COMPANIES TO BLAME FOR LOSING INSURANCE

Chairman Englehart Tells Why Business Went to New York.

J. L. Englehart, chairman of the T. & N. O. R. Commission, states that the asked to restrict traffic from Oakville Canadian companies are alone to blame on account of the small-pox epidemic for Tosing the railway insurance, which was formerly held by the Western Union, Norwich Union, London & Lancompanies or with Canadian agencies; and the Home Insurance Company of fight. New York, at $1.07 1-2 per $100 on three-year contracts, which, however, did not include freight either in tran-sit or in sheds. Before the policies ex-pired the companies mentioned were asked for three-year rates on blanket policies, including freight in transit and sheds, under which notification of new cars being placed on the line, or of the erection of new buildings, etc., may be given within a term of three months, and in case of the destruction of such cars and property the com-panies are liable, if the premium is paid. One company made a rate of per $100, while the other four quoted $1.70 per $100, but the former a very short time afterwards withdrew their offer and sent in the $1.70 rate. Negotiations were then opened with Messrs. Johnston & Higgins, insurance agents in New York, who quoted a rate of $1.20 for three American companies. The six companies, on learning of the submission of a lower rate. reduced their figure to $1.65.

As the commission did not wish to allot all the insurance on a three-year term to American companies, Johnston & Higgins submitted a one-year offer of 45c, 40 per cent. to be taken up by the English Lloyd's and 60 per cent. by the Jefferson Company of Philadelphia, against 70c per $100 from one company and 65c from four, while one company declined to bid. In view of these offers, and of the serious discrepancy on the part of the Canadian companies, the American companies received the business
