DEER ISLAND APPLES

Can good apples be grown on Deer Island? The answer is most decidedly "Yes." They not only can be grown but they are grown and by Mr. F. L. Martin, of Fairhaven. This year has been a bad one for the New Brunswick apple crop, not half the usual quantity of apples having been produced in the Province and they have been generally of inferior quality, yet Mr. Martin has succeeded in harvesting some King Tomkins that are far above the average for quality, color, texture and flavor, and if shown anywhere they could not fail to be awarded a first prize. They are not quite as big as the legendary variety of apple that requires only one for a pie, but they are three inches in diameter, which is not small for a King Tomkin. That there is a great demand for these Island-grown apples may be judged from the fact that the next year's crop is spoken for while the snow is on the ground. Where one man is so successful in growing apples there is surely an opportunity for others to go and do likewise.
