Correspondence of the Catholic Record. LETTER FROM WILLIAMSTOWN.

The closing exercises and distribution of prizes at the Williamstown Convent, took place in the grand hall of the convent, on the night of Thursday, 19th June, the splendid room being decorated with a profusion of choice flowers and evergreens.

profusion of choice flowers and evergreens.

The Rev. Father Gauthier, pastor and director of the convent, presided, and was assisted by the Rev. Fathers Duffus, Kelly, Twomey, McCarthy and Leahy.

All was bustle and joy and merriment previous to the concert, and one could read in the anxious and happy faces of the pupils, that sentiment dearer to them, perhaps, than all others, "home for the holidays."

Your correspondent was taken off his guard, as it were, and transported to the brighter visions of humanity, happy to have the privilege of witnessing the happiness of others, and drawing inspiration from the scenes around him.

The fancy work of the pupils was to be seen in an adjoining apartment, to which we repaired, and would alone repay a visit to the convent. The beautiful display of needlework and drawing were alike highly creditable to teacher and pupils, a chef d'oeuvre, St. David and the harp, done in wool, being particularly worthy of mention.

A charming musical overture, "Heavenward Bound," recalled us to the entertainment, where for upwards of two hours the time sped pleasantly and profitably by.

happily made, containing many a moral, and leaving behind them memories of the most pleasing and agreeable nature.

The musical feature of the concert was perhaps the most conspicuous for its excellence in the varied programme, the several numbers receiving repeated en-cores.

It is already a recognized fact that the Williamstown Convent owes, in a very great measure, its pre-eminence to the eminently qualified teachers in the "divine art," whose services this favored institution have been so fortunate to secure. From first to last, its reputation in this respect has been fully maintained, and has carned for itself the distinguished title of "The Williamstown Musical Convent."

The other branches, higher and elemen-

ing them all a happy vacation.

The grand finale "God save the Queen" brought the concert to a close, when all separated happy and delighted with the evening's entertainment.

Saturday, preceding procession Sunday, was a busy day in our quiet little town, the faithful in village and country bringing in trees and evergreens to line and adorn the streets through which the procession was to pass. By nightfall the CORPUS CHRISTI. and adorn the streets through which the procession was to pass. By nightfall the streets were arched and ornamented, and all was in readiness for the grand fete of the following day; the village in her holiday attire, looking charming and peaceful. Sunday dawned bright and beautiful, and it was avident the Lord of all was pleased.

At the first Mass, and as a fitting opening of the ceremonies of the day, upwards of a hundred children made their First Communion, who, at the conclusion of the second Mass, renewed their vows of Baptism, took the pledge for ten years and were invested with the scapular. It was a most imposing and edifying spectacle to witness these young and innocent children, arrayed in their Communion dress, and with uplifted hands in which cent children, arrayed in their Communion dress, and with uplifted hands in which was held the scapular, make, with one voice, their responses to Father Gauthier. It was a grand sermon in itself and was so received by the multitude that filled the church. Equally interesting, and perhaps more instructing, were the remarks of Father Gauthier on this occasion, who addressed the children and their parents on their respective duties. His address, which was among his happiest efforts, went to the hearts of his hearers, and left the most lasting and salutary impressions. I need not write of the great good thus accomplished, for to those who have heard the reverend gentleman's sermons, and who know of his works, a reference to them is sufficient to remind them of the grand effects produced on this occasion.

We heartily concur in the view set forth in the preface: "The knowledge which this book will impart to the devout was that at times, although the fair violinist bandled their bows with freedom, not to say vigor, the pianos were tooloud. Here the Benediction of the Most Holy Sacrament was performed. That grand, that sublime act of adoration, at which the words of the Tantum ergo, sung by the nuns and their pupils, rose and fell in soft cadences on the balmy air, was something beyond description, it was heavenly. From here the host was borne back to the church where, amid appropriate ceremonies, the proceed-host was borne back to the church where, amid appropriate ceremonies, the proceedings were brought to a close.

Incomplete as this report may be, it would be even more so did I not notice the decorous behaviour of the vast multitude, upwards of two thousand, who took part in the procession. Not an unbecoming act was observed during the whole day, and in the evening the village had settled back to its usual calm and quietude. Everything passed off in the most harmonious and edifying manner, reflecting the highest credit on the people of the neighborhood, and telling plainer than words that the grand old faith in its fullness, abideth in and with us.

LORETTO CONVENT, HAMILTON:

The closing exercises of this popular institution of learning was held Wednesday, 25th, at the convent. There was a large attendance of pupils and the general public, and the proceedings were of a particularly pleasing and enjoyable character. Before the exercises began the many visitors occupied their time examining the work of the pupils displayed in the work room. The needlework and drawings gave evidence of much artistic skill on the part of the young ladies and were greatly admired by those who saw them. Among the following were noticed and are worthy of special mention:

Mis Moody, pencil drawings of stag, dog, lady, etc.

The other branches, higher and elementary, are also in the hands of highly efficient teachers, who received a well deserved testimonial from the Reverend Father Gauthier, when referring to the examination held on the previous day, in his reply to the address, and which is noted farther on.

Underlying all this higher culture, and what is far more important than the superstructure, is the moral and religious training the pupils receive here. It is his alone that lays the foundation of all true womanhood, and makes its beneficent influence felt above all others.

He congratulated them on the proficiency shown during the year, and he was sure it was a great consolation to their parents present to witness such evidence of their proficiency as had been given that afternoon. He hoped they would enjoy themselves while at home and come back with renewed strength to presecute their studies. He was thoroughly delighted with them and the progress they had made, and he thanked God there was such an institution in Hamilton as Loretto made, and he thanked God there was such an institution in Hamilton as Loretto Convent. The bishop closed his few kindly remarks by hoping to meet them all next year, and the proceedings were brought to an end by the pupils singing the National Anthem. The Mother Superioress and sisters have much reason to feel proud of the manner in which their pupils acquitted themselves yesterday. Whether one judged them by the handiwork displayed or their musical abilities, the only verdict that could be given would be one reflecting the greatest credit on the sisters for the excellent tuition given and careful attention paid the pupils under their charge. the pupils under their charge.

In the afternoon the candidates for confirmation were thoroughly examined on the catechism, and after two hours of a searching inquiry, His Lordship expressed himself highly pleased with their intelligent and practical knowledge of the christian doctrine. He congratulated the teachers and pastor for the labor and attention that had been bestowed by them in instructing the children so carefully in their religious duties. On Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, mass was celebrated by His Lordship in presence of a large congregation. At this mass Holy Communion was received by nearly three hundred persons, including those who were to be confirmed, His Lordship delivered a short and impressive address on the graces received in Holy Communion and the happiness of Catholics who frequently partake of that sacrament. At 10 o'clock a procession of the children prepared for partake of that sacrament. At 10 o'clock a procession of the children prepared for confirmation, was formed and proceeded to the church. The appearance of the boys neatly dressed and wearing white rosettes, while the girls were robed in white with wreaths and veils, presented a most solemn and impressive sight, and most solemn and impressive sight, and was witnessed by a large concourse of people. Mass was then begun by Very Rev. Dean O'Connor at which His Lordship assisted. The choir rendered the musical portion of the service in their usual good style. Immediately after mass His Lordship delivered an eloquent and instructive sermon, establishing clearly the authority of the church which the Holy Ghost had come to govern and defend, and the anxiety of the Good Shepherd for the welfare of the flock. Towards the close of his sermon he dwelt on the nature and effects of the sacrament of confirmation he was then about the sacrament. of confirmation he was then about to confer.
