ment you to some more of your ful news, blurted out: countrymen," he observed, his gethe belief that he was contributing you see it'sgreatly to Esther's enjoyment in thus surrounding her with a home atmosphere:

CHAPTER XXX.—(Cent'd)

"Mrs. Cushman, of New York City, Miss Cushman, and Master

Esther's heart seemed to cease its pulsations the moment her eyes fell upon the faces comprising this party, but she recovered herself be- it is Esther!" fore the ambassador had finished speaking, and then found herself looking straight into the countenance of the woman who had tried to make a slave and a drudge of her, some five years previous.

She bowed courteously to each, and was quite relieved to find that neither Mrs. Cushman nor Madge appeared to recognize her, although they regarded her curiously as it there was something about her that was intangibly familiar.

"I am charmed to meet Lady Irvington," said Mrs. Cushman, with a bland smile; "but if she is an American, her name surely is not."

knew that discovery must inevitably follow, for she had caught sight of Frank Cushman's look and start of astonishment the moment she had spoken, and felt sure that he had instantly discerned the truth.

"That is true," she politely responded to the matron, "the name is purely English, nevertheless America is my native land.

Evidently Mrs. Cushman now found something suggestive in her tones, for she scrutinized her more closely, while a look of perplexity swept over the face of Madge; whereupon Master Frank gave vent to a quiet chuckle of enjoyment, and bestowed a knowing smile and nod upon radilisi \) whom he had ai-

He had known her almost instantly, but how it was possible that the poor, despised nurse and seamstress had become transformed into this titled and brilliantly beautiful lady was more than he could comprehend. "Ah, then of course you have married an Englishman," Mrs. Cushman resumed. "In what portion of the United States did you reside before coming to England? "My home, during most of my life was in California.' "California!" repeated the matron, with another start.

we used to know?" Madge here in-

She had been intently studying Esther's face, and had begun to detect startlingly familiar lines up the woman began, when Esther, see- Cushman and Madge had stared at ing that a denouement must soon her with rude curiosity, mingled follow, and wishing to save them with bitterest envy. Her language the embarrassment of betraying was choice, her manner elegant their mortification in the presence and refined, showing that she must of others, interposed with wonder- have enjoyed the best of education-remarked, indicating one near them man, will you act as my escort thi- they might believe regarding her "I say, mother, that was downther?" she concluded, turning to position in life. Frank, who could have fallen at her acting as her attendant.

ed his arm.

I am to see you once more."

ali mean ?"

"I will tell you presently," she quickly ?"

you tell them!"

They had now ceached the sofa, less, and I tried to be kind to him, serve to convince me of the fact," Postpone it, dear, till we can get and Esther turned to ask her com- doing many little things for his com- she proudly retorted.

with the state of the state of * Contract Contract * * your eyelids in a certain way when you, briefly, how I hgappen to be rehearsed to me?" spiritedly deyou were startled. Jove! won't here. As you know, after leaving manded the matron. the madam and Madge rave when your house, I went into business "Your belief or disbelief cannot manifesting through the subconsci-"Hush!" said Esther, gravely, ous kinds, which I sold to wealthy slightest, degree, madam," coolly "that is why I brought them nere, ladies for their own and their ser- returned the lawyer. away from the crowd. I did not vants' use. In the house where I Mrs. Cushman began to lose some

Or, The Story of Miss Percival's Early Life. panions to be seated, when Frank titled Englishman of great wealth, Hotel Guests' Complaints Were "Lady Irvington, allow me to pre- eager-boylike-to tell the wonder- and that I should ocupy a high po-"Mother! Madge! how blind you posely kept those facts from me, ago of a newly rich, overdressed. a safeguard against ticks and lice, through the winter, if pea st nial face glowing with pleasure from are! Don't you know her? Can't lest I should shrink from the re-startled woman's lips.

ter's statement.

clad girl who stood before her with a position so far above her own. stress and nursery maid. What could it mean? How could absorbing interest.

anyone account for such a remark- "I suppose I am," replied Esther, able metamorphosis? It was like the transformation of "And are you very rich, too?"

butterfly.

A spirit of mischief took posses- vington, gently, "I am Esther; but one! What do you mean?" sion of and inspired Esther to pro-long the farce, even though she long the farce and the those people."

"I should think not, indeed!" re- sibility to me. spiteful asperity.

Esther lifted a wondering look to eagerly inquired the youth.

Her only object in making the revelation private had been to save sounding name?" the woman and her children the misery of betraying their chagrin in the woman's insolent tone and man- not many miles from London.' ner showed her that her motives "I suppose it is very grand." had been entirely misconstrued.

flower-like face before her, "what flushed, her eyes blazing. shameless imposture is this? How: "I have heard quite enough of do I find you masquerading here, this romancing," she freezingly obrooms, under false colors?"

meeting, but since it was as unex- claim to-day, is too absurd for cre-"Mamma, does Lady Irvington ment which I knew most inevitably assumption of the manners and title make you thank of some one whom follow the revelation of my identi- of a lady, and your lavish display

CHAPTER XXXI.

While she was speaking, Mrs. ai advantages since leaving them, "There is an empty sofa," she more than four years previous.

her jewels of the rarest. pose we occupy it while we compare | They had been quick to observe | But Frank was crimson with detail. Alas, however, the climax notes upon home life. Mr. Cush- and acknowledge this, whatever mingled shame and indignation.

He sprang to her side and offer- you were once a nursemaid?" "Mother! how can you talk so to involuntarily cower before him. "Frank!" she breathed, as she Esther? I am sure it was very kind "Madam," he said, in a tone that veloping for some time and that an ly safe, and a cheap class of lumber gave it a friendly squeeze with her of her to wish to save you such a actually made her flesh creep, "you immediate operation was necessary. white-gloved hand, "I see you know shock," Frank here burst forth in will be very careful hereafter that ling to wager almost any amount have just made in connection with fully, it suddenly occurred to me prefer to lie out on the ground, dollars." "Esther," the boy exclaimed, in that there is no imposture or mas- Lady Irvington." a delighted tone, under his breath. querading about her position. I "Lady Irvington!" derisively re- by the phantom cat. For the first and clean.

kind." perplexed face; "but how did you brilliant smile that brought a quick of the realm!" happen to discover my identity so flush of pleasure to his face. "What "Exactly, madam."

you say is true. I am in no false "And do you imagine for a mo- any pain or even to cause discom-"By your voice, and that little position, here in London," she con- ment that I am going to credit such trick you always had of sweeping up tinued, gravely; "and I will tell an impossible story as she has just changer it involved had produced for myself, making aprons of vari- affect the facts of the case in the ous to the conscious in the form of wish them to be made uncomfort- lodged there was a sick gentleman. of her excessive color. able in the presence of strangers." He seemed to be poor and friend, "Only indisputable proof would died he learned that he had fallen with, madam," was the ready reheir to some property, and he then ply.

asked me to marry him, saying that "To begin with, I was present at he wished to reward me for my kind- Miss Wellington's marriage to the ness by leaving it to me. I was late Lord Irvingtonpoor and homeless, and entirely de- 'You! and who are-you?' dependent upon my own efforts for manded the woman, insolently. my support. I wanted an educa- For a moment the gentleman's tion, and, although I did not feel strong white teeth gleamed brillithat I was entitled to such a re- antly beneath his silken moustache ward for my services, the sick man at this rude interruption. so strenuously urged me to grant his request, I finally consented. But it was not until after I was made his wife that I discovered he was a sition in the world. He had pursponsibilities before me. He died bounced angrily into the lobby of a ease of the skin, while the increased lambs should have clover hay, some "Frank, how excited you are! about thirty-eight hours after the fashionable hotel, and demanded growth and quality of the fleece, sliced roots and oats, or a mixture What are you trying to say?" Mrs. ceremony, and the following Sat- of the clerk that her room be chang- cwing to a healthy condition of the of oats and bran, to keep them Cushman began, reprovingly, when urday I sailed for England, with ed at once. The clerk told her po- skin, more than repays the cost of growing. Roots are not a neces-

"Impossible!" burst from the by the name I bear." "How exceedingly romantic!" important could be wrong.

had once been her despised seam- ton-a titled lady!" said Frank, after hearing Patri at night, I'm be more than 4 feet long, 2½ feet of lambs soon after birth. To avoid smiling at his eagerness.

the ugly grub into the gorgeous "I am afraid I am," she answered, with a little sigh. "Yes," said the fair lady of Ir- "'Afraid!" Well, that is a good great wealth seems a heavy respon- her friends she numbered those sary, and the outgoing end of the were related recently to London

"Yes, there is an estate, and-" with a big rent roll and all that?

Esther laughed out musically. the presence of the distinguished looking for more romance than siduity nearly every day, and depeople around them, a circumstance there really is concerned with my lighted the invalid with impromptu which would surely have subjected story," she said. "My home is concerts, at which Paderewski playthem to unkind criticism, but now called Irvington Manor, and it is ed ravishing accompaniments to "Esther Wellington," she went some grounds surrounding the manon, with white, set lips, and with a sion, and an extensive park-' sullen fire in her eyes as they rested Mrs. Cushman here arose quiverupon the regal figure and pure, ing with anger, her face deeply at one of her majesty's drawing- served, "and I do not hesitate to say that I do not believe one word fround errands which took them Esther flushed at the woman's of the preposterous story. Of through the nearest corridor when overbearing tone and manner, but course, Esther, I have no means of the "noises" were in progress, and without losing in the slightest de- knowing what kind of a life you if no one ever fell so far from good gree her self-control, she quietly may have led since you left the shel- manners as to listen at the keyhole, ter of my home and recklessly took "That was, perhaps, because a key-"I do not quite understand your your fate into your own hands; but hole accommodates but a single ear, allusions to 'imposture' and 'mas- the idea of an English lord marry- and there are as yet no rules for querading,' Mrs. Cushman, and I ing a girl in your position, and ele- precedence in eavesdropping." would gladly have spared you this vating her to such a one as you pected to me as to yourself, I could dence. You may have been able to only try to cover the embarrass- hoax people in this country, by your Repeated Appearances Premonitory ty by withdrawing a little from the of finery, but you cannot play any summer," says H. Addington Bruce the knowledge that the animals are Beatrice Haggerty, twenty-one, of crowd until the first shock of sur- such game upon me, Lady Irving- in Success Magazine, "I dreamed free from blood-sucking vermin, Antill-road, Hottenham, charged prise to you should have passed." ton! Irvington Manor, and a big that while out taking a walk I was and their skin in a healthy condi- with peddling without a certificate, rent roll, indeed! Faugh! I'd like suddenly attacked by a huge cat, tion, calculated to increase the said the woman, who had a baby in > velvet and lace are paid for." marble-every atom of color had the morning, and naturally enough been driven from it by the unpar- I dismissed it from my mind as noallelel insult so spitefully convey- thing but a dream. ed in the woman's last words.

curling her lips, was showing her again I began to wonder what sig-Her apparel was of the richest; to be thoroughly in sympathy with nificance it would possibly have. her mother's insolence.

right cruel of you-' he began, "How exceedingly considerate!" hotly, when he was interrupted by feet and kissed the hem of her robe mockingly observed Mrs. Cushman, the sudden appearance of Mr. Humfor her sweet spirit of charity and when Esther concluded. "How bert King, who, with a menacing for according to him the honor of about your own desire to conceal look upon his stern face and in his affecting it so badly as to require from the public the knowledge that eagle eye, confronted Mrs. Cushman with a bearing that made her to my astonishment it was then dis-

"I say you are an out-and-out know Esther right well, and that peated Mrs. Cushman, nettled al- time the meaning of the singular trump! But what on earth does it she is above deception of any most beyond endurance by the dream dawned upon me. clear, incisive tones and menacing "It had been a genuine premoni-"Thank you, Frank," said Esther language of Esther's unknown tory dream. Consciously I had been returned, smiling kindly into his heartily, and bestowing upon him a champion; "that girl a titled lady in utter ignorance of the danger-

(To be continued.)

"AWFUL NOISES."

Never Pressed. A story used to be told fifty years whom she had once so snubbed in now, I should just say there was. don't know me!"

neighbor." The late Madame Modjeska, the where it is necessary to dip ewes, Polish actress, used to relate a as well as lambs, a much larger Three unusually poignant narraother distinguished natives of un- tank should be sloping and slatted, (England) magistrates. torted the haughty woman, with "And have you a large estate, happy Poland, Paderewski, Madame Sembrich and the two De Reszkes.

At a time when she had been ill "Oh, where? Has it a high- in London, they were all there fulfilling professional engagements. As her convaiesence progressed, "I am afraid, Frank, you are they visited her with affectionate asthe golden voices of the De Reszke brothers and Madame Sembrich. "It is a fine old place, with hand- But other persons in the hotel soon sent in complaints of the "awful noises" proceeding from Madame Modjeska's suite. They were greatly disconcerted when they were informed of the source of the disturbance, and the complaints were never pressed. Instead, it became noticeable that most of the hotel residents soon

A DREAM CAT.

of Disease.

to take a peep behind the scenes which clawed ferociously at my growth of wool, as well as of flesh. her arms, was trying to sell postand know just how all these jewels, throat. That was all there was to the dream, or at any rate that was WINTER FEEDING OF SHEEP. We gave it some warm milk," he Esther's face was like sculptured all I remembered on awakening in

"But when I found myself dream-Madge stood by, an ugly sneer ing the same dream again and Usually it varied greatly in minor the throat and was biting and scratching viciously. Altogether, I dreamed this dream not less than a score of times in six months.

"Shortly before Christmas I took a cold which settled in my throat, the attention of a specialist. Much covered that a growth had been de- tween, will make the place perfectthat I was no longer being troubled even in winter, as long as it is dry "Well, dear, you see that shows ous growth in my throat. It had not progressed far enough to give me fort At the same time the organic sensations plainly felt by what psychologists call the subconscious and a symbolic dream."

NOT PREPARED.

ition "

Mother, may I go out to skate? "No," my darling Sue;

TREATING FOR TICKS.

partition next morning-well, you A slatted drainer is used, placed winter, and mainly dry feed. at one end of the tanks, on which to "I am sorry Madame Patti has lay the lamb while the surplus of annoyed you," said the clerk, the solution is squeezed out of the suavely. "She is your next-door wool, and runs back into the tank.

so the sheep can walk out of the surface of the skin while warm. istrate allowed his discharge. vices of three men or boys is re- stealing from vans. quired, one to hold the sheep, one ed first on one side, then on the and both willing to work. ed in a day or six or seven hours, husband was at work again. and the owner will feel more com-

Ne farm stock can be housed more cheaply for winter and feeding than can sheep. Any old barn or shed with a roof that will keep them dry answers the purpose practically as well as an elaborate and expensive building, provided the ewes are bred to produce their lambs in April or May, and for the average farmer there is no advantage in having the lambs come earlier. If one chooses to prepare for raising show sheep, or cater to the early lamb market, which latter is very profitable, provision must be Eben, "spoils the disposition of quarters at lambing time, but that his battles fur him." need not be expensive, as doubleboarded walls, with felt paper be-

In all cases of

COLDS, ETC.

Distributors:

All Wholesale Druggists

SPOHN MEDICAL CO.,

Chemists and Bacteriologist GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

No class of stock can be more cheaply kept. The writer for many years successfully wintered a flock of breeding ewes in an open-faced shed, with unthreshed peas, thrown into the rack twice a day, as their only provender, and they kept in good condition, and produced strong, healthy lambs, with never a case of goitre, and always plenty of milk supplied for their lambs. Clover hay is the standard prov-It is essential to the health and onder for sheep in winter, and for thrift of sheep that they be treated convenience in feeding, is best for destruction of ticks and other stored over their pens. The ewa vermin twice a year, namely, in the flock will do fairly well if fed wellspring, soon lifter shearing, and saved pea straw up to near lambing again in the late autumn, before time, when they should have roots going into winter quarters. Such or a light ration of oats daily, and treatment is not only necessary as they would be better for 1' all she stopped and her eyes swept up Mr. King, his attorney. I immeditively that it would be impossible to to do so, as there was no vacant to Esther's face with a wondering ately entered a good school, where to do so, as there was no vacant ping of the lambs a few days after the lambing season, nor after, if a for three years I studied most dili- room available; but that if anything the ewes are shorn in the spring fairly liberal ration of oats and "Mamma," faltered Madge, who gently. To-day I have been pre- were amiss in her present room fairly well answers the purpose, as bran be given them, though roots now comprehended all; "I told you sented to the queen-have made my which could be rectified, the man- ticks leave the closely-shorn ewes are very helpful to ewes when nursshe looked like some one we knew; debut, so to speak, and for the first agement would attend to it. It and seek shelter in the longer wool ing their lambs, but should be spartime have been publicly introduced was considered one of the most de- of the lambs. But, as a precaution ingly fed before lambing, as an exsirable in the house; surely nothing against skin diseases, it is wisdom | cess of roots fed at that period ofto dip the whole flock at that sea- ten has an injurious effect upon the Yet, even as she spoke, she was sneered Madge, who was consumed "Important! Wrong!" echoed son, or at least to pour on the ewes, lambs they are carrying, causing convinced of the truth of her daugh- with jealousy to learn that the girl the woman, indignantly. "Well and rub in, a solution of the dip. them to come weak and flabby, For a small flock, a dipping tank lacking in ambition, and subject to She realized, at last, that the her own home was so superior to I'd have you to know I'm fond of may be made of plank, either geitre, an enlargement of the thywondrously beautiful, elegantly her in every respect, and occupying music, and I have a sensitive ear, tongued and grooved, or lined with roid glands of the neck or throat, and I'm staying here on purpose to zinc or galvanized iron. If used a disease which in some years proves that air of refined self-possession and are really Lady Irving- go to the opera; and if you think, only for dipping lambs, it need not fatal to a considerable percentage who had listened to her story with going to put up with a squealing high, and 20 inches at the bottom, this trouble, it is well to give the amateur on the other side of a thin spreading to about 21/2 feet at top. ewes ample room for exercise in

MISERY OF LONDON'S POOR.

In the case of a large flock, and Magistrates Deal Tenderly With Victims of Cruel Want.

Arthur Davis was charged at the tank and up to the drainer. But, Southwestern Police Court with atby good management, a flock can tempting to commit suicide by cutbe kept clean by dipping the lambs ting the veins of his left leg with a in spring, and pouring the solution | boot-knife. He was discovered lyon the entire flock in the late fall ing on Wimbledon Common. He or the bekinning of winter. For had been employed at Smithfield this purpose, the advertised pro- Market for twelve years, but was prietary dips are generally satisfac- discharged through slackness of tory if used according to directions. work, since when he, with his fam-The solution should be kept quite ily, had drifted to the verge of starwarm while being used, as it vation. His late employer having spreads more thoroughly over the offered to give him work, the mag-

The pouring may be done from a | A laborer named William Boughcoffee pot, and one quart to each ton was charged at the Guildhall grown sheep is generally sufficient. Police Court with frequenting To make rapid progress, the ser- Wood street for the purpose of Detective Shuard said when he to open the wool at intervals of visited Boughton's lodgings, he four or five inches, and one to pour found the wife and three children the solution along these openings. on the verge of starvation. He The sheep is first placed upon its bought food for them. He had made rump, its back resting against the inquiries, and ascertained that two knees of the holder, while the wool former employers gave the man exis opened down the brisket, belly cellent testimonials. They were and thighs; the animal is then turn- very clean and industrious people, other, while the wool is opened Sir John Bell dealt with him as lengthwise of the body, and is then a first offender, and bound him let stand while the wool is opened over. He requested a Salvation ofthe whole length of the back, from ficer in attendance to try and get tail to head, and the pouring pro- the man work, and said the woman cess completed. By this process, a should be looked after and food flock of 60 or 70 sheep may be treat- found for her until such time as her

A constable who gave evidence at "Some years ago early in the fortable, as well as his flock, from Highgate Police Cuort against Mrs. cards. "Her baby was famished. added.

> The woman's husband said it seemed "real hard" that his wife should have to sit at home with two starving bairns while he was looking for work.

Mr. Fraser Black-"She must not do it. She will be discharged." He gave the court missionary money for the use of the couple.

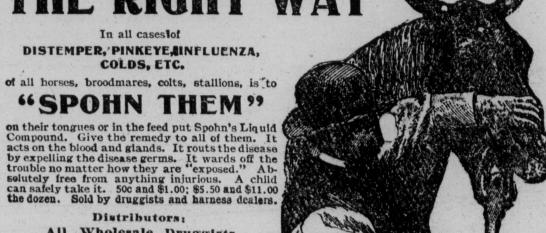

THE EASY MAN.

"Sometimes a man dat is easy an' good-natured," said Uncle made for keeping frost out of their several other people dat has to fight SAVING.

"But, Bertha, it was only last will answer the purpose. Sheep month that I paid a dressmaker's "Several weeks later, the opera- thrive better in open, airy quarters bill of fifty dollars, and here is anme, and I cannot tell you how glad honest indignation, "and I am wil- you do not repeat the remarks you tion having been performed success- that in close, warm buildings, and other one for this month for forty that I am beginning to spend less."

DISH

is im applic tempo becau blood purify cure s rich, troub the b strens cine l result bad h

Kensi can h feel f Pills ! years was t hands a mas sores. spent gettin hands all th persu

Pink

to say

dollar

I hop

benefi skin t The cine d at 50 $2.50 cine (ought Bong ? air wo million The v posed. drake. store t ful act remed to-day lish th do mo anythi

these

most e

per, b is noth ungove temper than a perhap Bad-te spoil t ate wit is ever just wl though metapl in thes burden behind him in incorrig aff sinc