Jordan Pickell was arrested in this city this morning by Detectives Nickle Press, Sept. 13. The only important feaand Rider on a charge of bigamy. The ture revealed is a telegram from the complainant, Esther Pickell, charges British night commissioner, and the might complain to the that Jordan Pickell, her lawful husband, did on March 29, 1899, in the PREPARED FOR EXTREME MEAStownship of Bosanquet, Lambton county, unlawfully marry and go through the form of marriage with anwoman, one Annie Smith. complainant claims to have been married to Pickell at Norwich, Ont., several years ago, and to have three chil-

Pickell came to London from Detroit in the summer of 1898, and went to work for the street railway company, in Moderate east to south winds; fair whose employ he continued until the St May. He was accompanied by his son, a boy of 14. Pickell claimed to have secured a divorce from his first wife. A short time ago, since the strike, Pickell applied for a position on the police force, stating his age in the application as 28. The police commissioners considered it strange that a man of 28 should have a son 14, and an investigation was begun. The result was the bringing of Mrs. Pickell here from Detroit. # EARLY CONFLICT

Everything Points That Way, Says the Natal Correspondent of the London Times.

A Transvaal Blue Book Says British South Africa Is Prepared for Extreme Measures.

London, Sept. 15.-The Times' Natal correspondent says: There is nothing to confirm the reports that the Boers will concede Mr. Chamberiain's demands. On the contrary, it is stated that 3,000 men will be dispatched to the border immediately after the Transvaal reply is sent. Everything points to the PROSPECT OF AN EARLY CON-FLICT. The advices from Cape Town today tend to confirm the pessimistic view of the Times' correspondent at Newcastle. The news that a strong force of Boers cers, but he resisted, saying that he has been stationed one hour from Ramathlabama, commanding the Pretoria and Johannesburg roads, has created great indignation at Cape Town.

The first battalion of the Manchester regiment arrived at Cape Town today, close up the foundry if a repetition of disembarked, and marched through the streets. The soldiers were wildly cheered. After they had been reviewed by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Frederick Walker, commander of the British troops in South Africa, the battalion re-embarked and proceeded to Natal. These troops, forming the first installment of the reinforcements, were sent from Gibraltar to

Cape Town. A TRANSVAAL BLUE BOOK. A blue book containing the last Transvaal dispatch of the secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, relating to the matters which led up to its being sent, was issued today. The text of Mr. Champerlain's note is incidental with the dispatch, as cabled to the Associated commercial distress, and saying:

URES. . "I am receiving representations from many quarters to urge the imperial government to terminate the suspense. British South Africa is prepared for extreme measures, and is ready to sutfer much more in order to see the vindication of British authority. It is the prolongation of the negotiations, endless and indecisive, that is dreaded. I fear seriously that there will be a strong reaction of feeling against the policy of the imperial government if matters drag. Please understand that I invariably preach confidence and patience, and not without effect. But if I did not inform you of the increasing difficulty of doing this, and of the unmistakable terminated at any cost, I should be failing in my duty.' Other lengthy disptaches from the British high commissioner are published, but they only reiterate the outlander claims regarding the franchise and the commissioner's ideas regarding the propositions already made.

PAUL CONTRADICTS JOSEPH. The blue book throws no new light on the situation as it is today, except to show the commissioner's patience has reached the ebbing point. A published interview with President Kruger, said to have taken place at Pretoria yesterday, is far more important. He is quoted as saying: "I have tried all along to place the allens in the Transvaal on the same footing politically as the burghers. Mr. Chamberlain says I have not kept my promises. This," thundered President Kruger, "I deny." Continuing, the president of the South African Republic is said to have added:

THE TRANSVAAL ALIENS. "The aliens of the Transvaal have the same commercial rights as the burghers, and have always enjoyed them without interference. I want to let them have the same political rights, but they would not avail themselves of It. "Roughly, there are more than 50,000 aliens who have been here over seven years and have registered, thus being eligible to the franchise. Yet, of the British subjects who have availed themselves of it, the chief part have been Afrikanders, and not English-born. This shows that the British in Transvaal do not want the franchise. In my opinion there is NO CAUSE WHATEVER FOR WAR. Everything could be settled by arbitra-

A second edition of the London Times today prints a special dispatch from Newcastle, Natal, dated Sept. 15, which er's statement, as it says the outlanders' council has transmitted to the Imperial Government what practically amounts to a protest against further delay. The correspondence says: They cannot contemplate without grave misgivings the possibility that the Pre-toria Government will be permitted to further delay matters on the plea of consulting the burghers.

THE DECEASED MILLIONAIRE

Buried on Staten Island, Where Lie the Remains of His Parents.

New York, Sept. 15. - Funeral services were held over the body of Cornelius Vanderbilt today in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church. The services at the church were preceded by brief exercises at the house, to which only members of the family and close friends were admitted. Rev. Dr. David H. Greer, rector of St. Bartholomew's

The burial was in the Vanderbilt mausoleum at New Dorp, Staten Island, where lie the bodies of Commodore Vanderbilt, and Wm. H. Vanderbilt and his wife, the parents of Cornelius.

One who was close in the confidence of Mr. Vanderbilt said it would be foliy for anyone to try to make an accurate statement of the value of the estate, but that it might be roughly estimated from $125,000,000 to $140,000,000. Even his was sheer surmise. Mr. Vanderbilt's holdings were not speculative in any sense of the

POLICE COURT

Sidney Jones, Charged With Robbery, Sent for Trial.

Sidney Jones, who has been on remand, was charged at the police court this morning with having robbed Wm. Roberts, who lives on the Sarnia road, of about $10 or $12.

Roberts stated that he had met Jones on Duidas street on Wednesday, Sept. 6, and that the two of them had gone around to the hotels and had "a general good time." In the evening they went to a livery stable to hire a rig to go to Hyde Park. Roberts, in company with Jones, got in the coupe, having procured a driver. Shortly afterward he put his hand in his hip pocket and discovered that his money was miss-ing. He immediately got out of the rig and proceeded to the police station and laid a complaint against Jones. Roberts had a notebook containing the numbers and denominations of all the bills he had with him when he came to town, and four bills were found on Jones when arrested. They corresponded with the numbers in the book.

P. C. Humiston arrested Jones the day after the robbery for being drunk. The prisoner was sent for trial on the first charge and given $5 or 20 days on the second. Robert Robertson, charged with being disorderly on the G. T. R. station last night, was fined $2. Chief Detective Day, of the G. T. R., was the complainant. James Ward, who has a shopkeeper's license, was charged with allowing men to become intoxicated on his premises Enlarged for two weeks.

Patrick Kennedy, Charles Perry and

Wm. McMullin, drunks, were allowed to go. James Hines, a drunk, was remanded for a week, and John Ford, a vagrant, was given a similar remand.

The Springfield Republican Points a Moral for Uncle Sam.

Says the Georgia Lynchings Are Just as Bad-Some Self-Searching.

[Springfield, Mass., Republican.] The second verdict of condemnation against Capt. Dreyfus has shocked the civilized world more than any other event, connected primarily with an individual, in the present generation. It is easy, of course, for foreign nations to point scornfully at France and congratulate themselves on their very superior virtue, yet that fact doe lessen the outrageousness of the finale at Rennes. The effect in this country shows how widespread and deep has been the public interest in the case. A Chicago contractor, very unjustly, has discharged four French workmen to rebuke the judges of Dreyfus. A woman's club in St. Louis has impulsively resolved that none of its members shall visit the Paris exposition next year. Louisville, Ky., is so wrathful that a call for a public meeting of protest has been issued. A great indignation meeting at Cooper Union in New York is also suggested. Doubtless Christian people could be found who would favor an immedeiate declargrowth of uneasiness about the present ation of war against France on the situation, and of the desire to see it ground that the French are an inferior race, and incapable of governing themselves. And it is a stain upon the honor of France that centuries will not remove. Dreyfus probably will soon be freed without undergoing a second military degradation, for the sentence of ten years opens a way for the government to construe the five years of solitary confinement and torture on Devil's Island as equal to ten in a home fortress. It is for the political interests of France that the prisoner be freed, now that the military party has been satisfied, in order that the agitation may be somewhat calmed. Yet whatever be done in this way opalliate the wrong done the accused, are affair Dreyfus" must stand as the monumental crime of the third republic. It is a remarkable fact that the history of France in the past two centuries has been notable for public crimes against individuals. Calas, Louis XVI., the Duke of Enghien and Dreyfus were victims of abnormal, diseased conditions among the French people which found expression in public assaults upon the most elementary principle of justice. Calas was the victim of the eighteenth century ligious bigotry, Louis of the fanati-cism of the early republican revolu-tionists, the Duke of Enghien of the absolutism of Napoleon, and Dreyfus of the insane militarism of the present

While France again stands disgraced at the bar of the world's opinion, and while this crime, unless speedily rectified, will mark her moral and national decay, it does not befit the people of other nations to strike the super-virtuous and scornful attitude of the prude towards an erring sister. Every nation has its sins to account for. France has not burned a citizen at the stake, with no trial at all, as America has done within the past year. It is still true that under the third republic the average man enjoys greater liberty than he does across the Rhine. Let even the English, as complacent and self-satisfied a people as exists, think of their own crimes at this time. Let America, at any rate, be saved from phariseeism Mob law is as terrible as the second verdict against Dreyfus. The burning of Sam Hose, the slaughter of the Baker family, the lynchings that make a mockery of justice in this western world, are as shameful and as ominous as the tragedy at Rennes. We are even now, as Senator Hoar so powerfully said, engaging in "lynching a whole people" in a distant land.

The Dreyfus case should set Americans to thinking of themselves after they have vented their holy indignation. The conditions that have brought France to this estate may well engross their attention. Is the Jew treated like a brother in the United States? Are there no barriers against him in our fashionable society? Or, if it be disregard for simple human justice in France that arouses our wrath, then what of mob law in Ohio and Georgia? If French militarism the root of the Dreyfus iniquity, calls for our condemnation, then what of the militarism into which the present policy of our government is swiftly leading the American people?

LONDON. ONTARIO CAT ADOPTS FOUR RABBITS. A cat on the farm of Andrew Harris. near McKeesport, Pa., has adopted four baby rabbits in place of the littler of kittens which she recently brought into this world, and which Mr. Harris thought the world could get along without. The day ster the kittens disappeared the cat as observed carrying something to the barn in her mouth. Three times she was seen making the same journey, and then Mr. Harris made an investigation. He found, hidden in the hay, three baby rabbits. While he was looking at them Puss appeared for a fourth time, carrying another little rabbit in her mouth. It was deposited with the others, and she lay down with them, purring with the greatest of pride and satisfaction. The young rabbits are getting along finely. They hop all about their fostermother. Mr. Harris is proud of his cat and is permitting her to raise her queer undisturbed, except for the visitors who are constantly calling to witness this queer freak.

Passion Play at Oberammergau. The village of Oberanimergau, hidden away in the Tyrolese Alps of Bavaria, lies for nine years lifeless and forgotten. Then every tenth year it suddenly emerges from its obscurity, and, like a comet at its periodic visitation, comes once more into the vision of mankind. The cause of this celebrity at the occurrence of each decade is the performance there of its wonderful Passion Play. Two hundred and fifty years ago a plague was raging in Bavaria; in Oberammergau alone one hundred persons had thus perished. The terrified sufferers made a vow that if their lives were spared they would henceforth perform a drama of Christ's life and sufferings. The plague abated, and ever since these villagers have deemed themselves compelled to carry out the vow of their forefathers, bequeathing it from generation to generation as a sacred and important legacy. A reproduction will be given at the Grand Opera House tonight and Saturday night. Admission, 15c, 25c, 35c and 50c. A tramp's minimum income in England is over $1 a day. At least a tramp has declared in court that he did a bad
