WE ARE IN THE Monumental Business

We devote all our time and energies to this line only. We employ tradesmen who thoroughly understand their business—some of them having served their time with the old reliable firm of Cairns & McLellan. Proportion is one of the most particular branches of our trade; without it a Monument cannot look well. This is one of the places where some competitors are continually going astray. We do not import condensed stock full of cracks and stains because it's cheap, but we pay the right price and get the right goods.

THE BALANCE OF OUR STOCK WILL BE CLEARED OUT AT COST

To wind up the season's business and make room for our large Fall Stock for winter cutting. Come quick if you want a bargain. We don't advertise very much, but when we do we mean just what we say.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

McGee's Last Speech.

On the night of April 6, 1868, D'Arcy McGee delivered a speech in the House of Commons at Ottawa. That it was eloquent, as all his public utterances were, the following will show: "It has been charged against him that he has lost the confidence of his own people. Sir, I trust that in the House mere temporary or local popularity will never be made the test by which to measure the width or efficiency of a public servant. He, sir, who builds upon popularity, builds upon a shifting sand. He who rests simply upon popularity, and will risk the right in hunting after popularity, will soon find the object he pursues slip away from him. It is, sir, in my humble opinion, the leader of a forlorn hope who is ready to meet and stem the tide of temporary unpopularity, who is prepared, if needs be, to sacrifice himself in defence of the principles which he has adopted as those of the truth—who shows us that he is ready not only to triumph with his principles, but even to suffer for his principles—who has proved himself above all others worthy of peculiar honor. . . . Its single aim from the beginning has been to consolidate the extent of British North America with the utmost regard to the independent powers and privileges of each province, and I, sir, who have been, and am still, its warm and earnest advocate, speak here, not as the representative of any race, or of any province, but as thoroughly and emphatically a Canadian, ready and bound to recognize the claims, if any, of my Canadian fellow-subjects, from the farthest east to the farthest west, equally with those of my nearest neighbor, or of the friend who proposed me on the hustings."

Death in the Cobweb.

Beware of the cobweb! It contains a deadly microbe. A woman in Washington, D. C., fell some time ago and cut her head. Neighbors rushed to pick her up and found the blood spurting from a deep gash. Instantly the time-honored remedy of cobwebs was suggested and a hasty search produced a handful, which was instantly applied to the wound. The bleeding stopped quickly, but some days later the woman went down with tetanus, the dreaded lockjaw. Fortunately her constitution was strong, and, barring the wound, she was in excellent health, so she is now recovering.

"There is no doubt the woman was given the lockjaw by the germs in the cobweb," said an amateur scientist of skill and repute, who made the examination. "Cobwebs stop bleeding because they are soft and permit the blood to congregate about them, but their use is dangerous as attested by this instance. Several days ago I had occasion to look into the matter of cobwebs and went into my stable, where I procured a handful. In those cobwebs I found 61 different disease germs, among them being a large number of the germs of tetanus. Placing those cobwebs on a cut would be almost a guarantee that the patient would develop lockjaw. This is natural, for cobwebs usually form in cellars or stables, or dark and dirty places, where disease germs are plentiful. They are light and filmy and they catch the light spores of the disease germs while floating in the air and hold them. When the webs are placed on a wound the germs enter right into the blood."

The Importance of a Love for Reading.

But if the student is to counteract the tendencies referred to, and is to become a roundly and fully educated man, it is important, beyond almost anything else, that he should be a lover of reading. The love of reading needs to be awakened and strengthened in the educational years. It is natural to those years—easily establishing and developing itself, if only the inner life is spurred to its growth. The opening of the life, however, and the strengthening of the love are, and must be, dependent upon the individual student. Happily the work required of him is one which can be accomplished with comparatively little difficulty and in a very simple way. It has only to be undertaken with serious purpose, and the result will almost certainly follow. The man who reads wisely and well, will, as if by a law of his intellectual nature, find the love of reading soon springing up and growing within him without any further effort on his part. He will realize that he was made for reading as truly as for thinking or speaking, and he will rejoice in the

Royal

BAKING POWDER

-Absolutely Pure-

For the third of a century the standard for strength and purity. It makes the hot bread, hot biscuit, cake and other pastry light, sweet and excellent in every quality.

No other baking powder is "just as good as Royal," either in strength, purity or wholesomeness.

Many low-priced imitation baking powders are upon the market. These are made with alum, and care should be taken to avoid them, as alum is a poison, never to be taken in the food.

Interesting Happenings The World Over.

This is queer. We never heard of any trouble existing between the white and colored people of Cuba, before. But scarcely have the Americans put their impress upon the social conditions of that country when, behold, there springs up a well developed feud between white and blacks such as exists in no many parts of our own land. Already there is a political party in Santiago de Cuba composed entirely of negroes, who have apparently captured the delegation to the Cuban constitutional convention to be held in November. This has made the whites somewhat angry, and trouble is expected. In race hatred a sort of Angli-Saxon civilization?—S. H. Review.

President Loubet of France caused what the newspapers call a "cessation" some weeks ago when, in taking leave of the troops about to embark for China, he said to the captain: "I entrust to you the souls of our soldiers." The President forgot for the moment that he was the head of a nation which has officially discarded, together with the idea of a God, that of an immortal soul. It is all very well for the heathen Chinese to have souls, and France will send warships and troops to protect French priests in their work of saving them. But as for Frenchmen themselves having souls to save or care for, it is almost as much as any French official's political life is worth even to hint at anything of the kind. And what doth it profit a French official to save his soul if he loses his salary?—Cassat.

The Very Rev. Father Tommasini, rector of the Pontifical Seminary for Missionaries in Rome, has just received a telegram from Han-Kow announcing that Father Alberto Cressatelli, head of the Italian mission of Southern Szechuan, has been murdered, and that the mission itself is in extreme danger of total extermination. The loss of this valiant missionary will be greatly felt, as he was most active and fearless and knew Chinese ways and customs thoroughly, having lived in the Far East for the last thirteen years. He was also a distinguished man of science, and the geological, botanical and mineral collections which he sent to the Turin Exhibition were awarded a first prize. Qu'importe he had been sent by the Viceroy Apostolic, Mgr. Passerini, to found a new mission at Nanchang, where he was on his way when he was murdered. He was only thirty-three years of age.
