FOR LOVE OF BETTY

[BY MAY CHRISTIE.]

(Copyright, 1920, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

LII—"He's Nothing To Me!"

But April was quick-witted, and she knew that Betty wasn't that sort of girl. "Sides—April flung a contemptuous glance round the little parlor couldn't have the money to buy jewelry."

It was much more probable that it was a gift that Jack had sent to Betty and Betty was returning it to him. "I was just the prim, prudish sort of girl that one could expect of her," she said, "clearly demonstrated one of two things."

April hesitated before replying. "Oh, Betty, I was so happy—so terribly happy—with my love—before you came between us."

She said the little parol back on the table, and it seemed to stare accusingly up at Betty.

There was silence in the room.

Then Betty spoke.

"If you're in trouble, April, why aren't you frank with me and tell me all about it?" she said. "Why do you try to strike in the dark, with anonymous letters and prearranged scenes, and mysterious doings?"

April hesitated before replying. "She wasn't sure yet that the 'tableau' of that afternoon had been successful. Before coming to the flat Betty might possibly have seen Jack Trevor in New York, shown him the anonymous letters, and both of them laughed heartily over the clumsy scheme."

And yet—Jack and Betty were not together at the railway station after-wards, when April had unexpectedly run into Jack. He had looked so worried, too, and Betty's face—seen in the distance—had been so white and distraught.

It was difficult to know what line to adopt with Betty in order to discover how the land lay.

But April knew that Betty had a tender, kindly little heart. She despised her for it, but today she would turn the knowledge to good account. She would throw herself on Betty's sympathy.

"Oh, I'm so miserable," she suddenly sobbed, her golden head hidden between both her hands and pressed against the table. "I'm so utterly hopelessly wretched."

"Hush, April—don't let anyone hear you," cautioned Betty, thinking of Aunt Marion, ill in bed upstairs, and of Kate, a maid, who might take it into her head to walk into the room on some pretext or other. "Don't cry like that—come."

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. F. Tudor, these taking part in the program including Miss Gertrude Wood, Mr. Robert Tufts, Rev. H. T. Ferguson, Miss Cora Patton, Mr. William Taylor and Mr. Lloyd Reilly. A charming little tea of yesterday afternoon was that at which Mrs. Jared Vining and Miss Macpherson were hostesses. The tea was given in honor of Miss Charlotte Vining of Toronto, and also provided an opportunity for Mrs. Macpherson to bid farewell to her many friends, as she leaves for Scotland this month. Spring frocks in their many shades were used delightfully throughout the hall and living-room, while shapdraps, violets and roses were artistically combined on the tea table. Here presided Mrs. Rowley and Mrs. Archie Macpherson, assisted by Mrs. Millman, who ushered to the tea room, and Mrs. R. H. Clement, Mrs. H. A. Miller, Miss Margaret Millman, Miss Eleanor Grant, Miss Marion Grant and Miss Norman Anderson.

Percy presided over the coffee urns, assisted by Miss Marie Stevens, Miss Hamilton, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Robert Orr, Mrs. Gordon Hunt, Mrs. Ross Johnston, Mrs. J. D. Grant, Miss Elsie Macdonald, Miss Janet Wilson, Mrs. Will Falls, Mrs. Jane Lawrie, Mrs. Ernest Yates and Miss Marion Raymond. The table from which refreshments were served was centered with a huge brass candelabra, while at either end were bowls of pink tulips. The arrangements for the reception were made by Mrs. Victor Blackwell, and a very attractive musical program, also a feature of this enjoyable function, had been arranged by Miss Mabel Stevens and Mrs. Edwin Paul, the artists contributing to the program being Mrs. Harry Carson, Miss Marjorie Talbot, Mrs. Parker, all vocalists, and Miss Gertrude Cahill, who played a pretty violin number.

Mrs. John Ferguson, Wortley road, entertained 155 guests at the tea hour yesterday afternoon, her rooms being fragrant with deep pink roses. Mrs. Ferguson was wearing a lovely gown of pink and blue with touches of gold shade, while her sister, Miss Bertha Smith, who received her, wore gray crepe meteor with trimmings of Venetian point lace. Mrs. Richard E. Davis, who ushered to the tea room, was in a crystal, and Miss Sherwood Fox, who acted as hostess, wore a modish gown of pale blue georgette, beautifully beaded, with underdress of blue satin. Little Miss Mary Davis was a charming doorkeeper in her white and pink frock of Swiss embroidery.

JONES—DUNN. On Wednesday, March 23, the marriage of Mr. Clarence Andrew Jones of London and Miss Susan Gertrude Dunn was solemnized at St. Jude's Church, Brantford, by the Rev. Mr. J. C. E. Jenkins. Mr. and Mrs. Dunham of Calumville and Mr. and Mrs. MacLennan of London were among the guests present at the ceremony.

The bride wore a modish gown of navy blue serge, a brown Milan straw hat trimmed with Alice blue velvet, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. She also wore a gold chain handle. The groom wore a tuxedo and carried a sword. The happy couple left for London. The bride is second daughter of Mr. Thomas Dunn of Winnipeg, formerly of Princeton.

HUGHES—WINTER. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Winter, Sarnia road, London Township, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, March 30, when their eldest daughter, Sarah, became the bride of Mr. J. Albert Hughes of London.

Rev. Dr. McCrae performed the ceremony, and Mr. Hughes played the Wedding March. The bride, who was given away by her father, was unattended and wore a modish gown of tulle, while her flowers were roses and lilies. The groom wore a tuxedo and carried a sword. The happy couple left for Detroit and Cleveland. Many gifts, including several substantial checks, were presented to the bride and groom, who, on their return, will reside on the groom's beautiful farm near London.

CLARKE—THORNTON. A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, March 23, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Thornton, West Oxford, when their daughter, Helena Maude, was united in marriage to Mr. J. W. Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke, Sarnia.

At 3:30 o'clock in the presence of the immediate relatives, the bride couple, who were unattended, took their place under an arch of cedar, carnations and white satin ribbon, the ceremony being performed by Rev. F. J. Pydell of Sarnia. The wedding march was played by the bride's sister, Mrs. Clarence Davis.

The bride was gowned in white silk and georgette with bugle trimmings, wore the conventional veil and carried a bouquet of white carnations. After the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining-room, where the table decorations were Easter lilies and pink carnations.

The groom's gift to the bride was a black wolf fur, and to the pianist a dainty brooch. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke left on a motor trip to Windsor, and will spend some time in Elora before returning to the farm of the bride's father, where they will reside.
