BOARD OF TRADES NEW OFFICES

On or about January 15, 1910, the offices of the Edmonton board of trade will be moved from their present site on First street, to the new building on the King Edward Hotel building, corner of First street and Athabasca avenue.

Mr. Fraser reported that two sites were available for the new building on the King Edward Hotel site, which consists of the present ground floor of the hotel which will be vacated on the opening of the new building on the 15th of January, and a store space in the new Elter block on McLaughlin avenue.

The opinion was expressed that if three year lease would be the cost down for too long. W. K. McGeorge, a member of the committee pointed out that it would be a great inconvenience to have to move the board offices at the end of a year and that reason the committee had asked for a three year lease, where a one year lease was proposed by the committee.

MADE DEAD RABBIT LIVE.

Wonderful Feat of Young Doctor at New York. New York, Nov. 23.—Dr. Louise G. Robinson, the young Russian woman who came here from France recently and started medical men of this city with her declaration that she had discovered a way to bring the dead to life, demonstrated to scientists that she can perform wonders with the electric apparatus she has perfected.

Menace to Progress.

"It is very evident to a thinking mind that such a state of affairs is a menace to the best interests of both provinces, and as such should not be allowed to exist. It is quite easy to say that time will cure these evils, but very much alive. Is it not much more probable that as time goes on these monopolies will enlarge and tighten their grip? Are there not evidences of this already before your notice every day?"

"The killing of the rabbit, of course, was a very easy matter. Electrical contacts were made at the head and heart and the spine, the current was turned on, and at the end of one minute the physicians declared that all heart and respiratory action had ceased. At this point the resuscitating apparatus was brought into play. By means of a switch brought into play, it was found that the electric current that had killed the animal back into its body again, connecting naturally at a point over the heart and at the base of the spine. By turning on the current sharply and then steadily the muscles of the heart and lungs responded to the artificial excitation. In such experiments the animal's heart ceased to beat, three places corresponding to three parts of the body where the electrodes should be applied, and at the lower part of the chest, the electrodes is put upon a Claude-Bernard cradle—in positions corresponding to the shaven parts on the animal's back, and when the rabbit is put into the cradle the respective electrodes are pressed closely against the corresponding parts of its body."

Sad Death in Toronto.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—Miss Mary Whal, of 69 Sullivan street, aged 19, was out shopping yesterday to get some things preparatory to singing at a wedding tomorrow. She returned about five o'clock, lurching into the arms of her mother, dying instantly from heart failure.
