

good work to do His will, working in you that which is well pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Heb., 13 : 20-21.

We remain,

Your affectionate sisters.

MARIA RICHARSON,
Clerk.

DUBLIN.

Dear Sisters,—

Your loving epistle brought forth many expressions of interest and sympathy in our meeting, which has been so far a time of deep instruction, increasing our responsibilities and humbling us under a sense of our distrustfulness of God's bounty.

Like you we can acknowledge the goodness of our Father's care in sending several of His servants at this our annual gathering, and their labours amongst us have been very helpful ; for as regards the church we constantly need, as the Apostle Jude says, to be built up on our most "Holy Faith that we may keep ourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life." Many have been the earnest pleadings for holy boldness in the service of our blessed Master—for the willing mind, the dependent trustful following of our Good Shepherd—remembering the words "Give ye them to eat," resting assured that He will break the bread and give the supply, and leave more for ourselves in the end than we had in the beginning.

The parents amongst us have been solemnly reminded of their great responsibilities as such, of their accountability to God in regard to the impressions they make, the example they set, the teachings they give to the immortal souls committed to their care. They have been encouraged notwithstanding the humiliating feelings of the many failings of character in
