

SOME LATE CONVERTS AT HOME AND ABROAD

From St. Peter's Net
Mr. Thomas Henry Bolton, Taxing Master in Chancery and Master of the Supreme Court of London, England; on two occasions member of Parliament for Northampton. His name appears in the English secular 'Who's Who.'

A SNOW WHITE CLOTHES LINE

Mrs. Bell was a charming little woman with a cheerful, fascinating smile. You felt the better for her happy presence, and she went about her household duties with a song on her lips and a glad smile in her eye.

Wash day made no difference to her cheerfulness. Her clothes line, strung with fleecy-white garments, fairly glistened and was the envy of her neighbors. One day her next door neighbor was so much taken with the dazzling white appearance of her linen that she asked her however she got them so white.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

Use Sunlight Soap This Way

If you follow directions, you do not need to boil your laundry when you use Sunlight Soap. Soak and soap the clothes well, roll them up tight and immerse them in lukewarm water for half an hour; then rinse in clear, fresh, tepid water. You do not need to do any back-breaking rubbing.

The woman who uses Sunlight Soap regularly to do her washing has the satisfaction of having her linens and other fabrics made snowy white with the greatest economy in work, time and money. She knows that the purity of Sunlight saves the life of the clothes and does not injure them in the least. Sunlight purifies and cleanses everything it touches.

travagances of the applied Socialism, in the form of general strikes and paralyzing of all the social system in order that the special demands of the workers should be held as paramount in importance to the general welfare. When Clemenceau used the military to crush the strikers in the coal regions, and Briand to put down the strike of governmental employees, they showed that at bottom both Socialism and despotism were one and the same when social order were imperiled. Now, here comes Mr. Monis to add to the ludicrous row of "extinct volcanoes" and prove that any political fed carried to extremes is nothing but a "predicament of absurdity" when subjected to the aquatints of the governmental assaiist. Public opinion has proved that Socialist theories must give way to the force of political necessity. A dispatch to The Tribune from Paris puts the case very plainly in the first few sentences. It says:
By the irony of fate the Monis Cabinet, which is the most out-and-out Socialist Ministry that has ever held office since the foundation of the Third Republic, is the very one which to-day by force of circumstances and of public opinion, is compelled to exert more vigorous military measures abroad and at home than has ever been undertaken by any of its predecessors. In spite of the wails and lamentations of Jean Jaures, of the anti-militarists and of the extreme Socialist group, the Monis Cabinet is determined to carry out to the fullest extent all military obligations imposed upon France by the convention of Algiers, to pursue measures for the relief of Lee, to maintain the authority of the Sultan and to restore order in Morocco.

THE SOCIALIST FALLACY

No political experiment has ever had a more ignominious failure than the Social one in France. Socialism has been the dominating force in the French politics for a very long time. In the days of Thiers and Marshal MacMahon, practically for Leon Gambetta, who overthrew these conservative Republican Presidents, was as much a Socialist as any of the present-day demonstrators of what Gambetta in his most famous speech described as the "nouvelles couches sociales." But socialism in theory is very different from what it shows in practice—that is to say, when the Socialist demands are transformed into the Socialist Premier, armed with the wand of command and clothed with the vesture of responsibility. Waldeck-Rousseau, Combes, Clemenceau, Briand have come successively upon the stage and passed in weird procession, like the phantoms seen in Banquo's glass. The reason why they all passed away in such a brief span of time is that they were called upon to test the chain of Socialism at its weakest link by putting forth the forces of the State to crush the ex-cessing. Ships are crowded; Europe is overrun with them. Millions of dollars are thus spent in both profitable and profitless journeying. To have wealth and not to have done Europe, is to be a troak in the ranks of riches.

But what is it that makes Europe so attractive? What precious things does it hold to excite such extravagant expenditures? Who do Americans go to see? What must they see to really see Europe? Briefly put, is not the answer found in its ancient cathedrals, its architecture, and its treasures of art and stores of learning? And what are these but the products of the children of the Church of the so-called "Dark Ages."
The "Ages of Superstition"? Yet how inconsistent the characterization of that period, by unfriendly and unfair historians, with these master works of the world. How preposterous that they could be the products of ignorance and superstition!
Again, non-Catholics of great wealth in New York, London and elsewhere are to-day supplying another refutation of the historical slanders against the Church. "Ancient fortunes for a painting by one of the masters of these same ignorant and superstitious times. Surely, they have no faith in the falsifiers of history. On the contrary, their actions must be regarded as a refutation of the slandersous opinions that have done a great wrong to the Church and a great outrage to truth. It is a happy fact, however, that the strange refutations of these historians should come from the world-famous land of freedom.—Chicago World.

A STRANGE REFUTATION OF SOME HISTORIANS

Inspired by prejudice against the Church, says Church Progress, unfriendly and unfair historians, who would debase her glory and impair her power, have frequently discredited themselves by their treatment of that period called the Middle Ages. Their attitude in this particular has been unfortunate both for themselves and others. It has robbed them of reliability and wrongfully colored the opinions of their readers.
Thus it is, even in this day of boasted original investigation and independence of thought, that we still have an unnecessary number of people who honestly, perhaps, believe and repeat their false charges. Thus it is, in spite of the intervening years of denial, in spite of the emphatic repetition of the truth; in spite of conclusive argument to the contrary, and contradictory testimony of those outside the Church, that the time indicated is still referred to as the "Dark Ages," the "Ages of Superstition."

It is rather remarkable, however, that we should have a strange refutation of these historians in this country where so much fanatical use has been made of their falsifications. Yet, such is the fact.
Year after year the vast army of American visitors to the old world is increasing. Ships are crowded; Europe is overrun with them. Millions of dollars are thus spent in both profitable and profitless journeying. To have wealth and not to have done Europe, is to be a troak in the ranks of riches.

But what is it that makes Europe so attractive? What precious things does it hold to excite such extravagant expenditures? Who do Americans go to see? What must they see to really see Europe? Briefly put, is not the answer found in its ancient cathedrals, its architecture, and its treasures of art and stores of learning? And what are these but the products of the children of the Church of the so-called "Dark Ages."

YALE LOCKS TO OUR CANADIAN PATRONS
Gentlemen—The steadily increasing demand for our products in the Dominion of Canada has caused us for several years past to give careful consideration to the expediency of establishing a branch plant in Canada for the manufacture of the goods needed to supply our Canadian customers with the result that we have now definitely decided to create such a plant.
Accordingly, we now have the pleasure hereby of informing our customers and friends in Canada, including the Hardware Trade, Architects, Builders and the general public, that we have selected the city of St. Catharines, Ontario, as the location of the proposed plant, that we have secured therein a suitable site, that we propose immediately to commence the erection of the necessary buildings, and that we hope to have the new plant in effective operation early in 1912.
Meanwhile, the requirements of our Canadian customers will be attended to, as heretofore, from our main plant at Stamford, Conn. The business relating thereto being conducted through our General Offices, 9 Murray Street, New York. A subordinate organization, under the name of "Canadian Yale & Towne Limited," is in process of formation, which will conduct the business of the Canadian plant after the latter begins operations.
In building and equipping the new plant the vast fund of experience acquired during the past forty years at Stamford will be fully utilized, the intention being that the high standard of quality in design, materials, workmanship and finish which has so long been characteristic of "Yale Products," shall be maintained in the Canadian plant, so that the products of the two plants shall be not merely substantially, but actually, identical in all that a trademark "Yale" stands for, with the added advantage to our Canadian customers of obtaining a product made in Canada by Canadian labor, and exempt from any burden of taxation greater than that which is common to all manufacturers in the Dominion.
The large demand already existing in Canada for "Yale Products," and the favorable reports they have so long enjoyed there, justify the hope and expectation that, with the domestication of this industry in the Dominion, and with the improved service which this will permit, that demand will not merely continue but will increase substantially and steadily.
Respectfully,
The Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co.

You cannot expect good work from a furnace unless it is properly installed.
You cannot buy a Furnace like you do a Stove—send it home and have the "Handy-Man" put it up—not if you expect to get all the heat out of your coal.
Your heating system must be planned. The registers must be properly placed. The warm and cold air ducts must be a certain diameter. The furnace must be located in just the right spot—and it must be just the right size. We supply plans to you absolutely free and you do not need to buy a furnace to get them either.
If you have a heating problem to solve—a new building or old—send us a rough diagram of your building, showing the location of doors and windows. We will prepare for you complete plans and specifications for heating that building, give you an estimate of the cost of the heating system, and also the advice of our experts on every detail.
"Comfort & Health" tells how you can get heat without gas. It tells how to get the same heat from six tons of coal as you ever got from seven. Write for it today. And at the same time ask for any information you may require regarding the heating of your home. 147

"Hecla" Furnace
The plan is essential, but it is also essential to have a furnace that will give you ample heat—one that will supply pure, fresh air without a trace of gas, and, for the lady of the house, heat that will be free from dust and smoke.
The "Hecla" is such a furnace.

HANDSOME TROPHY FOR CORN
The accompanying illustration shows the prize cup (donated by the International Harvester Company to the American Land and Irrigation Exposition, and to be given to the farmer growing the best 50 ears of corn exhibited at the Exhibition. The cup is 34 inches in height, is pure silver, and weighs 300 ounces.
The corn harvesting season is nearly expired in real, and the stock of corn around the base is most artistically executed. The design was chosen from numerous sketches sent in by a number of silver-smiths. It was submitted by the Manser, Mig. Co., Fifth Avenue, New York City, whose designs were accepted for prizes to be awarded at the exposition for wheat, barley, oats, potatoes, sugar beets and cotton.
