NUMBER ONE. (FROM MOOD'S COMIC ANNUAL.)

It's very hard; and so it is

To live in such a row,
And witness this, that every Miss

But use has got a Beau.

For love goes calling up and down,
But here he seems to shus;

I'm sure he has been asked enough

To sall at Number One!

I'm sick of all the double knocks
That come to Number Four!
At Number Three I often see
A lover at the deor:
And bue in blue, at Number Two,
Calla daily like a due,
It's very hard they come se near
And set at Number One!

Miss Poll, I bear, has got a dear
Exectly to her mind.
By sixing at the window pane
Widgest a bit of blind?
But I go on the baleony,
Which one has never done,
Yet aris that thrive at Namber Five
Don't take at Namber One!

Tis bard, with plenty in the street, shad pleety passing by.
There's nies young men at Number Ten, But only rather shy;
And Mrs. Smith across the way
Har join grown up son,
But Ja! he hardly essues to know
There is a Number Cas!

There's Mr. Wick at Number Nine, But he's intent on pelf,
And, the uph he's pious, will not love
His neighbour as himself.
At Number Seven there was a sale—
The goods had quite a ren?
And here I've get my single lot
On head at Number One!

My Mother often sits at work
And talks of props and stays,
And what a semfort I shall be And talks of props and stay.
And what a comfort I shall be
Is her declicing days:
The very maids about the house
Have set me down a nue,
The sweethearts all belong to them
That call at Number One!

Once soly, when the flue took fire,
One Friday afternoon,
Young Mr. Long came kindly in,
And told me not to swoon.
Why can't he come again without
The Phonix and the Sun ?
We cannot always have a flue
On fire at Number One!

I am set old! I am not plain;
Nor awkward in my gait—
I am set crecked like the bride
That went from Number Eight;
I'm sure white astin made her look
As brown as any bun—
But even beauty has so chance
I think at Number One!

At Number Six they say Miss Rose

Has slain a score of hearts,

And Cupid, for her sake, has been

Quite predign, of darts.

The fam they shew with banded bow—

I what he had a gen!

But if he had, he'd never deign

To shoot with Number One!

It's very hard! and so it is,

To live in such a row!

And here's a ballad-singer come,

To aggravate my woo:

O take a way your foelish song

And lones enough to stun—

There is " as luck about the house,"

I know at Number Oae!

We are a little the upt, even in this common say country, to permit actresses and opera dancers to the liberties with our purses and trample upon our hear witness the dilapidated fortunes and despairing aff tions of many young gentlemen of fashion and no fa-ion, of the present day. But we never cerry matters rary navement, composed of their enterroid bands, the stones on which she would otherwise have troiden being slightly damp! These gentlemes had heard of our own Raleigh, had his velvet closh; but the imitation was but a valgar one after all, for Raleigh's closk was, is all probability, the better part of his gallanty; whereas the hands in question were certainly not the worse for the contract. By the by, from what we have had occasion to observe of German gentleman's hands, we judge that Mademoiselle. Sontag (who is evidently very dainty is her chaussure) must have had to pick her way.—London Court Jourius!
