CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS.

ONTARIO.

The lumber business has felt the impetus of fine weather, and September closes with a very satisfactory volume of trade to its credit. The incoming month is expected to develop an increase in retail orders, as many yards are thought to be carrying light stocks. While higher prices for lumber are not anticipated, the opinion is becoming more general that there is not likely to be any material decline. It is not unusual to meet a person who predicts an early break in prices, but it is difficult to point to one manufacturer who is shading quotations. One of the strongest factors in the situation is the very light stock of unsold lumber in the mill yards. Even a moderate demand during the next six months will leave the supply of dry stock comparatively limited, and the mills will resume operations next spring under favorable conditions. Building operations throughout the province are active for this season of the year. The number of permits taken out in the city of Toronto this fall would almost indicate a boom, but it is safe to say that, with favorable labor conditions, the activity next year will be no less pronounced. The demand for houses is in excess of the supply, showing that the building movement is based on a sound foundation. The furniture and implement factories continue to be large buyers of hardwood lumber. The seller invariably makes the price, and if his lumber is of the quality required by the prospective purchaser, a deal usually results. Shingles seem to be in a less satisfactory condition. From some districts the report is heard that prices are a trifle easier and the demand none too brisk.

Spruce lumber has seldom been in a stronger position than it is to-day. Many
