OBITUARY

JOHN MALLOY

On Wednesday, Oct. 19th, there passed to the great beyond into eternity, the soul of one of the greatest bushman that ever blazed a trail into the Northern woods. This man was none other than John D. Malloy, of the firm of McFadden & Malloy of Blind River, Ont. He was stricken suddenly by heart-failure, while about to enter the office of Camp No. 1 after having spent the day attending to the duties of the firm in reviewing the days cut of logs, etc. He died in the harness, as this had been his own statement that he would.

Born in Donegal, Ireland, Jan. 5th, 1890, he came to Canada at the early age of seven years, accompanied by his beloved father and mother, John D. Malloy and Catherine Dorian. There destination was Westmeath, where after many years of earnest endeavour, John D. Malloy, Sr., became one of the district's leading farmers. John's ambition was to become some day a Lumberman. This he did achieve as testimony of his wonderful and accurate knowledge of lumbering is borne by the part he played in the success of the firm of McFadden & Malloy. Previous to the lumbering operations in Blind River—that is to say in his early days, he operated for Alexander Fraser of Pembroke, Thomas Hale, Malloy Bros., also of Pembroke, and J. R. Booth, who now in his ninety some odd years of life has given to John Malloy the fame and title of having been an honest man.

He was a true man; he enjoyed both the respect and confidence of any who knew or came in contact with him. He pursued his objects in life with rare skill and perseverance. Yet he never became neglectful in his religious duties; he regularly attended church, and received the Holy Sacraments weekly, and, ably assisted by his devoted wife, he insisted in their home upon Christian discipline, for he recognized that the sterling virtue, which is victorious in the struggle in life, is a fruit that ripens only on a soil of a firm belief and in the fear of God. His most ardent wish and the aim of all his efforts in business were to make with God's help and blessing his family's life, carefree and happy. For he was a loving father, a brother to all good men, and a friend to both rich and poor.

His remains were taken to Pembroke, Ont., on Friday the 21st, by J. J. McFadden and Rev. Father Brennan of Espanola, where they were met by his two sons, Daniel and Russell Malloy, who had come from Loyola College, Montreal, and also by his brothers, Connolly, James and Daniel. The body was taken to the home of Connolly Malloy, when at the hour of 9 a. m. the funeral cortege wended its way to the Cathedral where Solemn High Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Father Brennan, assisted by Father Breen and Father Slominski. The interment was made in the parish cemetery.

John Malloy leaves to mourn him, his beloved wife, three sons, John D. and Russell of Loyola College and Connolly who at present is a student in third year High School, Blind River. His three brothers, Connolly, James and Daniel of Pembroke and also one sister, Mrs. P. Dunbar of Pembroke. May his soul rest in peace.

HEWERS OF WOOD

Alfred J. Taley, judge of the General Court of Sessions in New York City, recently contributed to a Catholic magazine a remarkable treatise on the duties of Catholic parents towards their children. No man could be better qualified to arraign parents for their destructive indulgence of children's whims. He berates parents for permitting their fourteen-year-old children to decide when their education should begin and end. He said in part: "At the age of fourteen or fifteen, the danger age for both boys and girls, the child seeks freedom from the restraints of school discipline and study time. The street corner, the alluring movie is far more attractive to the unformed mind than is the necessity of staying home nights to study. And so, when the day arrives when the boy is big enough to wear long trousers and the girl to wear short skirts, the announcement is made by the child that it has had schooling enough, and the average parent instead of promptly and decisively overruling the demand, weakly acquiesces, and the die is cast with sad results. The child has gained its point—has done as it pleased, has been freed from discipline, and goes out to join the ever-increasing army of half-educated, unformed and untrained hosts who are continuously adding in numbers to the army of unemployed, an army that is a greater danger to the well-being of the Republic than an invading foe. Children are freed from discipline at the precise age when they need discipline most; and the result is inevitable. Lacking a real education, they become in time merely hewers of wood and the drawers of water, the clerks, the porters, workers with neither initiative nor ambition nor any hopeful outlook on life, while those who have stuck to school, or had parents with sense enough to make them stick, soon pass them in the race.—Catholic Transcript.

The Path of Duty

THE Path of Duty during the war led Canadians to break political party ties, to exert every effort in unison, irrespective of creed or class, so that Right might prevail. The Path of Duty to-day is quite as clear. The situation is critical, and if Canada is to emerge successfully out of her present crisis, concerted influence and bold action is again needed. The Path of Duty points every Canadian to a serious unbiased consideration of the great issues of the day, for problems born of war's aftermath threaten to divide the Dominion, to disrupt our industrial and political life and to destroy the country's whole economic structure. The Path of Duty clearly points to the necessity of placing the Government of Canada again in the hands of the man whose past experience fits him for the task, whose integrity and purpose is unquestioned, and upon whose shoulders the country's destinies can be placed with complete assurance. The Path of Duty points you to vote for the candidates of Arthur Meighen—the man who has demonstrated that he, too, keeps strictly to the Path of Duty, which is the Path of Wisdom.
