The company returned home on Monday morning, and from the enthusiastic way in which they all speak of the outing, it was an undoubted success. This is an entirely new departure from the old system of entertainment which companies have been in the habit of giving. Generally an annual dinner has been given, but in-stead of spending the money in that way, D company decided to hold a camp.

CLOSE OF THE FLOWER SHOW. The flower show, given by the London Horticultural Society, in the city hall, was brought to a close last night, and was one of the most successful shows of its kind ever held in the province. The attendance yesterday afternoon and evening totalled over 3,000 persons. The crush was so great in the evening that many of the foliage plants had to be removed to increase the floor space. The directors of the society are delighted with the success of the exhibition, it having far exceeded their fondest expectations. There were in the neighborhood of 1,500 vases of the choicest blooms. Judge R. M. Meredith made a splendid showing of sweet peas, having no less than 50 varieties on exhibition.

Next year the exhibition will be held in the drill shed, as the city hall was found too small, many fine blooms being so crowded together that they could not be shown to advantage.

The Horticultural Society are to be congratulated upon the outcome of their undertaking.

The Gathering of 1900 Brought to a Close-Presentation to Bandmaster Hostrawser, of Chicago.

The London Old Boys' reunion of 1900 is now a thing of the past, and the majority of the visitors have departed for their homes, happy in the recollection of pleasant meetings with old friends and the viewing of old scenes. wishes of every citizen of London, and Mrs. Back left on a trip east.

—A correspondent writes: "Owing to the kindness of Mr. Wm. Fraser, D company of the Seventh Fusiliers were allowed to camp in the orchard addition."

To the committee who labored so ining the Fraser House, a perfectly ideal spot for camping. A section under union the highest praise is due, and if Sergt. Insley went down on the early anything were needed to induce the Old Boys to favor the city with their presence to an increasing extent each year, it is the fact that the local committee has been found so ready and anxious to plan and carry out so successfully the many details necessary to insure the comfort and happiness of the visitors. Yesterday morning four special cars filled with visitors made the circuit of the street railway system. The trip was tendered them by the management of the company. The visitors all man attended them. Divine service was attended on Sunday morning, and the camp was besieged all day Sunday delighted at the many evidences of the city's improvement which they with the camp was besieged all expressing. nessed. The Chicago First Regiment Band accompanied the excursionists.

In the afternoon a band concert was given at Springbank by the First Regiment Band and the Seventh Regiment Band of London. A large number of citizens enjoyed the feast of music provided. In the evening the Chicago band tendered a complimentary concert to the citizens from the balcony of the Tecumseh House. An immense concourse was present, and each number was enthusiastically received. At the close of the concert the local committee, to show their appreciation of the manner in which Bandmaster Hostrawser had placed himself and his band completely at their disposal, presented him with the following address: To T. H. Hostrawser, Esq., bandmaster of the First Regiment Infantry Band of Chicago, Ill., U. # WAYS OF THE CHINESE PRESS

Only Newspaper in Pekin is the Oldest in the World.

In Treaty Ports There Alone Is Freedom. With Foreigners as Figureheads-Fond of Quotations.

Dr. Carl Witte, formerly interpreter of the Germany embassy in Pekin, contributed to the Koelnische Zeitung a series of sketches concerning China, of which a recent one is relative to journalism in China. According to this sketch, the Pekin Gazette—If the title of the publication is freely translated —is the oldest newspaper in the world. The date of its first publication is placed somewhere during the reign of the Tung dynasty (970-1366). The paper is not an official gazette in the strict meaning of the term, but a publication authorized by the government, which acquaints the country with imperial edicts and ordinances of the higher authorities, without any editorials or other comments. The latter are strictly prohibited. Moreover, they are not necessary, because the government accompanies all orders for rewards or punishment with explicit arguments. The "leader" of this publication is always an imperial edict, even if it rewards or the interesting telegrams from Engways an imperial edict, even if it reways an imperial edict, even if it re-fers solely to some petition, which in-cerdit to the source. This latter credvariably accompanies the imperial ut- itable act, however, is probably eagerly read by all intelligent Chinese in every part of the great empire. Thousands of scribes in the provinces find employment in copying parts of the publication for such readers as are unable to pay the regular subscription for the entire paper. subscription price is about $6 per an-The paper is printed by means of wooden types, which, like the modern metal types, are distributed again subsequent use, and consists ordinarily of from ten to twelve sheets of thin, light-brown tissue. Red lines divide each page into seven columns, and each of the latter contains fourteen characters.

ORDERS OF THE MANDARINS. A semi-monthly issue is devoted to orders promulgated by the mandarins. One of these issues-of Jan. 4, 1897cites ten cases of higher military and civic officials who were guilty of glaring neglects of duty. The civil governor of Kirin placards in this issue not less than five higher officials. One of them, a general stationed near the frontier, is accused of having commitbrutalities against peaceable habitants and of having embezzled the pay for a number of soldiers who figured only on paper, and never existed in reality. A civil commissioner who was detailed to investigate this case never appeared upon the scene. A colonel of the same district is accused not only pursuit of robbers who pillaged a village, but to have tolerated the sacking of houses by his soldiers. A third military official is charged with having appropriated repeatedly a number of guns and sold them, so that his men had neither sufficient arms for drill nor for the suppression of gangs of robbers infesting the district. This same official also carried a number of men on paper and appropriated their pay. For the conduct of these three military mandaring the emperor had no stronger condemnation than that it was "undignified," and their punishment was the striking of their names from the rolls. The same issue charges a general and a major with cowardice. They were ordered to attack a mountain stronghold of the robbers. First they delayed the march in an alto-gether indefensible manner, and finally they did not dare to proceed to the attack. These two officers were also dishonorably discharged, "as a warning to others." PRESS OF THE TREATY PORTS.

All other Chinese newspapers bethe Pekin Gazette are published there than anywhere else from arbitrary persecution by the viceroys and other high mandarins. These publishers frequently employ, for the sake of a freer expression of opinion, Europeans at a fixed salary, who simply furnish their names as responsible editors. A number of foreigners are also employed on newspapers printed in the Chinese language. These papers are all published in the foreign quarters of the treaty ports.

The first of these provincial papers appeared about 40 years ago in Shanghai, and two others followed soon afterward in Tien Tsin and Canton. They are nominally published by foreigners, but, as a matter of fact, owned by Chinese. Since that time, and parti-Chinese. Since that time, and parti-cularly since the war with Japan, the struck by lightning." number of Chinese newspapers has "What rapidly increased. officials, and more than one case is on record in which the courageous atti-tude of the Shanghai Gazette caused the revocation of provincial sentences by the central government in Pekin. During its career of more than 30 years this newspaper has always been in the van of reform movements, and on this account it is the most influential Chinese publication.

More than once the Shanghai Gazette confronted the danger of being suppressed. An energetic effort in this direction was made by the governor of She Kiang province, who was attacked by the paper for having decreed a judicial murder. The governor applied to Prince Kung, who was then president of the Tsung Li Yamen, for an order to suppress the paper, but Prince Kung, adult the respective to the paper of the paper. Kung called the governor's attention to the risk involved by the suppression of a newspaper published under the protection of a foreign flag in a foreign settlement. Moreover, he added, much to the chagrin of the governor: "We in Pekin like to read such things."

Besides the Gazette there are in Shanghai twenty other Chinese newspapers and periodicals, while before the war with Japan there were but four. The influence of Occidental culture is also noted in the line of purely advertising mediums. The Chinese merchant, shrewd as he is by nature, quickly realized the value of advertising, and uses this medium of success quite extensively. Advertisements appear on the front page of the newspapers, after the English style of such The Pekin Gazette appears daily, and to any inherent sense of honesty. ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

The column "Answers to Correspondents," is one of the most important features of the Chinese newspapers. It follows immediately after the exhaustive editorial leader, which is the principal feature of the paper, and its diversity of subject speaks well for the intelligence of the readers. There is also a smattering of "foreign news," and quite a display of domestic news from various parts of the empire. The "local page" is fairly well filled with accidents, fires, personal matters and the like, but municipal affairs are scarcely ever mentioned. Public advertisements are fairly plentiful, particularly in the line of "stolen children," for kidnapping seems to be the employment- of many miscreants in the big cities of China.

Journalists in China must be well read in the classics. Originality of style appears to be of far less importance to the native newspaper writers than the ability to produce the greatest number of quotations germane to the subject treated. In this respect Stewart Lockhart says in his "Manual of Chinese Quotations": "One may well say that quoting and style are of equal importance with Chinese writers. Quoting is one of the first conditions of literary art, and a Chinese writer who does not understand to intersperse the report of the of having neglected to send soldiers in commonest affairs with phrases from the books of ancient times is on about the same level with the Occidental writer who is weak in grammar and orthography."

FOMENT HATRED OF FOREIGN-

ERS. In the line of jingoism and hatred of foreigners some of the Chinese news-papers produce the most astounding things, and at least a part of the present troubles, which threaten to involve the existence of the empire, must be ascribed to this part of the press Those Chinese papers which are rabid in the baiting of foreigners and foreign institutions are run in part or altogether with European capital. The Hu Pau, a Chinese humorous newspaper, published weekly in green covers, is the leader in the agitations against foreigners. Each number contains from twelve to twenty pages of illustrations, chiefly caricatures, and a few pages of letterpress. The illustrations are designed in no mean style, and the imprint upon their rice paper is excellent. They relate mostly to scenes between Chinese and Europeans, the latter always distinguished by the silk hat, known as "stove-pipe." Of course, the foreigners are invariably made the laughing-stock. At the upper rim of the Chinese newspapers is the stereotyped request: "Please be careful of printed This appeal is generally heeded by the Chinese readers. Newspapers are preserved and read and reread again until they almost fall to pieces. Then comes an employe of the publishers and carfaded papers to the "Wen Miao," the literary temple, where they are cremated in ovens constructed for this purpose,-Chicago Tribune.

IN NO DANGER. "Well, sir," said the observant passenger, after watching the conductor collect eight fares and ring up five.

"Why not?" asked the trusted em-"Because," said the observant passenger, "it is evident you are not a good conductor." The Chicago Band will be at Springbank Friday and Saturday, afternoon
