

States to the United Nations. The Delegation should therefore vote in favour of a procedural motion postponing consideration of Chinese representation for a fixed period such as "for the duration of the twelfth session of the General Assembly".

Elections to Organs of the United Nations

The Delegation should vote for Sir Leslie Munro for the Presidency of the twelfth session rather than Dr. Charles Malik of Lebanon who is the only other candidate. In the elections to the Security Council, in which Canada is a candidate for one of the three non-permanent seats, the Delegation should also support Japan and the candidate picked by the Latin American caucus which will probably be Panama.

There are six vacancies to be filled in the Economic and Social Council. France, The Netherlands, Chile and Costa Rica will be elected without difficulty in accordance with the established conventions of representation and the Delegation may support them. The Delegation may also support Egypt for the Middle Eastern seat if no other acceptable Middle Eastern candidate emerges. One of the conventions would provide for the re-election of China as one of the "great powers" but a contest is expected for this seat. The Delegation may vote for China on the first ballot but if a deadlock appears likely the Delegation may shift its vote to the Philippines, which will probably have Asian support.

For election to the International Court of Justice, the Delegation should vote for the following four candidates nominated by the Canadian National Groups: Sir Percy Spender, (Australia), Mr. Winiarski, (Poland), Mr. Sauser-Hall (Switzerland), Mr. Mynt Thein (Burma). The Delegation will be instructed later on the fifth candidate to support.

The Admission of New Members

Canada with fellow members of the Commonwealth will co-sponsor a resolution recommending Malaya's admission to the United Nations.

If the admission of both halves of the divided countries of Korea and Vietnam is raised again at the twelfth session, the Delegation should vote for the admission of South Korea and against the admission of North Korea, which we do not recognize. Because of our enforced neutral position as a member of the International Supervisory Commission in Vietnam the Delegation should abstain in the vote on North and South Vietnam. The Delegation might also abstain on the admission of Mongolia as a compromise between the Canadian position that the United Nations is more effective if it is as universal as possible and the strong opposition of the United States and some other countries to the admission of Mongolia.

Expansion of United Nations Organs

Asian and African members of the United Nations are justifiably dissatisfied with the composition of the Security Council upon which they are not adequately represented. In the face of a Soviet refusal to contemplate any Charter amendment to increase membership until the question of Chinese representation had been resolved, the Assembly at the eleventh session referred to the twelfth session the questions of enlarging the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council and the International Court of Justice. If last year's proposal to enlarge the Security Council by two non-permanent members is revived and receives general support the Delegation may support it in preference to proposals for a larger increase which might diminish the effectiveness of this body.

The increase in the membership of the United Nations has also resulted in proposals for expansion of the Economic and Social Council and it is most probable that provision for wider representation by enlargement of the Council will eventually be made although agreement on the amendment to the Charter required for this purpose will not be easy to
