A doctor visited Lourdes. He was not a believer in the miracles, and stated so to the physicians of the Medical Bureau who examine the various cases. He would not listen to their arguments, but he said:
"There is a woman here with half her face eaten away by lupus. If she be cured I shall believe." He followed the woman to the piscina, and he therefore saw her scarred face when she entered. A few moments afterwards he saw the woman again, but the doctor did not recognize her, for the wound in her face was healed; in the few minutes the sores had disappeared.
"It cannot be the same woman," the doctor exclaimed in amazement; but he approached her and, questioning her, found out it was the very same person.
"What have you done to yourself?" he exclaimed.
"Nothing," she replied, "but I have bathed in the piscina and have been cured."
The unbelieving doctor was overwhelmed with emotion. He grew pale and staggered, so surprised was he.

REV. FATHER CUMMINGS, BRANTFORD, RECEIVES MANY GIFTS

The departure of Rev. J. P. Cummings is lamented with a host of parishioners in St. Basil's parish, but throughout the city. The Rev. Father Cummings is a man of character and is loved by all classes and creeds. He was a kind and gentle person and was generous to the extreme. He was a true and substantial friend of the needy, no lover of money and was ever ready to help those in need. His departure is a loss to the parish and to the diocese.

APPRECIATION OF REV. P. J. KELLY, HAVELOCK.

Rev. and Dear Father,—We, the congregation of the Mother of Mount Carmel Church, Havelock, having learned with regret that you are about to depart from amongst us feel that we cannot allow you to do so without expressing our feelings of high appreciation for the work you have done in the past three years, as pastor of our church. You will be greatly missed by the congregation, where you were always ready with a helping hand and encouraging word, and also by the children of our Sunday schools, where your devotion and zeal have been so cheerfully given. In proof of our appreciation and gratitude, we have prepared a small book of remembrance for you, which we hope will be a source of comfort to you in your future days may be many and cloudless.
