HANTSPORTIANS IN CALIFORNIA

Editor Hantsport ACADIAN.

Dear Sir,—Perhaps a few lines from this neck of the woods will find favor with many old relatives and friends back East from those in the far West. The thermometer for the past two months has varied very little from 50° F. in early morning, up to near 70° for afternoon. Barometer pressure from 30 to 31 in the same two months. Quite a bit of fog part of the day, which is conducive to high class dairying. There are about four thousand dairymen in this vicinity. From four A. M. until seven, again in the evening, a dozen trucks haul milk from the dairy ranches to the creameries. One creamery, "Arcata United", gets three fourths of their milk from the dairymen, and is manipulated by the dairymen. The Central, which is operated by outside capital, handles one-fourth of the milk. Each truck carries from five to one ton of milk. The United creamery output of butter is about twelve tons daily, which is bringing around sixty cents per lb. at present. Milk cans are washed by machinery. This change from hand washing started three months ago. The butter is put up in two lbs. and one lb. cartons. The cartons are filled with small butter bricks weighing four ounces each. Most of it is shipped to San Francisco. Considerable is put up in twenty lb. cartons for the mills and lumber camps in the logging woods trade. The motto is, eat all the butter you can to keep the price up.

My wife, nee Flora Marsters, has her eldest son Fredric employed at Korbel Mills with the carpenter crew. The youngest son Glenn came out from Salem in a Ford car last April. Glenn went back by train two weeks ago. He is a plumber, twenty years of age, and has gone back to Salem to finish his trade. He will most likely return to California after getting his master's license. Mrs. Frost also has a son-in-law, Stanley Taylor, and wife at Korbel. Mr. Taylor is employed with the farm crew. He and his wife also live at Korbel. They are domiciled about hundred yards from a cousin, Elta Dorman, whose husband Edwin is employed with the farm crew. The Korbel Mill folks own and operate a one hundred cow dairy that furnishes the lacta fluid for the crews' coffee and tea. The Mill firm also have three large stock ranches which supply the five hundred employees, beef, pork, mutton, and turkey. They also purchase a few hundred turkeys for Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Frost took a trip to Korbel today, to spend a few days with her niece, Elta Dorman, and daughter, Minnie Taylor. The husbands of those two ladies are up on a hill ranch for a couple of weeks making hay for the beef cattle that will be driven down this winter when the rainy season sets in. Crops are splendid, even without a drop of rain for the past two months. Subirrigating does the perfect turn there. Occasionally Elta Dorman drives down from Korbel with her car, takes my wife for a drive to Eureka to visit my cousin, J. E. Shields, and wife, and Aida Simpson Alexander. Aida was born in Hantsport. The Alexanders came to Humboldt County in the early seventies. The distance from Korbel to Eureka is twenty miles.

My cousin, J. E. Shields, came to Eureka, the county seat of Humboldt, in the eighties. He finished his schooling at Wolfville College. He is now part owner and manager in a door, sash and moulding mill in Eureka. A few Sundays past my cousin and wife Elida drove over to Arcata, took Flora and I on a very pretty drive of sixty miles in the hills, to visit our former school mate, Arthur Davison, another wife very busy chaperoning a Sunday school or church picnic of near a hundred church folks at their dairy farm. Arthur's sons, John and Robert, manage the dairy of fifty high bred Jersey cows. In their herd they have eleven cows that are good for seven hundred pounds of butter annually. No wind no storms ever visit that section, four miles north from Orick. Its likely this was the largest delegation from Hantsport that ever visited Arthur's fine home at one time.

A few years ago I met Capt. Hige Davison there. He was sailing a tea clipper ship that had been turned into a lumber packet going to Australia. We were up against it, for the many years elapsing since we met Hige in Hantsport had almost obliterated all school marks, but when I could not guess him, Hige said, "Bennie, perhaps you remember Jackie Morris." That put us on.

B. A. Frost.

NOTHING MATTERS EXCEPT BEING KIND, SAYS MOTHER

Worth more than all her personal belongings was the compact of love, piety, faith and common sense which a New York woman left her family. Like all the great things of life, the message is simple, and valuable enough as an item of interest to the public at large to find space in the newspaper, says Literary Digest. The letter is written by Mrs. Lydia Harding Hammond, widow of the Rev. John Dennis Hammond, a Methodist minister, to be read by her children after her death. It runs as follows:

"Dear Children—I've just made my will, and this is to tell you what I want done with my little personal belongings.

same as yesterday and the day before." "Oh," ejaculated the subscriber, "I don't mean that I had stopped the paper; I stopped only my copy of it, because I don't like your editorials." "Fahay!" retorted Mr. Greeley. "It wasn't worth while taking up my time to tell me such a trifle as that. My dear sir, if you expect to control the utterance of the Tribune by the purchase of one copy a day, or if you think to find any newspaper or magazine worth reading that will never express convictions at right angles with your own, you are doomed to disappointment."
