

THE RECESS.

A Scotchman having invited an American to dine with him in public on St. Andrew's day 18.5, received the following reply to his invitation:—

My friend: why, your note names the first of December;

That you formerly kept up the last of November, I guess you and all of your friends disremember;

But firstly, to honour the day;

I finally care not from what month you pick it;

But will be to your feast in reply to your ticket;

And after we pretty considerably quaff,

I'll start off, quite sleek, right away.

The following explanation was made to the above:—

Hoot, man! in this year our Saint's day falls on Sunday;

See like the lave Scotch folk we keep it on Monday;

And gin we did else, 'till the waters o' Funly,

Wad ne'er sair to wash off the shame;

Then come to our makin and neer care a boddie;

Ye'll hae rowth o' fun, just to spree up your noddie.

And if, when we part, ye're scant able to toddle,

Some gude chid will see ye safe hame.
