REVOLT IS COMING

Grooms Unable to Furnish
Home in Style Brides'
Friends Wish.

(Toronto Star)
If standards of living continue to rise as they have risen in the past, we may expect an age of celibacy.
A home economics expert declares that forty per cent. of the yearly salary of a young married man is necessary to furnish a home comfortably, according to modern ideals. At the present time, eight of every ten couples beginning married life furnish their home wholly or partially on the part-payment plan.
The part-payment plan is not to be condemned on this account. On the contrary, it is to be commended, for without it, marriage would have entirely disappeared from our social life. The road to matrimony is paved with easy instalments, and the instalment salesman is the very god of love. Marriages are not made in heaven; they are made in the furniture department. Here is a piece of sound advice for all unmarried young men: Never meet the instalment man and you will never have to meet the instalments.

And Then the Awakening.

The question is, how long will this state of things continue? At the present time, it is still possible for a young man to be dangled into matrimony, and to awake to realities only at the mournful sound of the cheerless set descending the stairs under the rude urgency of the instalment delivery man. He discovers himself to be part owner of any number of things, from which he may be separated at any moment, and complete owner of a young woman from whom he cannot be separated so long as they both live. And long, long before he has completed payments on a pierced platinum engagement ring with a basket setting, he finds himself involved in payments for a grey enamel baby-carriage with an English body. Part of his home belongs to himself, and the rest (with powers of seizure) belongs to a cynical stranger down town.

These then are the sole conditions upon which matrimony is possible for eight out of every ten young men. For there are few modern girls so besotted with love as to be willing to accept marriage without a chesterfield set, a refectory table, a victrola, a floor lamp and a set of anti-frons. These must be supplied before married life can begin, and there are very few young men who after having bought shower bouquets of opelia roses and lily-of-the-valley for the bride and three bridesmaids, and a string of pearls for the bride, and bargains for the attendants and a gold cigarette case for each of the ushers and tickets for Buffalo and points west, having recompensed the minister and tipped porters and ordered taxis, and paid hotel bills—there are very few young men, who having involved themselves in this expense merely as a preliminary to matrimony, are still in a position to furnish a home in the style to which all the bride's friends are accustomed, cash down.

CLIVE DICKASON SAVES LIVES ON ST. JOHN RIVER

Rescues Mrs. Rothsay McLaughlin and Daughter, Upset from Canoe.

An act of true heroism was performed on Wednesday morning in the St. John river off Pandemic. Two lives were saved and this is how it came about.

Clive Dickason, a member of the staff of George E. Barbour, Co. Ltd., did not come in town on Wednesday but intended to devote a part of the day to effecting repairs to his boat which was anchored just off shore from the summer residence of Dr. James Manning. He was in his boat when he noticed a canoe which had come down river from Ingleside and which contained Mrs. Rothsay McLaughlin and her daughter, Jean. The canoe was keeping fairly close to the shore when suddenly it was struck by a strong northwester and swept out towards the bay and capsized, precipitating the two ladies into the water.

Without hesitation Mr. Dickason took a "header" into the water, and swam out to them. He supported them on the upturned canoe and began to work it towards shore. In the meantime Dr. Manning had seen what was transpiring and pushed off from shore to offer what assistance he could but by this time Mr. Dickason had succeeded in getting the canoe into shallow water and the ladies were able to stand.

Mr. Dickason, who is the president of the Pandemic Outing Association, would say nothing of the brave deed. The information was gleaned from other sources. His plucky act received the whole-hearted commendation and admiration which it merited.

TO THE PUBLIC

We were surprised to see an advertisement in a recent issue of The Times stating that all shoe stores in the city will be open every day. We wish the public to know that our Union and Main street stores are only open on Friday and Saturday evenings, and our King street store on Friday evening. Our King street store is the only shoe store in the city that observes the Saturday half holiday by closing at one o'clock during July and August. Arrangements have been made to give our Union and Main street store employees a share in the Saturday half-holiday.

Yours truly,

FIFTY YEARS WORK AND NO HOLIDAY

To mark his 50 years' work in the East End of London, during which time he has never been known to take a holiday, the Rev. L. S. Wainwright, vicar of St. Peter's London Docks, will be presented with a substantial sum of money, a watch, and an illuminated address.

The school children of the parish will supplement these gifts with a private presentation on Monday.
"The care of Father Wainwright has always been for individuals rather than for extensive efforts of reform," said one of his fellow-workers.
"The improvements in this district during the past thirty years," said another parish worker, "have been unbounded. Ratcliffe Highway, from being the most villainous thoroughfare in London, is now the centre of a peaceable working and trading population. Drunkenness, though not extinct, has largely disappeared, whilbrawls and quarrels once of daily, almost hourly, occurrence, have been immeasurably reduced. The drawing of knives in the settlement of differences is now practically unknown—Exchange.
