clists—Down Pike Peak on Wheels.

Since it became the fashion, a year or so ago, to coast down Pike's Peak on a bicycle several people have made the trip with decidedly unpleasant results. It is to be doubted, however, if anybody experienced such a thorough. anybody experienced such a thorough-ly shaking up as befell two foolbardy fellows from St. Louis, who, while spending a short vacation in Colorado, eached the summit of Pike's Peak and n a moment of recklessness decided to descend on their machines. Down Pike's Peak does not sound as awful, says these two fellows to-day, as the

"It came as near to riding down the side of a building as could be, and it is a strange thing our faces did not more closely resemble our wheels," said Jack Fulton, one of the partici pants, who told a story of his experence to a reporter for the St. Louis Republic. The recital in Fulton's own words is rather graphic, and it is given ozone threatened our sanity or else we never would have had the nerve have undertaken the jaunt," is the way Fulton explains how they came to make the start. The rest of his story follows: "Our first few miles down were nothing less than a slide and we hung on for dear life, feeling profaner than ever in our lives before The first real trouble was when Parsons struck a huge boulder and nearly demolished all the wire-spoking to his eel. He was also thrown on his head, causing a deep cut on his manly brow. I gave him a drink of whisky, brow. I gave him a drink of whisky, daubed a huge piece of plaster across the cut and on we slid. My turn came next, and when I saw daylight one-haif my wheel hung over a fallen tree blouses, newest styles, Friday $1.50. and my shoulder was too lame for use. I had torn my trousers anl looked like a wreck of my former self. It was now a case of go or stay and was now a case of go or stay and starve. One leg of Parson's trousers was almost torn off, his right shoe in strips and he had an air of delightful for 10c.

My pedals were badly out of shape, the handlebar crooked, while hunger was the predominant feelone-watching myself and trying to convince weary Parsons that it was no place to lie down and die. Our machines held together until we were within walking distance of the foot, when they suddenly gave way. We were thrown into a heap of boulders, and presented a unique combination of wire, rubber, flesh and mad wheelers. We gathered ourselves together, took up the remnants of four wheels and Valentine, Mrs. Valenti umbia County, Wis., two years ago. She had considerable property of her own, and she inherited about $35,000 from the estate of her half-brother. Hiram A. Pearsons, the capitalist, who was drowned in Lake Michigan. A portion of the property is in San Francisco. A twenty year trust was created by the will of Mrs. Valentine, the property to be held during the period of the trust for the missing son. If the son does not appear the estate is to be given to St. John's Home, Milwaukee. When young Valentine was 17 years of age he had a quarrel with his mother and left home. He went to Chicago and worked as a clerk, but soon speculated and made $60,000. He then went to Minneapolis to study medicine. There he married, much cisco. A twenty year trust was creat-Against his mother's will, and a few months later he went away, and a few months later he went away, and since that time nothing has been heard of him. A former business associate of the son claimed to have heard from him in Colorado a few years ago, and when Mrs. Valentine died she believed her son to be still living.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Henry A. King & Co. received the following despatch over their private wire to-day: Wheat opened a half cent higher this morning at 59 1-4c for December. Public cables firm. Private colles were strong early, and three tarthings higher at the close; the feeling was buoyant all day, and looked at one time as if we were in for an old. one time as if we were in for an old fashioned buli market. The feature of the market is the strength in September wheat, selling within a fraction of the market is the strength in September wheat, selling within a fraction of the December option; the margin of difference has been as high as 2 1-2 cents; on a better feeling the covering by shorts and more outside business. Our market has now had an advance of over three cents from the low point, and it should have a reaction; if ft does we think it a safe purchase.

Corn opened firm, and was firm all day. We have only one opinion on corn; on every fair decline, we advise buying it.
