MARITIME PROVINCES HAVE FILLED THREE BATTALIONS IN THE LAST TWO MONTHS

Nova Scotia Leads New Brunswick in Total But This Province Surpassed in Last Part of Period -- St. John Does Better Than Halifax

In the last two months sufficient men have been recruited in the maritime provinces to fill three battalions The total given in the official returns, announced today by Captain L. P. D. Tilley, recruiting officer for New Brunswick, is 3,331. Of this number Nova Scotia has contributed 1,761, New Brunswick, 1,348, and Prince Edward Island 222.

Nova Scotia took the lead for this period with 1,117 men recruited from September 4 to October 6, while New Brunswick's showing was 667. During the next period, October 6 to November 3, Nova Scotia raised 644 men, but was surpassed by New Brunswick's contribution of 681 men.

The way in which the men of St. John have responded to the call is shown in gratifying light by the comparison with the showing made by Halifax during these two months. In September 294 men were enlisted in Halifax and in October 104, a total of 398. During the same periods St. John men enlisted to the number of 305 in September and 422 in October, a total of 727, or almost twice the number in the sister city. The detailed figures, by recruiting districts, are as follows:—

"NO SHIRKERS IN RANKS OF 26TH"

Platoon Sergeant Waldron of C Company Writes of Recent Events

The following interesting letter to a friend comes from Platoon Sergeant A. H. Waldron of the 26th:—

26 N. B. Battalion
Somewhere in France,
No. 12 Platoon C Coy,
Oct. 20, '15.

Just a few lines in answer to your letter of the 17th inst (and also to thank you kindly for the G. P. C. and handkerchief, which, by the way, came in quite handy. Well I suppose you have read in the St. John papers the splendid account of the fighting 26th gave of themselves during their six days in the trenches and I must honestly say that we have no shirkers or no cold-feet boys. We lost quite a few in the attack but we had the Germans on the run and mowed down about 800. We had a letter of congratulation from our brigadier and also from our corps commander, complimenting us on our gallant stand, which was the means of capturing some of the enemy's trenches further along the line. We came out of the trenches on October 15, , two days after the attack, for a few days rest, and we are ready to go back once more. The Rev. Mr. Hooper gave us a fine sermon on Sunday last, Oct. 16. His subject was voiced in three good words, "Joy, Sorrow and Pride," and I can tell you it was worth listening to.

I lost one of my boys, Lance. Corporal J. Stevens, one of the best N. Co's in my platoon. But we cannot expect to fight without losing some of our comrades, and at the same time all that we have lost are heroes, and their names and deeds will never be forgotten by our surviving comrades. Well, you know that I cannot say much in my letters, as they are censored, but at the same time "C" Company 26th Battl sends their best wishes to you, hoping this will find you in the best of health.

Au re voir, good luck. I remain,
Yours sincerely,
A. H. WALDRON,
Platoon Sgt. 12 Platoon, C Co.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF DEATH OF PTE. TIPLADY

Official information from Ottawa has been received by W. Henry Tiplady of Duke street that his son, Pte. Charles Tiplady, has been killed. A telegram received from headquarters in response to his inquiry said that the department deeply regretted to inform him of the death of Pte. Charles Tiplady, 69,971, which had occurred on October 27. No further details were given, beyond the fact that he had died of wounds.

Pte. Tiplady's name appeared in the casualty list on last Thursday morning. That was the first intimation his family had of the loss of their soldier son, though he had been wounded some days before.

SERGEANT-MAJOR TAIT IS IN THE CITY TODAY

A visitor to the city today was Sergt. Major Tait of Fredericton, home after several months in England where he has been acting as a member of the headquarters staff as musketry instructor. He is in excellent health. He came over on the Missanabie, on which he said there were about 130 Canadians returning invalided to their homes. He will leave tonight for Fredericton to remain for a time before returning to England where he will be accompanied by his wife. He was formerly sergeant-major with the 71st regiment from York county and resided in St. John for some time prior to his departure overseas.

SANG TIPPERARY AS THEY FOUGHT

Lance Corporal Percy Till Writes of Charge on Crater — Was Slightly Wounded

Another St. John boy who had a hand in that now famous attack of a band of thirty from the 26th Battalion upon a German crater, was Percy Till, lance corporal, and in a letter received today by his father, J. P. Till of Dorchester street, he describes it in an interesting manner, besides telling of a slight wound he received.

"I received your letter while I was in the trenches," he wrote, "before we came out for a much-needed rest. I daresay that by now you have heard of the engagement we have just come through this last time—October 13. Four months to the day from the time we left St. John we underwent our real baptism of fire, for the first time we were in the trenches we had it quiet, comparatively speaking, as contrasted with the last time. We lost some dandy fine fellows, but the Germans must have lost five to one. The 26th had to stand the brunt of it all. We had every kind of thing to fight, including rifle and machine gun, artillery, bombs and liquid flames.

"But the boys of the 26th are built of the right stuff and stood up to it all like heroes. They are deserving of the praise given them by General Turner after the fray. It is now October 17, and we are expecting that it will be at least eighteen days before we return to the front line trenches, though we cannot say for certain.

"We lost one fine fellow out of our section, Bobby Kesenan of Fairville. I received a slight wound in my left hand from a piece of shell which I have as a souvenir. But such wounds are ordinary and the boys don't mind them—I heard some of them near me actually singing during the fiercest part of the engagement, 'Tipperary' and "We don't give a d—— for Germany—for we're the boys from old N.B.' The fellows simply don't know what fear is.

"This morning Rev. Capt. Hooper conducted a service for us. He is prouder than ever of the 26th. The German trenches are only about 100 yards away, and on a smoky morning some of our fellows take a chance for exercise, and, getting over the parapet, run up and down in front of our trenches."

SOLDIER MARRIED.

The wedding of Thomas Leroque to Miss Margaret Whitney of this city, was solemnized in the Cathedral at 6.15 o'clock this morning. Rev. Wm. Duke officiated. The groom is a popular member of the 104th Battalion and after the wedding he and his bride left for Sussex, where he will be stationed for training. Ernest Arseneau and Mrs. Mary Atkinson were witnesses.

It holds its commission direct from the people themselves and grows great as it serves them.

That is what makes it such a wonderful advertising medium.

People look on the printed messages of business as part of the news of the day, a most helpful and interesting part.

The newspaper advertised article gains a prestige obtainable in no other way.
