

TORY LANDSLIDE WAS CONFINED TO ONTARIO

"The people of Ontario do not like their neighbors to the south. That is emphatically the lesson of yesterday's election. Liberals in tens of thousands must have joined with the Conservatives in this country to show their objection to having any 'truck or trade with the Yankees'."

The other provinces of the Dominion, taken together, gave a majority for Laurier and larger majorities in the west. Ontario has declared that she will have nothing to do with reciprocity. The campaign orators of the Conservative party built their case on the fact that during the last two weeks of the campaign they appealed to the people of the province to save Canada from the Americans.

"They created a wave of feeling that was not observable on the surface but that nevertheless swept the voters from their political moorings in vast numbers."

Anti-American Sentiment. "That the wave, an anti-American sentiment, will speedily subside, is entirely probable. It mounted too high to last. But the drift will remain until Ontario becomes less powerful in her relations to the councils of the nation than she will be in the opening period of the Borden administration. There will be no hope of better trade relations with the people of the United States. The tariff wall will remain. The more ardent high protectionists may even seek to raise it still higher. If that is to be the policy of the victor, the reign of Mr. Borden will not be long unchallenged."

"The Globe still stands against high protection. It believes that reciprocity in natural products would be to the advantage of Canada. It believes that some day Ontario will be sufficiently natural to trade with the people of the United States without fearing that that trade will be followed by political union. It will continue to preach the doctrine of international goodwill in the confident hope that as Canada grows in proportion and in material resources she will grow also in her outlook upon world politics."

Regret Defeat of Leaders. "It is a matter of very great regret that so many of the leaders of the Liberal party should be among the defeated. It will be some time before Mr. Borden can gather around him leaders for his various departments who will measure up to them."

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier, amid the wreck, the very great satisfaction of knowing that despite the most desperate efforts of the Bourassa-Borden alliance his own province stood true to the statesman who in defeat is as victorious as still the greatest Canadian."

In a lonelier recesses she will grow also in her outlook upon world politics. Toronto Star's Comment. "The policy was not defeated on its economic side. It was defeated because of the effect and tendencies which were ascribed to it by its opponents. But it was the British connection, the severance of British connections, the displacement of political union with the United States. An appeal was thus made to a spirit of Canadian nationalism which their can be nothing but the deepest respect."

"The appeal was based upon a few ideas of the relations between trade and nationality, but the people at least believed that they were making a declaration of national independence."

What the News Says. "The overwhelming defeat of the government shows that the national spirit is much stronger than the Liberal leaders believed it to be. The attempt to set the east and west against each other and the farmer at odds with the city dweller has signally failed. Canadians recognize that in the National policy of moderate protection they possess a fiscal system under which the country's material resources are husbanded for their own use. We have seen, but are no longer at the parting of the ways. With marked emphasis we have declared for the maintenance of the Empire and the effect upon the imperial movement should prove striking. In Great Britain the advocates of tariff reform will be tremendously heartened and before long a system of inter-imperial preferences will bind all parts of the Empire more closely together. When the next imperial conference comes around, we shall send to London a prime minister who will not misrepresent the sentiments of this country."

Toronto World's Comment. "Toronto, Sept. 22.—Of the election yesterday, the World editorially says: 'Canadians have published to the world the strength of their national sentiment and their loyalty to the commonwealth of British states. That is the great, outstanding fact established by the general election which will go down in history as an epoch in the evolution of Canada. There has been no parting of the ways. The people have said with extraordinary emphasis that they will keep their place among the British states and maintain in all its integrity their national ideal.'"

Puzzley's Victory in St. John. St. John, N.B., Sept. 22.—Although New Brunswick turned over to the Conservatives three seats occupied in the last parliament by Liberals, the Liberals captured the city of St. John and elected Hon. Wm. Puzley, minister of public works, who is one of the few members of the present government to be elected. His majority was only 64 votes. The gain of three Conservative seats cuts the New Brunswick Liberal representation in parliament to eight members, and gives the Conservatives 5. In the last parliament the Conservatives occupied only two seats, while the Liberals held 11.

A National Calamity. In a statement last night, Mr. Pugsley said: "I have the greatest personal regret that the country has decided against reciprocity with the United States on natural products. It is impossible to overestimate the tremendous influences which were used to defeat the government. I am satisfied if the nature of these influences had all been disclosed it would startle the people of Canada. Under all circumstances, and particularly in view of the liberal imperialist and anti-Canadian policy of the Nationalists of Quebec, I regard the defeat of Laurier as a national calamity."

The Result in Nova Scotia. Halifax, Sept. 22.—Nova Scotia furnished probably as many surprises in yesterday's election as any province in Canada. First, Hon. W. S. Fielding, finance minister of the Dominion, who next to Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself, was the most important Canadian minister instrumental in arranging the proposed reciprocity agreement with the United States, was defeated for re-election to parliament in Shelburne and Queens by F. B. McCurdy, a prominent Halifax banker.

The Result in Ontario. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's right-hand man, and has been mentioned as his successor, the recently appointed Minister of Customs, who aided Mr. Fielding in negotiating the reciprocity pact, lost the election in Brant which he had represented for many years.

Sir Frederick's Defeat. An election result which was entirely unexpected by either party was the overthrow of Sir Frederick Borden, minister of militia and defence, in Kings county, which Sir Frederick had represented in parliament for 29 years. Sir Frederick is a cousin of the Conservative leader.

It is probable that Mr. Fielding and Sir Frederick will be offered safe seats in other constituencies, which would be vacated by members-elect, to make room for them.

The Conservatives had many demonstrations here and throughout the province when they learned of the heavy Liberal losses.

Equally pronounced was the victory of W. F. MacLean, in South York, where his majority will probably be over 5,000 when the full returns are in, while Captain Tom Wallace increased his lead in Centre York from 42 to 450. The result throughout the province was almost a repetition of the result in Toronto. The cities to unite went Conservative, while practically every town and manufacturing village in Ontario, followed suit. This effect any popularity which reciprocity might have enjoyed with rural voters, and the results was the return of 73 Conservatives and only 13 Liberals from Ontario by one vote.
