There and Here.

We had the pleasure, last night, of listening to Captain Clayton, C.F., give the most intimate and stirring account of the life and performances of the gallant Regiment which has yet been brought to Newfoundland at first hand. We have endeavoured elsewhere to reproduce a little of what he said—the whole lecture should be sent broadcast through the island—but the earnest manner and half-concealed pride of the lecturer in his subject had to be seen to be appreciated. It was impossible for the listener to avoid a mental comparison. The lecture-hall was not much more than half full. It would be safe to hazard a guess that at the same moment the Nickel was crowded to capacity, despite the glorious weather. To-night a comedy will be presented (on which we intend no reflections whatever) for which it is impossible to look another seat. In England and France there has been a spiritual awakening, a purging of men's eyes to a sight of higher things. It is discernible not only in the influence it has exerted over all who come here from there, but in every newspaper and every letter that reaches us from the other side. It has spread already to other places besides, but it has not spread to Newfoundland. Two pictures rise up unbidden before the mind. The one, of brave men scorning death; the other, of their fellow-countrymen clinging to the meanest things of life. The one moment, listening to the speaker last night, one was proud to be a Newfoundlander; the next, looking around at the empty seats, one was ashamed of it. He announced that he brought news of the men who fight for us; we would not believe them enough to crowd to hear it. He told of the drama of life and death which they act day after day; our citizens flocked in hundreds to the picture theatre to see some mawkish make-believe melodrama of a scenario-writer. So it is on every hand here. Over there, brave men risk their lives; their one aspiration, duty; their one worry, lest those at home are anxious for them; their one fear, that they will fall below their numbers and be taken out of their beloved division. Here the places that sent them and could send many more, neither understanding nor trying to understand the fine spirit that inhabits them and their keen pleasure in their duty, will not fill up their ranks voluntarily, and at the first hint of compulsion are ready to make an uproar. Others here, zealous in patriotism as long as it is cheap, raise an outcry now that there is a sacred duty that the gains they have made will be taken from them or the way blocked to them to make more. Much of the support that it is a sacred duty to us to give the men at the front requires legislation. What are our legislators doing? Wasting time in foolish talk and cheap sentimentalism. The one thing that matters in the universe is whether or not there is to be an election this year. A minute fraction of the country is fighting for the rest. What a transformation would follow if it were possible for one short day to reverse the roles and put the rest of the country under fire in the trenches! Yet it knows very well enough that that is the regular daily experience of these men. How far does the knowledge lead to reflection and sober thought? Very little, if appearances can be trusted. Matters are beginning to take more and more serious shape, but it is discernible only by the few who think about them. We owe a very high and very grave duty to our lads in France and we are not fulfilling the debt. "Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori." It is a sweet and fitting thing to die for one's country. If the words are not to be a hideous mockery in our ears, let the country show itself worthy dying-for.

A Generous Donation. It is revealing no secret to say that the most absurd and unjust rumours have lately centred around the name of Mr. Christopher Hannevig and his business in Newfoundland. There is no need to pay them the compliment of denying them. Mr. Hannevig has lately come to St. John's in his yacht "Ariadne," intending to cross to Norway in order to make necessary business arrangements in connection with the Shipping Company at Harbour Grace. The intention has been abandoned, however, at the instance, we believe of the British Embassy, who did not think the journey a safe one to take. Mr. Hannevig, after a short cruise in our waters for health's sake, will, we understand, return to the United States. Meanwhile, he has handed to our Red Cross fund a cheque for the handsome sum of $5,000. This generous action, added to the great benefits which the new industry will impart, will earn the further gratitude of the country to the donor.

Give Until It Bites.

Chicago Herald: The business of those who stay at home, who neither fight nor direct, is in one word—give. Spend wisely, save steadily, give what you save. It is unheroic compared with bayonet fighting, comfortable compared with trench living; and safe. But it is necessary. Just because we are muddling now this war will cost us all the more. Well, give it not as you give to a beggar but as you give to your child. Give till it bites. Give as they have given in Europe, in France, in England, in Germany.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY. May 23, td.

And the Worst is Yet to Come--

Patent Medicine Case.

Messrs. Dunfield and Gibbs, counsel for the prosecution and defendant, respectively, further labored legal arguments in the Patent Medicine case, arising out of the prosecution against a woman for the indiscriminate selling of Beef, Iron and Wine, in court to-day. The absurdity was brought out by the Prohibition Act, and at the same time the illegality of the sale of Patent Medicines containing more than two per cent of alcohol. Mr. Gibbs contended that, according to Mr. Parkins, the manufacturer, there was no fermentation or distillation in the process of manufacturing Beef, Iron and Wine, and it was not recognized as a spirituous or malt liquor. It was regarded and sold all over the country as an article of commerce just the same as Friar's Balsam, Essence of Lemon, Radway's Ready Relief, etc., and it was never the intention of the Legislature that it would be necessary to get a prescription from a doctor to buy these patent medicines. On behalf of his client he did not see why a widow should be singled out for this test case and other wealthy people in the city selling Beef, Iron and Wine allowed to go free. He considered it not a prosecution but a persecution. Mr. Dunfield agreed with most of what his learned friend had said. He argued that absurd as the law was, according to section 7 of the 1915 Act, any person selling patent medicines or drugs containing more than two per cent of alcohol were violating the law; in other words, he said every drug store in the city to-day was conducting business illegally by selling these articles without a prescription from a doctor. In quoting section 7, he showed that the Governor in Council was empowered to allow certain patent medicines to be sold as articles of commerce, but nothing had yet been determined upon by them. Mr. Gibbs interposed and stated that the matter was now being considered by the Governor in Council, and he had a position to say that Beef, Iron and Wine would be looked upon and allowed to be sold as a household remedy as heretofore. Judgment in the case will be handed down in a day or two.

The police later dispersed several marching bands.

GRAVE SITUATION IN SPAIN. MADRID, To-Day. Premier Eduardo Dato, addressing a number of press correspondents, said that calm prevailed in Spain, but that he considered that very grave problems faced the Government. The Latest Bomb Will Explode Six Feet Above the Surface of the Earth. Washington, June 2.—Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, exhibited in the House to-day a bomb which, it is claimed, will explode six feet above the surface of the earth, no matter from what height it is dropped, and destroy everything within 300 yards or even further. The device is the invention of Lester P. Barrow, thirty years old and a native of Pennsylvania, who has served as a coal passer in the navy and had charge of aeroplanes for Villa in Mexico at the time of the border difficulty. The bomb weighs 100 pounds and is about 6 feet long.

The trouble heretofore has been that bombs bury themselves in the earth. The Marlin Arms' Company, he says, gave him $900,000 for his invention, with the stipulation that he remain at the experimental laboratory of the corporation.
