

Before We Met

Before we met I wandered lone,
A "dark star" of the night;
'Til, and on meeting you, my own,
My soul at once grew bright.

And now, shall Love's splendor die
Within my breast at heart,
Uproot me from the sky,
And sun and moon depart.