UNIONISTS NOW ADMIT DEFEAT

THEIR NEWSPAPERS CONCEDE THAT LORDS' VETO MUST BE ABOLISHED

London, Dec. 17 .- With the exception of a few personal changes, the new House of Commons will be unchanged. If the results in six districts yet to be declared repeat the decision of last January, the old pre-Unionists, will have four members and one members less, respectively than they did in the late parliament making them exactly equal if the speaker, who is elected as a Unionist, is excluded. These seats have gone to the Government allies, Labor having added three to their numerical strength, while Redmond comes back with two followers more than he did early in the year.
