

Rules of the Road.

What man would be wise, let him drink of the river
That bears on its bosom the record of time;
A message to him every wave can deliver
To teach him to creep till he knows how to climb,
Who heeds not experience, trust him not; tell him
The scope of one mind can but trifles achieve;
The weakest who draws from the mine will excel him
The wealth of mankind is the wisdom they leave.

For peace do not hope—to be just you must break it,
Still work for the minute and not for the year;
When honor comes to you be ready to take it;
But reach not to seize it before it is near.
Be silent and safe—silence never betrays you;
Be true to your word and your work and your friend;
Put least trust in him who is foremost to praise you,
Nor judge of a road till it draw to the end.

Stand erect in the vale, nor exult on the mountain;
Take gifts with a sigh—most men give to be paid;
"I had" is a heartache, "I have" is a fountain—
You're worth what you saved, not the million you made.
Trust not to intent, or your plans will miscarry;
Your wife keep a sweetheart, instead of a tease;
Rule children by reason, not rod; and, mind marry
Your girl when you can—and your boy when you please.

Steer straight as the wind will allow; but be ready
To veer just a point to let travellers pass;
Each sees his own star—a stiff course is too steady
When this one to Meeting goes, that one to Mass.

Our stream's not so wide but two arches may span it—
Good neighbor and citizen, these for a code.
And this truth in sight—every man on the planet
Has just as much right as yourself on the road.

Disastrous Fire in an Orphanage.

A New Zealand Catholic exchange contains the following account of a disastrous fire which occurred on a recent Monday morning at the hour of 3 o'clock in the Boys' Orphanage at Stoke:

Mr. Fitzgerald, the head master, states that about half past two he discovered a fire, and traced it to the boys' dressing room, in the upper story, and at the northeast end of the building. In a very short time the fire spread. He at once removed two boys who were in the hospital, and got the other boys from the burning place. There were 112 boys in the institution, and so far as could be ascertained all were got out safely and without mishap. They escaped in their nightclothes, though some secured blankets. A small harmonium and some few other things were saved from down stairs, but the lads were left without clothes to wear.

When the roll was called William Nelson, aged eight and a half years, was missing. Some of the boys said that they had seen him after the fire was discovered, and it was thought he strayed on to the hills. Search parties were out during the following day in quest of him, but were unsuccessful. A press message received on Tuesday stated that his remains had been found in the ruins.

The insurance is £3,000 on the building, £500 on the furniture, and £100 on the workshop in the South British Insurance Company. Of this sum £1,000 is re-insured in the National, and £500 in the New Zealand offices.

The splendid discipline at the school ensured the saving of life. The whole of the boys except the lad who lost his life were marshalled by Schoolmaster Beach, who sent them back for what they could save and then marched them down like a troop of soldiers.

The total loss is estimated at £10,000 and the loss over insurance at £6,000.

The boys are housed at present in the woodshed and other outhouses. A supply of clothing was forwarded shortly after daylight. Gifts of clothes, boots, etc., are greatly needed, as everything was lost.

Archbishop Redwood was at Oamaru when the melancholy news of the destruction of the Orphanage reached him by wire from the Very Rev. Father Lewis, S. M., V. G. It was naturally a great shock to his Grace, but he bore it bravely, and his courage under the blow was greatly sustained by the deep sympathy and proffered help of Bishop Verdon, Monsignors McKay, O'Leary and the other clergy that were present in Oamaru in connection with the opening of the Basilica. Offers of generous and practical assistance were also made by Bishop Verdon and the other clergy present, and strong hopes were expressed that the noble work done by the Stoke Orphanage and Industrial School would suffer only, at worst, a temporary check.

Charity's Lessons.

From time to time we meet with paragraphs in exchanges that suggest long trains of thought and even waken up idealists that otherwise might remain slumbering. Recently, hidden in the corner of a small publication we came upon the following very striking passage:—

"A beautiful illustration of Christian charity is offered in the following incident. An eminent painter was requested by Alexander 'the Great' to sketch his likeness. Alexander had a scar upon his brow of a sword-thrust. For a time the artist was perplexed as to how he might make a good likeness of the king and yet not show this deformity. He finally hit upon the expedient of having the monarch seated upon the throne with his head slightly resting upon his hand, thus concealing the scar. When we sketch the character of others, let us kindly lay our hands of charity over the scars, and when others come to sketch us perhaps they also will lay the hands of charity over our scars, for we have them, too. Thus shall each preserve and set forth the beauty of the other, and forget the deformity that more or less mars us all."

What a splendid sermon we have in this brief story and the lesson that is drawn from it!

That is exactly the great rock upon which so many of us split. We are well disposed, and we would not harm others for worlds; we make it a point to give relief to the indigent and to refrain from repeating calumnies—and we believe that we are possessed of charity. But we never take the pains to correct false judgments, to defend the absent, or to hide the spots that might be effaced if they were not constantly brought into the glare of the sun. It is this that is charity: the covering over of the scars and the whispering of consolation, or encouragement in the ear of misfortune. Read over the above anecdote and let the lesson sink deep into your soul.

The French Government seems to be hand-in-glove with the band which is organising noisy demonstrations and free fights in churches in order to prevent ex-members of dissolved congregations from preaching. The band in question is headed by an ex-priest named Charbonnel, whose secession from the Church caused some sensation a few years ago, and who is supported by Lourent Tailhande, the Socialist, and a man named Gustave Tery, who is editor of a new anti-clerical paper called "L'Action." This paper announces that they will systematically cause similar riots in all the churches of Paris and the suburbs where ex-monks are invited to preach.

"Do you mean to tell me," asked the chairman of the investigating committee, "that you let this contract to the lowest bidder?"

"Yes, sir," belligerently answered the Superintendent of Construction. "The man I let it to has his office in a sub-basement."

Life.

The poet's exclamation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves, are among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but exist; for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, rundown, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes existence into life, and makes life more abounding. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.

Agent, (in New York City)—Let me show you something very neat in the way of artificial limbs.

Mr. Busman.—Nonsense. Don't bother me. I'm not a cripple.

Agents.—Of course not; but it's always well to be prepared for emergencies, especially here in New York.

A few days ago Messrs. Carter & Co., Limited, Seedsmen, of Charlottetown, sent a sample of their "Export" brand of Mammoth Late Red Clover Seed, of which they received one car load (35,000 lbs.), to the Director of Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, to be analyzed. They have just received a report from J. Fletcher, Esq., Botanist, of the Department of Agriculture, as follows:

OTTAWA, May 6th, 1903.
Messrs. Carter & Co., Ltd., Charlottetown, P. E. I.

GENTLEMEN.—In reply to your favor of the 30th ult., addressed to the Director, I beg to inform you that I have looked up the sample of Clover Seed mentioned by you, and find that it is an excellent sample, and practically free of weed seeds. As a matter of fact there were a few seeds of unimportant weeds such as pigeon grass, and these formed the proportion of about one in every 2,000 seeds of good clover.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) J. FLETCHER, Botanist.
