An Apron Siring.

TUESDAY MORNING

I'm a foolish little apron—
Lawn and lace, you know the kind—
With blue bowknots on my pockets,
And pert strings that tie behind;
But I wreak the deadliest havoc
That the heart of maid could wish,
When she wears me, superintending
Rarebits in a chafing dish.

Be it boys of gay and twenty, Or grave widowers, twoscore, Be it benedict, or even The elusive bachelor— When they meet my ways beguiling,
Oh, I chuckle while I win!
For they all say she is, somehow,
"So intensely feminine!"

She has given up athletics: It's no longer worth her while
To acquire tan and freckles—
Golf meant many a weary mile!
I'm a foolish little apron,
But there's nothing that can vie In man's heart with such a combine As that chafing-dish and I. Elizabeth Payne in Harper's.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

sterday's meeting of the W.C.T Yesterday's meeting of the W.C.T.U. (Toronto district), was marked by discussions of more than usual importance. After the preliminary business of the meeting was transacted, the president, Mrs. E. A. Stevens, gave an address of an unusually interesting order. Eloquently expressing the hopes for the fiture of the fast growing temperance movement she went on to temperance movement, she went on to sketch its history, and to urge its sketch its history, and to urge its constant claims on the members.

At Copper Cliff, Ont., the speaker had been surprised to find a population of two or three thousand miners all living in what seemed summer cottages. No licenses were granted here, and the president commended it to the care of the local and district unions. In reviewing the Band of the care of the local and district unions. In reviewing the Band of Hope work, Mrs. Stevens mentioned that this had a following of 500,000 in the world, and suggested that the workers in that branch of the W. C. T. U. should arrange an evening together to discuss the world's report of juvenile work, and the methods used in distant lands to interest and instruct the little ones in temperance instruct the little ones in temperance truths, and in work for others. The new departure of having domestic science classes for young girls was heartly commended.

The treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Redmond, reported that last year had been not so much a money-working as a plan-working one, hence there would seem to be a falling off in certain funds, easily explainable by the fact that the district had worked chiefly on their plans for the building of new beadquarters ,and that the resignation of one of the most enthusiastic col-lectors for the building fund, Mrs

The Bascom Union had again won the president's prize of $5 for the largest number of members, by swelling their present membership from 53 Three hundred dollars had been contributed to missionary works, in-cluding lumber work, white cross, Do-minion and world missions, Dominion Alliance and local option, and $60 that was still unpaid would be distantiated among these shortly.

The corresponding secretary's report was deferred till to-day, owing to the opening up of an impromptu debate by the ladies present. The parlor of the Jarvis-street Baptist Church, where the meeting was held, was crowded to the full with enthusiastic and they freely advocate the delay of the delay of the state of the st discussion of the Lord's Day Alliance and they freely advocate the doing away with worldly attractions on the Sabbath Day. People ought rather to be at church than at places of the pleasure resort kind, and resolutions were strongly in favor of the "Lord's Day Alliance." Mrs. Stevens pointed cut that in the case of the railroads, where no needless work is done on Sunday accidents are decimated. This flect that most of these accidents are due to overwork to see its truth.

The opinions, however, seemed to be all on one side. The ladies are not afraid of being called members of the "Sad Sunday Society."

The question of alcohol in medicines occurred just as the meeting was closing. Answering a question on the stand taken by the W.C.T.U. in this matter, Mrs. Stevens and other ladies briefly outlined their position. They do not believe alcohol necessary They do not believe alcohol necessary noon the couple left for Buffalo and as a drug, but would seek to see it New York.
