Murder on the Veronica; A Tragedy of the Atlantic

Further Thrilling Details Told In the Court.

How the Mutineers Killed the Captain and Mate.

The Leader Shot Two of the Gang Because They Forgot the Story Concocted.

London, April 4.-Further dramatic details of the alleged murder and mutiny on the British ship Veronica were given at the Liverpool police court yesterday by the German seaman Flohr, who has turned King's evi-The prisoners are Otto Monson, Gustav Rau and William Smith, and they are charged with murdering the captain, the first and second mates and four seamen. Flohr's story, which was begun at the last sitting of the court, was thrilling in the extreme. He then described the hatching of the plot and the midnight murder of the first mate, whose body was thrown overboard, and an attack on a seaman named "Paddy" Doran. It was here that he took up the tale yesterday. He described how Rau had said that they would have to "kill them all," and then told how "Paddy," the injured seaman, crept out of his bunk and asked for a drink. Rau said, "All right, I'll give you a good drink. Harry, give me that belaying pin." The pin was handed over, and Rau at once struck "Paddy" on the head, killing him outright. His body was thrown overboard. Then Flohr detailed the attack on the captain, who at the time was standing against the wheel. Rau and Smith approached him, the former with a revolver in one and hand an iron belaying pin in the other. Rau fired, and the captain fell forward. He was not killed, however, and managed to crawl to his cabin, where the second mate had taken refuge. Rau told Flohr to The Immigrants Are Distributed watch the captain's cabin. Three days afterwards Rau wanted a chart, and, opening the cabin skylight, spoke to the second mate. He had a revolver in his hand, ready to fire. Rau told the second mate he wanted to see the captain, and the mate replied that he was in his bunk, ill, and could not Eventually the captain came, and asked Rau "what for he shoot him." The captain said he thought everything had been going on well, but if there was anything wrong he would put everything right. "Spare my life," sengers wife and children once more. Bravo was sent with an axe into the cabin to drive the captain out. Flohr was stationed near, with Monson's revolver in his hand. The captain came out of the cabin with his hands before his face. Flohr fired at him three times, but missed, and, pointing his revolver at the captain's head, shot him in the dressed himself up in his clothes and then made up the tale they were to

Bullet in His Heart.

Berlin, April 4.-The surgeons at Leipzig Hospital have been treating a young man who was brought to them with a bullet in his heart. The bullet, however, caused no bleeding, and did not injure the heart in a vital part, for after twelve hours the patient recovered and remained well for three

Then dangerous symptoms appeared, and an examination with Rontgen rays showed that the bullet was being tossed about inside the heart like a ball bouncing off the sides of a room. After six months, however, the bullet became embedded firmly in the flesh of the heart, and once settled in an immovable position, the patient's condition rapidly improved for the better. The young man has now left the hospital, and the doctors believe that the bullet in his heart will give him no further trouble.

THE STRIKE SITUATION

Hamilton Molders Want Increase and Better Hours.

Hamilton, April 4.-It would not be a great surprise if this good town had a big strike pretty soon. The molders demand an increase of 10 per cent all round, and various conferences were held to settle the point. So far as the founders are concerned, it has been settled. They have refused point blank to entertain the proposition.

The civic laborers object strenuously to a ten-hour day, even to accommodate the teamsters. They consider the proposal a retrograde one, and talk of asking for 20 cents an hour. nine hours a day, and Saturday afternoons off, the same as in Toronto.

Walkerville, April 4.-The strikers at the Walkerville Bridge Works show signs of weakening. Three of their number resumed work yesterday morning, despite the pickets posted about the place to prevent them. Twentymen were picketed about works fearing a force of out-of-town men might be brought in. A detachment of police is still keeping surveillance over the picketers. "We don't want to employ out-of-town men if we can help it," said President McNath this morning. "The men show signs of weakening and we hope to bring them back in a few days."

> Madrid, April 4.—The rioting here was continued until a late hour last night. The public joined the mob of students in parading the street, a black flag was raised and there were cries of "Long Live the Republic," and "Death to the Minister of the Interior." The police charged with drawn sabers and fourteen students and six policemen were wounded seriously. Many others were slightly injured. The Republican party is active, hoping to take political advantage of the situation, especially if the disorders spread. A mass meeting of the students of Madrid was held here yesterday to demand the release of their colleagues who were arrested while making a demonstration against the Minister of the Interior, Senor Maura. This led to further riotous demonstrations and collisions with the police in which several persons were wounded.

Dramatic Recital of the Fighting In West Africa.

Forty Foot Walls Resisted All Assaults for a Time.

Then a Characteristic British Charge Swept the Enemy From the Forts and Streets.

London, April 4 .- The story of the capture of Kano is interestingly toid in a mailed message from Reuter's correspondent. For two days there was no fighting, but on the morning of Feb. 1 the enemy's cavalry were seen a few miles from the walled town of Faki, which lies about midway between Zaria and The mounted infantry went in pursuit, but the fugitive horsemen fled to the city, the gates of which were then shut and the walls manned. The local king threatened to decapitate anyone who entered his town, whereupon gun-fire was directed against the main gate, and it was partially destroyed. A storming party, under Capt. Mackenzie, forced their way through, and occupied a high rock inside the walls commanding the town. Then it was found that the king and three chiefs with their horses had been killed by a shell which penetrated the gates. At 8 o'clock on the morning of Feb. 3 the British force halted within 800 yards of the walls of Kano. The loopholed walls, which had been strengthened, are nearly 40 feet high and strongly held. Banners were flying in every direction, and the arrival of the columns was the signal for the opening of gun and rifle fire. The Maxims were placed in position at 400 yards rangs, and four guns were brought into action against the main gate.

WALLS FORTY FEET THICK. But after an hour's engagement it was found impossible to breach this gateway, and the walls, which were 40 feet thick at the base and four feet at the loopholes, proved quite impervious to the fire of 75-millimeter guns. An attack was accordingly directed against another gate further to the west, a New York, April 4.-The Evening force being left at the main gate to
