REFERENCE TO BISHOP RESULTED IN "SCENE"

Arthur Hawkes Replied at Empire Club to Bishop of Niagara's Treatment of Suffragettes.

When Arthur Hawkes took up the cudgels on behalf of the under dog in politics at the Empire Club yesterday, there threatened for a moment or two to be a scene. President Castell Hop-kins sat tight, however, and the privilege of free speech was insisted upon by the majority, and Mr. Hawkes had by the majority, and Mr. Hawkes had his say. He is one of the cleverest and most entertaining speakers in Canada, and his subject "On Going 'Ome," aroused speculation. The event proved that he had heard the speech of the Bishop of Niagara last week, and his strictures on the remarks of his lordship of Niagara developed some tension. F. B. Fetherstonhaugh gave expression to this by rising to a point of order, but the chairman ruled that it was a matter for the speaker's taste. Mr. Hawkes did not transgress the courtestes of debate in anything he said, and Mr. Hopkins said at the close that the club was for the purpose of hearing both sides of important questions. The members afterwards engaged in conversation had evidently no idea that only one side of a subject should be presented to them, and Mr. Hawkes' address was the occasion of much complimentary remark.

Mr. Hawkes began by illustrating the progress made by the English immigrant after he assimilates the free-dom of Canadian institutions. Those who return to England generally come back, because they find their second home better than their first. It was the man who had only visited England, and who only knew it superficially who was generally most opinionated about the country.

"Lots of Englishmen think they know Canada when they have visited nessy's or Dan Mann's private car, was the counter proposition.

The Making of Men.

"The man who is building up Canada is the man coming down the Saskatchewan with a yoke of cattle and a load of wheat, getting off, his wagon and walking to keep himself warm; wondering if the frozen ground may break his wagon axle; not those of us who sit up nights figuring how much toll we can take off that load of wheat before it gets to Liverpool." This point we can take off that load of wheat before it gets to Liverpool." This point met with applause and laughter. There was an independence, said Mr. Hawkes, in the man going back to England from Canada which surprised Englishmen. He had lost the badge or servility he bore in England, and which no man need hear in this country. Mr. man need bear in this country. Mr. Hawkes asserted that he was an imperialist thru and thru, but any contri-bution Canada could make to imperialism depended on the fact that we can show the old country we can raise better men than they can. The delegation from Bristol was impressed with the crowd at the exhibition here. No crowd of common people anywhere could compete with them, they said. "I would advise you not to be afraid of innovations proposed in England," said Mr. Hawkes, recalling the old saying about the two fools, one who gives and one who takes advice. Men who wanted to succeed in Canada must adapt themselves to the conditions

"Do not accept partisan statements. Investigate for yourself. The sign in-fallible of the Briton who has be-come a true Canadian is a curious but wonderful detachment from the political connetions and the party cries of the old land." Then Mr. Hawkes told of Newcastle had charge of the secret how his brother wrote him three years service—the corruption—rund.
ago asking him what he thought of Mr. Hawkes recalled the incident of ago asking him what he thought of the Jarrow by-election, and Mr. Hawkes replied asking him what he thought of Charlie Hyman feaving the cabinet. The laughter was loud and Changes Wrought by Time.

"I will not be a party to writing down any man in the empire a traitor till he takes arms against it," he declared. The men in a minority to-day were likely to be in a majority to-morrow. When the Reform Bill was passed in 1832, everybody said the empire was going to the everlasting bow-wows. The country was going to destruction if the agricultural laborers were per-mitted to vote. Yet the Tories were in power 17 years out of the 20 following that measure. Then Lord Salisbury asked if anyone supposed an intelligent Englishman could learn anything from a penny paper. Now the half-penny press was the bulwark of the land. Then Mr. Hawkes turned his attention to Bishop Du Moulin's speech of the week previous. He was sorry he was not present, but he was not going to answer episcopal billingsgate with billingsgate again. His lordship had a tilt with the suffragettes. Mr. Hawkes confessed himself an arm-chair suffragette, but was glad his wife and daughter were not. Referring to Dr. Du Moulin's advice that rats be turned loose upon the suffragettes, Mr. Hawkes declared there was not a man in the room who would set a rat on a woman who was convicted of murder

I desire to say that, in my opinion, the honorable gentlemen below the gangway have frequently, and indeed generally, not merely obeyed the orders of the house, but have set an example which might well be followed in other parts of the house, of listening without interruption to arguments and appeals from which they profoundly dissent. If I may be allowed to express my opinion, I have observed with regret in the course of the present parliament, a growing habit of commentary of the speeches and appears
